Beating Case Studied by Two Justice Dept. Units

U. S. Attorney Fay Gets Barrett Report; Civil Rights Section May Ask FBI to Act

By John London
Post Reporter

Two units of the Justice Department yesterday began "studying" the Rowell beating case amid indications that the FBI may join the effort to solve the mystery.

The two Justice Department units were the Civil Rights Section and the office of United States Attorney George Morris Fay.

Fay finally received from Police Chief Robert J. Barrett yesterday a police report on the mauling of the 48-year-old Yellow Cab driver, James Rowell, January 14 at Thomas Circle. Fay said he would ask grand jury action if warranted by the police report.

May Request FBI Action

Meanwhile, the Civil Rights section of the department began a study of the case to determine whether to request an FBI investigation on grounds of possible deprivation of civil rights.

Fay said he received the report about noon and turned it over to his first assistant, John W. Fihelly, for study. Fay said neither he nor Fihelly had a chance yesterday to read the report fully and declined to comment on it.

Barrett, when questioned by reporters, refused to divulge contents of the police report.

Announcement of the interest of the civil rights section in the case was made by Alex Campbell, Assistant United States Attorney General.

"We have received a complaint in the Rowell case and the matter is under consideration," said Campbell, head of the criminal division of the Justice Department.

"A study is being made to determine if there is a violation of the (Federal) Civil Rights Statute," Campbell added. "The study is to see if the facts warrant investigation by the FBI."

The Civil Rights statute Campbell referred to provides a maximum penalty of 10 years and $5000 for two or more persons who conspire to deprive any citizen of rights secured to him by the Constitution or laws of the United States.

Reporters' Conjecture

Another Federal statute which might possibly apply provides a maximum penalty of $5000 and five years for obstruction of justice.

The maximum penalty under the District code for simple assault is one year and $1000.

Campbell declined to discuss the Rowell case and the possible pertinence of the civil rights statute.

However, reporters conjectured that the following circumstances in the case might prove significant:

The beating occurred about 4:45 a. m. January 14. It was successfully hushed-up until uncovered Jan. 29 by reporters for The Washington Post.

USS Milwaukee's Return by Soviet Scheduled Soon

Russia has agreed to return the United States cruiser Milwaukee to the United States and the 8000-ton warship is scheduled to dock at Lewes, Del., on February 27 or 28.

State Department officials said final details of the agreement were worked out by a four-power naval commission in Rome.

They called for the cruiser to leave Murmansk with a Soviet crew yesterday. At Lewes, it will be turned over to the United States Navy.

The Milwaukee, renamed the Murmansk by the Russians, was lent to the Soviet Union in 1944 to help protect the North Sea route from German submarines.

Russia is to get the former cruiser Duca d'Aosta and 35 other Italian vessels at the end of this month, under the Italian peace treaty.

Alexandria Policeman Shot

3d Slaying Admitted by Man Awaiting Trial for 2 Killings

SERGT. THOMAS WOODS — INSPECTOR HAWES — SERGT. FRANCIS JOHNSON

By Al Lewis and Charles Davis
Post Reporters

A man who is awaiting trial for two District murders has confessed to the slaying of an Alexandria policeman, Washington and Alexandria police announced yesterday.

They said Joseph W. (Pudey) Hunter, 26, of 1247 Union st. sw., admitted the fatal shooting last September 11 of Alexandria Police Pvt. Robert B. Harris.

Hunter, indicted here for two slayings last October 30 during the course of a holdup outside the Rosalia Theater, confessed to the Alexandria murder after two hours of questioning at the District Jail, police said.

At first, police said, Hunter denied being in Alexandria the morning Harris was slain but finally broke and told the whole story. According to police, this is the story he told:

At about 2:40 a. m., he was standing at the corner of Madison and N. Washington sts., Alexandria, waiting for a bus to take him back to Washington. He had with him two rifles, a 9 mm. weapon of German make and a .35 caliber Remington.

He wore fatigue trousers with pockets slightly above the knees. In this way, it was possible to carry a rifle in each of the low-slung pockets and hide them with his overcoat.

But he was tired and wanted to sit on the curb while he waited for the bus. The German-make rifle was broken down and offered no difficulties. The Remington he placed in bushes nearby.

It was then that the policeman (Harris) appeared. He asked Hunter what he was doing. Hunter replied that it was "none of his damned business."

Harris "roughed" him up. Hunter retreated to the bushes, grabbed up the Remington and

U. S. Winds Up Its Axis Sally Treason Case

Last Two Witnesses Say GI Prisoners Jeered Defendant

By Howard L. Dutkin
Post Reporter

Two former GI war prisoners, who had seen fellow captives shot by Nazi guards, yesterday told bitterly how they had driven Miss Mildred E. (Axis Sally) Gillars from the prison camp.

Following their testimony and the playing of a recording in which a voice identified as that of Miss Gillars declared, "I, as an American girl will stay over here on this side of the fence, on Germany's side," Prosecutor John M. Kelley jr. rested the Government's case.

The defense will begin presenting its case at 10 a. m. today.

Members of the District Court jury trying Miss Gillars for treason leaned forward to catch every wrathful syllable uttered by former Ranger Eugene S. McCarthy of Chicago as he testified:

"After you put in 18 months in PW camps and see your buddies shot one a month—in 18 months, 18 men killed—and you see the way you're treated—my health is still not right—and you see an American person, saying she is an American working for them—do you think I'd love that person who would sell out her country?"

McCarthy's outburst was unwittingly brought on by Defense Counsel James J. McLaughlin, who had been pressing the witness to answer whether or not he was biased against Miss Gillars.

The witness first answered: "Yes and no," to the query. But Laughlin, not satisfied, kept questioning and applying pressure. Then the bombshell exploded.

His face flushed and his voice angry, Laughlin pointed his finger and shouted: "Did this defendant undermine your morale?"

"Absolutely," McCarthy declared, his voice also rising. "My morale was not boosted," he continued angrily, "seeing the woman work for the Germans—our boys

House Votes Funds for TVA Steam Plant

Controversial Item Feature of Money Bill For 35 Agencies, Offices

By The Associated Press

Overriding Republican cries of "socialism," the Democratic-controlled House overwhelmingly voted approval yesterday on the first big money bill of 1949.

The vote was 367 to 19.

The measure calls for the appropriation of $471,895,177 to run 35 Federal agencies and offices until the end of the current fiscal year, June 30. It now goes to the Senate.

GOP protests that the bill would foster socialistic trends in the Federal Government centered on a $2,500,000 item to begin construction of a Tennessee Valley Authority steam power plant at New Johnsonville, Tenn.

The Republican-controlled Eightieth Congress batted down the steam plant proposal when it came up last year. The Democratic plaint then was that the Republicans were siding with the big-money power interests.

House passage was on a rollcall, after a motion to send the bill back to committee for revision lost 237 to 148.

Democratic floor managers of the bill beat off a succession of Republican-sponsored amendments which would have trimmed several millions of dollars out of the bill.

The hottest fight of the two days' debate was over an amendment by Representative Taber (R., N. Y.), House Appropriations Committee chairman last year. He urged that the $2,500,000 steam plant be dropped from the bill.

Supporters of the bill argued that the plant was necessary to permit full use of the TVA's power production capacity. The amendment lost 192 to 105.

Having lost out on the crucial test vote over the steam plant, some of the Republicans who angrily opposed it then turned and voted for the over-all appropriation bill.

The House wrote in $5,013,000 more than the committee had rec-

Top NLRB Officials Steam Up In Fight Over Who Gets Bath

By The Associated Press

A shower bath battle between two top NLRB officials generated lots of steam but the affair was cleaned up when each contestant got a private stall.

Members of the National Labor Relations Board said yesterday the dispute involved board chairman Paul M. Herzog and general council Robert H. Denham, both rivals for authority under the Taft-Hartley Act.

According to some of his colleagues, Denham made the opening move in the bath battle when he demanded the principle suite in the new headquarters the board is taking over near the Capitol. A private bath and shower goes with the offices that Denham earmarked for his own.

Herzog, however insisted that the choice location should be given the board chairman—and he won out.

Denham, the story goes, then went to the Public Building Administration and asked that it provide duplicate facilities for the suite he was finally assigned at the other end of the corridor.

PBA officials confirmed that Denham had made such a request. They said they proceeded to do the job, explaining that they often received such requests from executives.

The PBA officials said the cost would only be about $1000.

Senate GOP Group Backs D.C. Suffrage

Measure Now Has Bi-Partisan Support; 19 Witnesses Due At First Hearing

By Thomas Winship
Post Reporter

Washington home rule last night was assured strong bi-partisan support in the Senate.

On the eve of the first public hearings of the new Congress on self-rule for the District, the Senate Republican Policy Committee adopted a motion "reaffirming its support of home rule for Washington."

Nineteen witnesses are scheduled to testify today before a three-member Senate District home rule subcommittee, headed by Senator Estes Kefauver (D., Tenn.). The hearing will start at 9:30 a. m.

The Republican pledge of support to the Democratic-sponsored drive for early action on District suffrage came on a motion by Senator Margaret Chase Smith (R., Me.), a member of the Kefauver subcommittee.

The motion was seconded by Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg (R., Mich.) and adopted by an almost unanimous voice vote. It is understood that two Senators voiced objections.

Taft Reaffirms Platform

Following the closed meeting, Senator Robert A. Taft (R., Ohio), Policy Committee chairman, told reporters:

"On Senator Smith's motion, the group went on record reaffirming its support of the principle of home rule for Washington. It is in our party platform, and since hearings begin tomorrow, we wanted to reemphasize our indorsement at this time."

He further explained that the Republican high command was indorsing home rule in principle only, simply because GOP members have not had time to study the difference between the Auchincloss measure and the new bill sent to the Hill yesterday by the District Democratic Central Committee.

In the course of a "lengthy discussion" on the home-rule question, it was learned, Senator Taft also told his colleagues:

Time to Do Something

"I think it's time to do something about it—and do it this year."

The District suffrage plank in the Republican Party platform, adopted in Philadelphia last June, started: "We favor self-government for the residents of the Nation's Capital."

Assurance last night of home rule support on both sides of the Senate aisle, follows a closing of ranks among downtown suffrage civic leaders reached at a final strategy meeting Friday.

At the conference members of the District Democratic Central Committee, the Washington Home Rule Committee, the Central Suffrage Conference and the 'Voteless" D. C. League of Women Voters, agreed to give united backing to a new and simplified self-rule measure, which the local Democratic committee will present at today's Senate hearing.

The bill, patterned after the Auchincloss measure, though giving broader authority to an elected city council, was jointly drafted by the District Democratic Central Committee and the Washington Home Rule group.

Some local suffrage groups have doubted the advisability of combining city reorganization and

Fast Drive To Pass Sales Tax Foreseen

'Hill' Committees Hear 31 Witnesses; Decision on Levy Slated for Friday

By Edward F. Ryan
Post Reporter

A fast drive to enact a 2 per cent sales tax here was forecast last night by Congressional District leaders after they heard spokesmen for local groups variously indorse and oppose the levy.

Formal hearings on ways to raise new District revenue ended at 4:10 p. m., after 31 witnesses had voiced their views to the joint District Fiscal Affairs Subcommittees in a 5-hour session at the Capitol.

There was about even division among witnesses for and against the sales tax. Several who opposed the sales tax called for seeking the needed revenue by a wider coverage of the District personal income tax, coupled with stiffer rates. Seven witnesses, including spokesmen for the liquor industry, hotel business, and labor, opposed hiking liquor taxes, while several others urged such a move.

Meet Again Friday

With the hearing over, the subcommittees met in executive session briefly, then adjourned to meet again at 10 a. m. Friday in another executive session.

Chairman Lester C. Hunt (D., Wyo.) of the Senate Fiscal Subcommittee, told reporters that at the Friday meeting "we'll decide whether to recommend a sales tax, and if so, what kind of a sales tax, and we may decide to some extent on other sources of revenue."

Chairman Howard W. Smith (D., Va.) of the House Fiscal Subcommittee, reminded reporters that he had voted for the sales tax last year. "I'm committed," he said, "and I'm still for it."

One member predicted privately that the sales tax would come close to receiving unanimous indorsement from the two fiscal affairs subcommittees. Sponsors hope that early action on the measure will reduce the chances of blocking the sales tax bill.

The 2 per cent sales tax is the biggest money-raising item in a program of the District Commissioners to increase city revenues by about 18 million dollars for the fiscal year beginning July 1. The extra money is being sought, first to finance an eight-million-dollar deficit created by the proposed 103-million-dollar city budget for the next fiscal year, and second to pay for the retroactive salary increases for city employes likely to be ordered by Congress.

Tax Amounts Sought

The Commissioners want to raise 10 million from the sales tax, 2 million from doubled liquor taxes, 4 million from boosting the Federal payment from 12 to 16 million; $800,000 from doubling liquor license fees, $300,000 from doubling beer taxes, and $1,200,000 from the unincorporated business income tax by cutting the present $10,000 exemption to $5000.

The Commissioners also favor keeping the present income tax law in force to the end of 1949, then exempting income below $5000. They oppose higher property taxes.

For their program, the Commissioners yesterday drew sharp criticism and warm praise. Few portions of their program escaped attack from different witnesses.

Area's Most Powerful Radio Voice

Frank Stanton, president of the Columbia Broadcasting System, and Philip L. Graham, president of The Washington Post Co., signed final papers yesterday afternoon at WTOP, completing the transfer announced May 17, 1948.

In the brief ceremony, WTOP, which has been owned by CBS since 1932, was assigned to WTOP Inc., a new corporation of which 55 per cent is owned by The Washington Post and 45 per cent by CBS.

Eugene Meyer is chairman of the board of WTOP Inc. and Graham is president.

Under the new arrangement, WTOP remains affiliated with CBS. Through the affiliation, the Capital's only 50,000-watt station will continue to air the familiar CBS network programs.

The Columbia network will continue to maintain a separate Washington office in the Warner Building, staffed by network personnel, with Earl H. Gammons as vice president in charge. This office will include the legal department, the CBS News and Public Affairs Department under Theodore F. Koop and Country Journal program headquarters.

John S. Hayes was named general manager of WTOP. He has been executive vice president of WINX, the original Washington Post station, since January 1, 1948.

Hayes said:

"WTOP now enjoys a greater share of audience than any other Washington station. We plan, therefore, no major changes in policy, programs or personnel. The station has risen to leadership through the teamwork of its present staff. All of our efforts will be directed toward maintaining and extending that leadership."

The Washington Post and CBS originally announced their plans last May 17, and made application to the Federal Communications Commission last June 15. FCC permission for completion of the transaction was granted February 9, 1949.

An application to sell WINX to William A. Banks of Philadelphia for $130,000 is now pending before the FCC.

Transfer of WINX-FM to WTOP Inc. also awaits final FCC action.

WTOP is a descendant of the small 37-watt WTFF, which became WJSV in 1927, with offices and transmitter in Alexandria, Va. WJSV was acquired by CBS in October, 1932. Its power was increased from 10,000 to 50,000 watts in 1940 when the transmitter plant was moved to Wheaton, Md. The call letters changed from WJSV to WTOP in 1943 when its position on the dial moved to 1500 kilocycles.

Handcuffed Prisoner Unidentified

Reason for Spy Trial Secrecy In Munich Demanded by Clay

Munich, Germany, Feb. 16 (AP).—Secrecy imposed for reasons unknown even to Gen. Lucius D. Clay masked the opening of a spy trial before a United States Military Commission here today.

General Clay, United States Military Governor in Germany, ordered an investigation from his headquarters in Frankfurt. He said he would order an open trial unless the court convinces him the secrecy is necessary.

He will have to be shown, he said, that an open trial would involve "real and actual" danger to the United States, or imperil the lives of innocent persons.

(In Washington Secretary of the Army Royall said he had called for a report on the trial. "Only the most important security consideration could justify such secrecy," he said. "I would not approve such a course without the strongest showing.")

A handcuffed man, dark-haired, pale and slender and about 30 years old, is believed to be the sole defendant in this first of a series of five related spy trials.

His identity was kept a secret, and the commission has announced it will never disclose its verdict, which may be the death penalty. The man is believed to be a Czech, one of about 20 persons charged with spying for the Communist Czechoslovak government.

Ashen and tense, the man was seen standing alone in the tightly guarded trial room when a door opened early in the trial. He is believed to have been brought here from jail at Dachau, a one-time Nazi death camp.

A second man, also handcuffed and clad in rough prison garb, was seen in an adjoining room. He was presumed to be a witness, possibly awaiting trial himself.

Clay, learning of the unusual secrecy, said he feared forces unfriendly to the United States would seize upon such a trial policy for propaganda purposes.

"I want those trials to be open, unless completely convinced that secrecy is absolutely necessary for the protection of United States security or the safety of innocent individuals," the general said.

Brig. Gen. John L. McKee, chairman of the military commission, contends identification of the witnesses, disclosure of the testimony or even announcement of the verdict might imperil United States security.

The trial is being held under United States military government laws which are issued by Clay as

Russia Quits U. N. Health Unit; U. S. Ousts Repatriation Group

Russian Mission Told to Get Out of Zone by March 1

Frankfurt, Germany, Feb. 16 (AP). The United States Army tonight ordered a Soviet Repatriation Mission to get out of the American Zone of Germany by March 1.

Disaccreditation of the mission was announced after the Soviet commander in Germany, Marshal Vassily D. Sokolovsky asserted it was indispensable, and that a withdrawal would have to be worked out between Moscow and Washington.

Gen. Lucius D. Clay, the United States Commander, canceled the accreditation of the mission members, four officers and four soldiers.

Repatriation Virtually at End

The mission ostensibly has been handling the moving of Russian displaced persons wanting to go back to Russia.

General Clay said: "Because the repatriation of displaced persons who are Soviet citizens has virtually ceased, the Russian Repatriation Mission in the United States Zone will not operate after March 1."

The Army said it is felt the accredited Soviet Military Mission in the United States Zone could take over the job.

Withdrawal of the Russian mission would leave only the Polish Repatriation Mission in the American zone. The Czechoslovak mission was recalled in July, 1947; the Swedish in September, 1947; Venezuelan in February, 1948, and Yugoslav last month.

The French also were reported planning to ask a Russian repatriation mission to leave their zone.

"Little to Do"

An authoritative Army source said the Soviet mission in the United States zone has had "little to do" for months.

"Nobody would go so far as to say they had been engaging in other activities," the source said, "but they certainly haven't done any repatriation."

At least twice, Ukrainian and Baltic displaced persons, stoned members of the mission as they visited displaced persons camps.

IRO officers said there still were 2717 Soviet citizens in DP camps in the American zone—and none of them had shown any recent inclination to go home.

Organization's Head Attempts to Obtain Red Reconsideration

Geneva, Switzerland, Feb. 16 (U.P.).—Soviet Russia resigned today from the World Health Organization (WHO), the only specialized agency created by the United Nations Charter to which the nation belonged.

Soviet Deputy Health Minister N. A. Vonogradov cabled the resignation to WHO headquarters here, calling the agency inefficient and overexpensive.

The Ukraine and White Russia, the Soviet republics which have separate membership with the Soviet Union in the United Nations, also resigned.

Reconsideration Sought

Urgent attempts were started at once here and at Lake Success, N. Y., to get the Soviet Government to reconsider.

Dr. George Brock Chisholm, director general of the WHO, cabled the Soviet government and the governments of the Ukraine and White Russia refusing to accept the resignations for the present, and offering to go to Moscow to talk over the situation.

(United Nations Secretary General Trygve Lie expressed his regret in a statement issued at Lake Success. He disclosed he was in touch with Moscow through chief United Nations delegate Jacob A. Malik in an attempt to get Russia to change its mind.)

Some U. N. leaders feared the action might portend a future Soviet walkout from the U. N. itself.

U. N. Walkout Doubted

The prevailing view, however, was that it would not; that Russia would have nothing to gain and plenty to lose by such action.

However, there was speculation whether such countries as Albania, Bulgaria, Czechoslovakia, Hungary, Poland, and Yugoslavia might follow Russia out of the WHO.

Russia still belongs to two international agencies now under U. N. control, the Universal Postal Union and the International Telecommunications Union. However, the U. N. took these over from the old League of Nations, and Russia merely continued her membership.

The Soviet Union has refused persistently to join such specifically U. N. specialized agencies as the Food and Agricultural Organization, the International Civil Aviation Organization, the World Bank and the Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization.

Bold Attack Wins Applause

Veteran Pension Bill Assailed As 'Dishonest' by Rep. Byrnes

Representative John W. Byrnes (R., Wis.), yesterday challenged as "dishonest" a bill to pay $90-a-month pensions to all veterans of World Wars I and II when they reach 65.

His attack was applauded by both Democrats and Republicans who face the task of voting, sooner or later, on the politically-potent measure.

Byrnes spoke against a pension bill which Chairman John Rankin (D., Miss.) pushed through his House Veterans Committee Tuesday in a stormy session which seven members left in disgust.

The 35-year-old Byrnes, now serving his third term in Congress, recognized the political hazards of opposing a bill tagged as a benefit for war veterans.

"If we members of this great legislative body cannot point out to the veterans in our individual districts the dangerous fallacies in this legislation, then we do not deserve to represent our districts in future Congresses," he said.

Most members of Congress have hesitated to openly oppose the pension demands which are being voiced by most veterans' organizations.

Byrnes told the House the pending bill "attempts to deceive the veterans into believing they are getting something for nothing."

Rankin voiced "surprise" at Byrnes' attack. He is laying plans to try to get a vote on it Monday.

He said he will ask Speaker Sam Rayburn to recognize him under special procedures that would let the House consider the bill immediately.

If Rayburn refuses, as is expected, Rankin said he will ask the Rules Committee to bring the bill up in the regular way.

Policy of U. S. On Alliance Is Affirmed By Acheson

Collective Defense Program to Combat Aggression Stands, Europeans Assured

By Ferdinand Kuhn jr.
Post Reporter

Secretary of State Dean Acheson declared yesterday that the United States was not wavering from its policy of building up collective defense against aggression.

His statement was intended partly to reassure European opinion, which had been shocked by the isolationist tone of some of last Monday's speeches in the Senate on the North Atlantic defense treaty.

Added reassurance—of sorts—came from the new wording which Senator Tom Connally, chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, said Tuesday he would be willing to accept in the treaty text.

While European spokesmen in Washington did not throw their hats in the air about Connally's statement, and would have preferred something stronger, most of them agreed it was a better formula than the Senator had been willing to accept when the treaty draft was shown to him a week earlier.

Connally Opposed

The European negotiators here, on instructions from home, are expected to argue stubbornly for the inclusion of the word "military" as one of the forms of action that might be taken against an aggressor. Senators Connally and Arthur H. Vandenberg are expected to be even more stubborn against using the word "military" in this context.

One puzzle left unsolved by Connally's proposal of Tuesday was whether his new wording was intended as a substitute for other terms that had been in the treaty draft. For example, Connally last week was reported dead-set against any affirmation in the Atlantic treaty that an attack on one signer should be regarded as an attack on all.

Such a statement appears in Article 3 of the Rio treaty, but for reasons never publicly explained, Connally has frowned on it in the present treaty. The Senator declined to say yesterday whether his proposed wording was meant to take the place of such a statement of principle; in fact, he firmly declined to discuss the Atlantic treaty at all.

Acheson's Statement

Secretary Acheson, too, refused to comment on Connally's proposal, and went no further than to tell reporters he had read it. There was some reason to believe it had been drafted in the State Department, in the effort to find some form of words that Connally would accept.

The Secretary simply told questioners at his press conference that it would be most undesirable for him to comment on anything the Senator might say.

He read a formal statement saying that "there are no real differ-

Michael Rector, 4 and miraculously alive, yesterday underwent his fifth extensive skin-grafting operation.

The boy took the pain without anesthetic, and was returned to the hospital bed that first received him, November 12, the victim of burns that enveloped 70 per cent of his body.

In another bed at Casualty Hospital lay Robert Joseph Denyer, 23, aviation machinist's mate, who gave up four patches of skin, each 4x8 inches, from his flanks. His only reason: a little boy might be saved some pain.

After the operation, the surgeon said that Michael, son of Everett Rector, of 613 Elliott st., has "better than a 50-50" chance to survive.

Taft Attacks Controls of Inflation Bill

By Carl Levin
NYHT News Service

Senator Robert A. Taft, of Ohio, chairman of the Senate Republican Policy Committee, charged yesterday that the Truman Administration's new anti-inflation bill "proposes a completely planned and controlled economy." He saw no reason, he added, why the Nation should accept such an economy now.

While he said in an interview he was not condemning the bill in its entirety, his characterization of the legislation, coupled with comments yesterday by other Republicans, indicated that the measure faces formidable legislative obstacles.

The bill, introduced for the Administration by Representative Brent Spence (D., Ky.), chairman of the House Banking Committee, asks stand-by authority for ceilings on prices that rise above last December's level.

It would also create a six-man board to regulate wage increases, and would authorize allocation controls over scarce materials and, if needed as a "last resort," authority to build industrial plants to increase scarce materials production.

Meanwhile, President Truman conferred with the Democratic congressional Big Four yesterday on his over-all legislative program, and his Secretary of Treasury, John W. Snyder, reiterated that the President's request for four billion dollars in new taxes is an Administration "must."

Snyder, testifying before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee on continuation of the Marshall Plan, said it was important that the recipient nations balance their budgets.

Asked about this Nation's budget, Snyder said the four-billion-dollar tax increase will be necessary to avoid deficit financing and to make a payment on the national debt. He added that he intends to "use every means, no matter how unpopular," to make a payment on the $252,500,000,000 debt.

Senator Taft's view that the Administration anti-inflation bill spells regimentation not warranted by the present economic situation was quickly countered by Senator Joseph C. O'Mahoney (D., Wyo.), chairman of the Joint Congressional Economic Committee.

O'Mahoney told reporters he feared that "unless the Government acts, collapse is inevitable." The question, he said, is what type of action should be taken, but warned that in his view the basic question is whether "we act or drift." Mr. Truman, he added, has presented a positive program—in which, he conceded, Congress might want to make some changes.

The Air Force yesterday announced a reduction in the air defense forces of the Panama Canal as part of a general cutback made necessary by President Truman's curtailed 1950 defense budget.

Three squadrons at France Air Force Base will be transferred or abolished and the base itself put on a bare maintenance status. In addition, three outlying air bases in British territory will be closed, the announcement said.

The civilian personnel of the Caribbean Air Command will be cut from 8000 to 5000.

Part of Over-all Cut

Officials said the move is part of an over-all reduction in bases and squadrons required by the cut of the Air Force from 59 to 48 groups under the 1950 budget. What bases and units in the United States and overseas commands are to be deactivated has not yet been decided.

The Panama cut will leave only one Air Force rescue squadron and one reconnaissance squadron in the entire Caribbean area. However, the 23d Jet Fighter Wing is scheduled to move from Guam to occupy Howard Air Force Base in the Canal Zone in April. It replaces a similar jet fighter unit moved to Europe last summer.

Meanwhile, House Speaker Sam Rayburn disclosed that many Congressmen are "feeling pretty blue" over the high cost of air power. His statement followed Tuesday's air demonstration held for the President and Congress at Andrews Air Force base, and a meeting of the congressional "big four" with Mr. Truman at which the 70-group air program was discussed.

Rayburn gave no indication as to the President's view on congressional proposals to up his Air Force budget.

Other Developments

These other defense developments also occurred yesterday:

1. The House Armed Services Committee approved a bill to create an Undersecretary of Defense to act in absence of Secretary James Forrestal. He would outrank the Army, Navy and Air Force Secretaries. Forrestal told the group he is "snowed under" at present by the many aspects of his job.

2. The same group put off until next week action on bills recommended by subcommittees to build a 161-million-dollar radar screen around the Nation and a 3000-mile-long guided missile test range.

3. The Armed Forces disclosed they gained 40,000 men during January and now have an over-all strength of 1,625,800. They must get back to approximately 1,620,000 officers and men by July and have put quotas on original enlistments. By taking in 28,000 new recruits, nearly 18,000 reenlistees and 12,653 draftees, the Army reached a high of 711,500—34,000 above the 1950 authorized strength.

The Air Force cutback order transferred the 319th All Weather Fighter Squadron to Moses Lake, Wash., and will make inactive the Fourth Tactical Reconnaissance Squadron and the 161st Liaison Squadron. The bases to be closed are: Atkinson AFB, Hyde Park, British Guiana, Beane AFB Vieux Fort, St. Lucia and Coolidge AFB, St. Johns, Antigua.

Marshall Plan States to Form Executive Unit

Paris, Feb. 16 (NYHT.).—The formation of an eight-nation executive group to coordinate and direct the work of the Organization for European Economic Cooperation was agreed upon today by the organization's "Committee of Nine."

The decision is expected to be ratified by the plenary session of the OEEC council here Thursday. All 19 Marshall-plan countries (including the bizone of Germany, the French zone, and Trieste) are represented on the council.

Sir Stafford Cripps, British Chancellor of the Exchequer, began discussions with the French to conciliate the two countries' economic plans and improve Franco-British trade relations.

Chinese Study Reorganizing

Nanking, Feb. 16 (AP).—Acting President Li Tsung-jen may summon two old comrades-in-arms to reorganize China's mauled armies, thereby strengthening his hand in negotiating with the Communists.

An informed Chinese official source said today the two are Gen. Ho Ying-chin, former defense minister who already is here, and Gen. Pai Chung-hsi, central China commander who is due from his Hankow base.

(Meanwhile, Premier Sun Fo denied in Canton that he had offered to resign. He also said his refugee cabinet was not going back to Nanking, as repeatedly urged by Li.

(The report of his offer, however, came from a responsible official in Nanking Tuesday. He is President Yu Yu-jen of the Control Yuan—the impeachment body. Yu said he brought the offer from Canton, where he conferred with Sun, presumably to urge the Premier's return to Nanking.)

Radar 'Fence' Is Rushed by Europe Union

London, Feb. 16 (U.P.).—The military chiefs of Europe's Western Union are rushing work on a radar "fence" to guard their five countries against surprise air attack, British sources said tonight.

Publication of a white paper revealed today that Britain is furnishing radar equipment and jet interceptor planes to her Brussels-pact partners.

The Western Union nations are Britain, France, Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxembourg.

The British report said well-concealed radar stations would be set up along the borders of all five nations close enough together to detect even relatively small guided missiles.

Stations in all five countries would be linked to a central headquarters, where all air movements near the borders would be charted continuously.

Dutch Reject U. N. Action

The Hague, Feb. 16 (U.P.).—Acting Minister of Overseas Territory, J. H. Van Maarseveen, today rejected the action of the United Nations Security Council in the Indonesian case as "presumptuous and a violation of Dutch sovereignty."

He staunchly defended in Parliament the government's policy in Indonesia and attacked the Security Council's January 28 resolution which proposed a timetable for the transfer of sovereignty to the Indonesian government.

Action was postponed pending conferences between Dr. Louis Beel, high representative of the crown in Indonesia, and the cabinet.

Koreans Hail Stalin as Savior

Moscow, Feb. 16 (NYHT.). — A silk-embroidered letter said to have been signed by 16,767,680 Koreans of both the south and the north has been sent to Prime Minister Stalin as a testament of loyalty and appreciation following the withdrawal of Soviet troops, it was announced today.

The Koreans hailed Stalin as "the friend and teacher of the working people of the whole world, the great savior of the Korean people." The letter suggests a plebiscite in all Korea to support the Soviet thesis the majority oppose the U. N.-approved Seoul government.

The signatures were collected between October and December, 1948. Tass said the letter was signed by 9,940,000 persons in the American-occupied zone. (American officials estimate south Korea has a population of 21 million and north Korea 9 million.)

Signers of the letter said "American imperialistis" brought "puppet government" to southern Korea.

North Korea's Bid Killed

Lake Success, N. Y., Feb. 16 (U.P.). The United Nations Security Council refused today, by a vote of 8 to 2 with one abstention, to send the application of the Peoples Republic of Northern Korea to its membership committee for consideration.

9 Countries Back Council Of Europe

London, Feb. 16 (U.P.).—Nine countries lined up today to join the Council of Europe, with its quasiparliament and cabinet, and the first conference to form it is expected to be held the end of March.

Site of the preparatory conference was not disclosed, but the council's permanent "capital" is to be Strasbourg, France, close to the German border.

In Copenhagen, a Foreign Office spokesman has announced that Denmark is ready to join the council. Other nations taking part are Sweden, Italy, Ireland and the five western Europe treaty states—Britain, France, Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxembourg.

In Rome, Premier Alcide de Gasperi said Italy now will be able to air her views in the Council, on Germany and her former colonies.

Meanwhile, Norway's Foreign Minister Halvard M. Lange left here by air today for Oslo, where he will submit his report on the projected North Atlantic Alliance to his cabinet.

For 10 days Lange discussed the proposed pact in Washington with President Truman and Secretary of State Dean Acheson and previously with Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin.

Radio Moscow continued its blast at all Western defense treaties. Today the Soviet station attacked suggestions for a Mediterranean pact similar to the western Europe treaty.

The influential London Times said today one of the disadvantages of the Democratic election victory in the United States was the substitution of Senator Tom Connally (D., Tex.) for Arthur H. Vandenberg (R., Mich.) on the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

Canadians Eye Tariff Cuts

Ottawa, Ont., Feb. 16 (AP).—Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent may suggest another meeting with President Truman this spring to talk further about economic problems, it was reported here today.

The two leaders are known to have touched on this subject during their talks in Washington last weekend. Observers said St. Laurent really sought to lay he groundwork for more specific talks, preferably before Canada's general elections take place this year.

Canadian Government experts think more goods could be sold in the United States if tariffs were lowered and would like trade treaty revisions with this in mind. St. Laurent himself said security pacts like the proposed Atlantic treaty must embrace moral and economic, as well as military cooperation.

The parliamentary Liberal caucus, attended by members of both the House of Commons and the Senate, today gave St. Laurent a vote of confidence, significant because of two recent by-election defeats by Liberals.

Norse Fear Retaliation

Stockholm, Feb. 16 (AP).—Fears are being expressed here of possible retaliatory measures by Soviet Russia if Norway joins the projected North Atlantic Pact. There seems to be a general belief the Russians may not restrict themselves to diplomatic measures.

Key members of the Swedish Parliament see these possibilities:

1. A concentration toward the Norwegian border by Soviet forces from the Murmansk area.

2. A massing of Soviet forces, by way of Finland, toward Finland's borders with Norway and Sweden. Diplomats here say Russia could do this under her treaties with Finland, provided both countries agreed that a threat to Russia existed across the Finnish territory.

Israel, Egypt Agreement Believed Near

Rhodes, Feb. 16 (AP).—Israel and Egypt were reported today to have solved the toughest problems keeping them from an armistice agreement.

Dr. Ralph J. Bunche, the United Nations mediator, said he believed an agreement was near. He emphasized, however, that last-minute difficulties have arisen before, and he is making no predictions.

Unofficial sources said the delegations have agreed in principle on a definition of Israel's border lines. These would follow closely the lines drawn in the truce agreement that paved the way for the armistice meeting.

Such a line would give the Egyptians the narrow coastal strip to Gaza, the informants said.

The delegations still were seeking agreement on ownership of the highway junctions of Beersheba, El Auja and Bir Asluh in the Negev Desert. Bunche has proposed demilitarization of those points.

Dr. Weizmann Elected First Israel President

Jerusalem (Thursday), Feb. 17 (U.P.).—Dr. Chaim Weizmann, 74, was elected the first President of Israel this morning after a lengthy and stormy session of the Constituent Assembly.

Battle Rages Near Rangoon

Rangoon, Burma, Feb. 16 (AP).—Government troops and rebellious Karen tribesmen were locked in battle at Insein today.

Shell bursts punctuated the incessant heavy machine-gun fire and rattle of small arms in and around Insein, just 10 miles north of Rangoon.

The Karens, fighting to carve out an independent state, launched an offensive of their own in the midst of a big drive by government troops.

A Buddhist monastery changed hands three times. Government troops held it at last reports.

Disease and a railway strike added to the government's troubles.

Royall Denies Saying U. S. Will Quit Japan If War Comes

Army Secretary Kenneth Royall yesterday flatly denied he told American newsmen in Tokyo that the United States would pull its troops away from Japan in event of war with Russia.

He acknowledged, however, that he was the "high American official" who talked with United States correspondents in the Japanese capital last week. After the meeting, the reporters quoted a "high official" as stating American policy on Japan had changed and that we might withdraw in case of war.

Publication of their stories created something of an international furor, particularly in Australia and Japan.

Questioned at a Pentagon press conference, Royall declared: "On the contrary I have stated that we did not plan to change our forces in Japan and are prepared to meet all comers."

Before Royall's denial yesterday, Secretary of State Dean Acheson declared there has been no change in American policy on the occupation and defense of Japan and that no such change is planned.

He declared he specifically referred to the published reports from Tokyo that the United States considers Japan indefensible and would withdraw its troops in case of war with Russia. As far as he knows, Acheson said, there is no basis for such reports.

2 AP Correspondents Back Royall Statement

By Russell Brines

Tokyo (Thursday), Feb. 17 (AP).—Neither Army Secretary Royal nor any other high ranking American gave any indication while here that the United States intends to withdraw from Japan.

Royall said nothing in his February 6 press conference to indicate any such plans or suggest that such a proposal was being considered. What he did say merely raised this fundamental question:

Is the United States obligated to defend Japan?

The Secretary answered negatively in expressing his opinion.

General MacArthur has said: "Yes."

The point is moral, not tactical, at present. There is no indication that even this question entered into Royall's rejection of MacArthur's request for more ground troops in the Far East command.

No official transcript was kept of the one-hour conversation.

But the recollections of two Associated Press correspondents who attended—bulwarked by some other correspondents — supports Royall's statement that he did not say or intimate any withdrawal from Japan is contemplated.

UP Correspondent Sticks to Story

By Peter Kalischer

Tokyo (Thursday), Feb. 17 (U.P.). Army Secretary Kenneth Royall's denial that he ever said anything to American newsmen here about the withdrawal of United States troops from Japan in event of war with Russia does not conform with what he told 12 American correspondents February 6 at the United States Embassy.

I was one of the 12 he talked with.

While no transcript of the entire conference is available, copious notes taken by other correspondents and me back up our original stories that the United States was considering evacuation of Japan in case of war.

Connally, Vandenberg Back Hoffman on Full Aid Funds

By Marshall Andrews
Post Reporter

European Aid Administrator Paul G. Hoffman yesterday convinced two key members of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee that falling prices did not justify a cut in aid funds.

Hoffman explained to the committee, where pressure had been developing to cut the requested $5,580,000,000 program five per cent, that price declines had been taken into consideration in figuring Marshall Plan needs. He said "1949 contemplated parity prices" had been used in computing the amount asked.

Chairman Connally (D., Tex.) and Senator Vandenberg (R., Mich.), ranking minority member, both said they were convinced no cut was feasible.

Connally said he thought final determination of the amount should be left to the Appropriations Committee "rather than put you in a strait jacket" in the authorization bill.

Vandenberg said after the hearing that he had believed the sum should be reduced, but Hoffman's testimony had convinced him otherwise.

Under questioning by committee members, Hoffman explained that price reductions in the United States would have little or no effect on funds needed for European recovery.

Although Marshall Plan countries would pay less for what they bought here, he pointed out, they also would receive less for what they exported. Thus, he said, the difference in dollars between income and outgo would be unaffected.

Treasury Secretary Snyder earlier asked the committee to drop the original requirement that recipient countries take part of their aid in loans and make the full amount a direct appropriation. The aid administrator, he contended, should be authorized to determine, with advice from the National Advisory Council, when and how much aid should be on a loan basis.

Yesterday morning, the joint "Watchdog Committee" set up in the aid act, gave the Economic Cooperation Administration 24 hours to make peace with United States insurance firms. The alternative, said Chairman McCarran (D., Nev), would be "drastic legislative action."

Representatives of marine insurance firms had complained to the committee that the ECA policy of not allotting funds to cover insurance on cargoes was driving them out of business. Under the policy, insurance on ECA cargoes is paid by the recipient nation through insurance companies of its own nationals.

ECA Comptroller E. L. Kohler said the policy was set up to cut operating costs, and asked Congress to state its own policy in the matter.

Philadelphia Strike Talks Broken Off

Philadelphia, Feb. 16 (AP).—Michael J. Quill, president of the CIO-Transport Workers Union, said tonight that negotiations in the Philadelphia transit strike have broken off.

The transport union head's statement came after an authoritative source reported the two factions were closer together.

"We believe the Philadelphia Transportation Co. management has acted in bad faith," Quill said as he came out of the conference room. "This means we are walking out on negotiations because these negotiations are a sham. . . . We intend to continue this strike indefinitely.

"They are trying to blackjack the public into a fare raise. The mediators have done the best they could, both Federal and State. Their efforts have been of no avail. In our judgment the management's negotiators have no authority to act."

William C. MacReynolds, speaking for the company's negotiating committee, said:

"The company's position remains the same, the offer on the wage scale being 3 cents and the union insisting on 17."

MacReynolds offered no comment on Quill's announcement that negotiations had broken off.

Earlier in the day, an authoritative source said the two factions were only 10 cents apart.

Meantime there was no indication of settlement of the strike of 3500 Yellow Cab drivers, who walked out yesterday.

The source, who would not be quoted, said the transit workers had lowered their wage demands to 15 cents an hour and the PTC had increased its offer to 5 cents.

The transit workers originally asked 25, then dropped to 20 and again to 17 cents. The company first offered a 2-cent-an-hour boost and then increased its offer to 3 cents.

During the day roving gangs beat up three motorists, challenging them in the belief they were hauling passengers for fare. Each of the motorists, one of whom was hurt seriously, denied the accusations.

Spokesmen for both the transit workers and cab drivers said they had no knowledge of any violence on the part of their men.

Investigating detectives said that 33-year-old Clair Reed, who is unemployed, picked up a group of sailors and took them to the Navy Yard at 3 a. m. Two carloads of men overtook him. A heavy object was heaved through the car window, striking Reed in the eye. He faces loss of his sight.

Groups of men, the detectives said, pulled James Jackson, 39, and Emmanuel A. Taylor, 30, from their cars, stoned them and beat them up. Neither is in serious condition.

Police said there was no clew to the identity of the assailants.

Business and industry felt the full impact of the tieup for the first time.

Chamber of Commerce economists reported that through noon today Philadelphia business had sustained a loss "in excess of 31 million dollars." This represents a loss of 10 million dollars for each regular working day.

Anti-Red Pledge

Oath Insults Labor Chiefs, Morse Says

By The Associated Press

Senator Morse (R., Oreg.) yesterday called it "an insult to loyal labor leaders" to require them to swear they are not Communists. He suggested instead that everyone seeking any service from a Government agency be required to state his loyalty to the United States.

Morse's attack on the Taft-Hartley law's non-Communist affidavit provision came at Senate Labor Committee hearings on the Administration's labor bill. That measure would replace the T-H law with a modified Wagner Act.

There were these other developments at yesterday's session:

1. An official of an employers' group vigorously defended the closed shop, which requires that employers hire only union members. The Taft-Hartley law bans the closed shop. Paul M. Geary, executive vice president of the National Electrical Contractors Association, told the committee the ban "impairs the employers' right of contract" and strikes at union security.

2. William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, testified that if the Government had jailed John L. Lewis in the 1948 coal strike, the miners "would have stood like the Rock of Gibraltar and never moved."

Green, who is opposed to the use of court orders to block critical strikes, said the injunction the Government got in the coal case last year under the T-H law actually had nothing to do with ending the strike. He added that the miners went back to the pits only after the mine owners "met their duty."

3. Walter Munro, a former Federal Conciliation commissioner, urged that the Conciliation Service be put back under the Labor Department. The Taft-Hartley law made it an independent agency. Munro spoke out against White House intervention in labor disputes, saying the White House is "the worst place in the world" to try for a settlement.

4. Richard Gray, president of the AFL's building and construction department, said Robert N. Denham, general counsel of the National Labor Relations Board, has gone far beyond the intent of Congress in applying the T-H law to the construction industry. Senator Taft (R., Ohio) said he agreed with Gray that it never was contemplated that the industry was in interstate commerce and under the act.

5. William T. Gossett, vice president and general counsel of the Ford Motor Co., opposed lifting the Taft-Hartley ban against compelling firms to bargain with foremen's unions. Gossett said Ford had given a foremen's union a try and now "we know from actual experience that unionization of supervisors is unworkable."

House Votes 10 Million More For Administration of Idle Pay

The House yesterday voted an additional 10 million dollars to administer unemployment compensation and State employment offices.

The hike was asked by the Appropriations Committee to meet an "acute" unemployment problem, particularly in larger cities.

The House vote came in boosting to 10 milion dollars the $4,987,000 asked by President Truman in the deficiency appropriation bill.

Representative Earl Wilson (R., Ind.) said "the Truman depression is on," and claimed the election of a Republican Congress would have prevented it.

Representative Frank B. Keefe (R., Wis.) said unemployment is "growing critical all over the country" and that layoffs became "very acute" in December.

Meanwhile, the Bureau of Labor Statistics reported that manufacturing plants laid off 22 of every 1000 workers in December. The rate of dismissals was the highest for the month since prewar December, 1939.

There had been only 14 lay-offs for each 1000 workers in November, so the increase was about 60 per cent in one month.

However, the same plants—where the turnover is active—hired workers at the rate of 26 per 1000. There had been 39 per 1000 hired in November, and the drop in December was the fifth in successive months below levels of December, 1939.

There were fewer persons quitting their jobs—17 in December compared to 22 per 100 in November—but the drop was not enough to offset the climb in lay-offs.

As a result, the bureau said, total "separations"—persons leaving the payroll for any reason—increased to 43 per 1000 workers. This includes deaths, retirements, etc.

During the war there was not a normal turnover of help, but the bureau saw a trend to return to the prewar year-end pattern of higher layoffs, fewer quits and lower hiring.

The bureau thinks this indicates "that industry has caught up with many of the demand backlogs and that some leveling off of production schedules will continue until sustained levels are determined."

CHOSEN—The Artists' League of America yesterday in New York issued these selections of the "ten most perfect features in the world" belonging to outstanding women: Lips—Movie Actress Rita Hayworth. Nose—Mme. Chiang Kai-shek. Legs—Movie Actress Linda Darnell. Ears—Miss Margaret Truman. Chin—Model Candy Jones. Eyes—Princess Margaret Rose of Britain. Cheek bones—Movie Actress Jane Russell. Shoulders—Singer Margaret Phelan. Forehead—The Duchess of Windsor. Thighs—Swimmer Esther Williams. The selections were based on a poll of members of the league, consisting of many of the Nation's leading artists. In the lips division, Miss Hayworth ran far ahead of her nearest competitor, Ingrid Bergman, on the basis that "the test of perfect lips lies not in lines, but in the reaction of the opposite sex." "The less obtrusive a nose, the more perfect it is," said league executive secretary Daniel Koerner, and Mme. Chiang Kai-shek scored because "her nose blends perfectly with her other facial features." Movie Actress Ava Gardner was a close second in the legs division, and Actress Faye Emerson (Mrs. Elliott Roosevelt) was second in chins. "Softness is the test of perfect eyes," was the comment on Princess Margaret Rose. Miss Truman's ears were chosen "since they are replica of those found in Greek sculpture"

Democrat Liberal Wing Splits on Antifilibuster Procedure

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

A split in the liberal wing of the Democratic Party over the form and handling of Senate antifilibuster measures developed yesterday.

Americans for Democratic Action, which generally speaks for the New Deal element, called on Senate Democratic Leader Scott W. Lucas (Ill.) to support majority vote cloture.

ADA hit Lucas's proposal to give important Administration measures right of way over Senate rules reform as an "alarming indication of retreat on the whole civil rights program."

"We are frankly appalled at the intimation that an off-and-on filibuster may be allowed to continue throughout the entire session," said ADA Executive Committee Chairman Joseph L. Rauh, jr., in a letter to Lucas.

"This suggestion implies that the Democrats have conceded on even the fight to adopt the Rules Committee report for a two-thirds (cloture) rule."

Lucas told newsmen he had not yet received the letter and declined comment.

The Senate Rules Committee report recommending a tightened two-thirds rule to cut off future filibusters will be presented to the Senate today by Rules Chairman Carl Hayden (D., Ariz.).

Hayden is expected to announce when he will move to call it up for Senate action. Hayden's committee rejected a majority vote cloture amendment by Senate Democratic Whip Francis J. Myers (D., Pa.), but Myers is expected to renew it on the Senate floor.

Senator Hubert H. Humphrey (D., Minn.), acting national chairman of ADA, announced he will make a fight on the floor for majority vote cloture.

The Senate Republican Policy Committee, which has been plugging for early Senate action to restrict filibusters, meanwhile, discussed several possible floor developments on cloture without reaching any fixed conclusions.

GOP Steering Chairman Robert A. Taft (Ohio) said he hoped the proposed two thirds rule can be called up on the floor February 28. Republicans themselves may move to call it up if Democrats fail to move by that day, but Taft said there was no policy committee decision.

Although several Republican Senators are on record for majority vote cloture, Taft pointed out that the GOP policy committee is committed to the two thirds rule.

Battle Backs Byrd Regime, Miller Says

Richmond, Va., Feb. 16 (AP).—Francis Pickens Miller, a candidate for nomination for Governor in the August Democratic primary, declared today Senator John S. Battle, another candidate, has made it clear he "intends to perpetuate the rule of the Byrd machine."

Miller, who is from Charlottesville, issued his statement here in reply to Battle's declaration yesterday in which the latter listed nine "real issues" in the campaign. Battle also charged Miller with making a "vicious attack" on those who have succeeded Senator Byrd as Governor.

Referring to his speech of February 10 in which he said the sole issue of the campaign is "are we or are we not going to have a free society in this commonwealth?" Miller said:

"I challenged the other candidates to make their positions clear on this issue. One of the candidates has just replied. Senator Battle makes it abundantly clear that as far as he is concerned he intends to perpetuate the rule of the Byrd machine. Consequently his candidacy offers no hope for a free society."

In his prepared statement given the press, Miller described Battle's declaration as "the same old stuff."

"We have heard that record played many times before, and we know that it bears the label 'his master's voice.'"

He predicted that the people of Virginia "will decide on August 2 whether they share Senator Battle's satisfaction with things as they are," and added:

Today Miller became the first of the four announced candidates for Governor to pay his qualifying fee for the primary. In accordance with the law he deposited the necessary $300—2 per cent of the Governor's annual salary which goes from $10,000 to $15,000 next year—with State Auditor J. Gordon Bennett. The fee was relayed to State Treasurer Jesse W. Dillon.

'Per Head' Rental To Family Banned

Landlords can't charge rent to a family unit "by the head" in order to collect more money, it was ruled in Municipal Court yesterday.

According to testimony before Judge Frank H. Myers, when George W. Gates, 30, his wife, Juanita, and her daughter, Barbara, 13, rented an apartment in July, they were required to sign separate leases as individuals.

Landlord Jacob W. Block said he believed that arrangement was a permissible alternative to him under the rent law when they moved into the house he operates at 1457 Fairmount st. nw.

$17.50 Bigger Yield

The ceiling on the Gates' three-room apartment was $50 for a "unit rate," and $22.50 a person on an individual rate, it was testified. The Gates' rent thus came to $67.50 a month. In addition, they gave a lump "security deposit" of $32.50.

Block started eviction proceedings in November. He charged they had failed to pay rent since their first payment and that in August Mrs. Bates gave birth to a baby which was not covered by a rent agreement.

Judge Myers ruled the Gates a family unit and could not be charged rent individually.

Adjustment and Fine

He ordered Block to pay double the rent charged for July over the unit rate of $50, ruled the "security deposit" illegal and returnable at double that rate, and in addition fined Block $50 for failing to provide proper maintenance, and assessed him $75 for the Gates' attorney's fees, plus court costs.

The Gates were directed to repay the $150 thus due them from Block toward the four months' rent they owe at $50 a month.

Tenant Wins Award Of $594 From Landlord

An award of $594 was ordered paid to Frederick Peters, 716 Pleasant ct. sw., by his landlord yesterday in Municipal Court.

Judge Frank M. Myers ruled that mere paying of the electric bill by the landlord, Alfred D. Cummings, 3733 Bladensburg rd. ne., was not sufficient justification for boosting monthly rentals from the $21.50 ceiling to $40. Peters had paid an excess of $383 since 1946, it was contended by his attorney, Mrs. Ellen Lee Park. Cummings claimed in addition to paying the light bill he had made extensive repairs.

Judge Myers found that Cummings had "arbitrarily" set the rent at $40 without ever applying for a new ceiling and that while Cummings was paying the monthly electricity bill on the five-room dwelling, he had not in fact made any repairs.

Byrd Suggests Md. U. Fiscal Liaison Group

By Phillip J. Austensen
Post Reporter

Annapolis, Md., Feb. 16.—Creation of a special liaison committee of the General Assembly to keep legislators informed on University of Maryland fiscal subjects was suggested today by President H. C. Byrd of the university.

Dr. Byrd appeared at a hearing of the Ways and Means Committee of the House to oppose passage of a proposed bill that would require detailed statements on budget requests from the university.

Dr. Byrd presented the committee with typewritten copies of the requests and pointed out that details are presented to the Governor and the Board of Public Works as required by law.

After taking the Baltimore Sun to task for publication of "misleading" editorials and news stories on the fiscal affairs of the university, Dr. Byrd said that he would be delighted to accept a comparison of the budget procedure of any State university in the country with that of Maryland.

He told the committee that he intends to present detailed information to the members of the Legislature in the future and that copies of all budget increases asked will be in the hands of legislators within two weeks. He also left a dozen copies of the detailed university budget for the present year, on which increases for next year will be based.

The university budget for the fiscal year beginning July 1 is $13,145,140, which is approximately $775,335 more than the present year's budget.

At another hearing before the same committee, a group of Maryland business men appeared to protest the increase in the State corporation income tax from 1½ per cent to 4 per cent in the face of an expected surplus of 25 million dollars.

Among the group was a delegation from the Silver Spring Board of Trade, headed by former Delegate James W. Gill, who acted as spokesman. Gill said the little business corporations in the suburban area must face competition with Washington with a sales tax handicap and that they feel it is discrimination to increase their tax while individual income taxes are being lowered.

Landlords Plea

25% Raise Over Mid-'47 Rents Asked

By The Associated Press

A New York landlord asked Congress yesterday to authorize a mandatory 25 per cent rent boost over mid-1947 levels.

Russell

William E. Russell, chairman of the Metropolitan Fair Rent Committee of New York, told the House Banking Committee such an increase is necessary if landlords are to get a "reasonable return" of 6 per cent on their investments.

Russell joined with John E. Owen, president of the National Apartment Owners Association, in repudiating the idea of mass eviction of tenants if rent controls are continued. Some landlords, notably in Tulsa, Okla., have threatened to oust all tenants and close down their rental properties unless controls are abolished.

Owen told the House group: "We are not for mass evictions. We think evictions should be only for legal reasons."

Similarly, Russell said his organization, which claims to represent about one seventh of all housing under Federal rent control, does not indorse "any action involving wholesale evictions nor shall we resort to it."

Proposes One-Year Extension

Russell proposed a one-year extension of rent controls with a 25 per cent hike over June 30, 1947, levels and other changes to make the law "fair and equitable."

The New Yorker attacked the present law on the ground that it fails to give property owners a fair return on the value of their property "or even protection against loss."

"It seems that the unrealistic operation of the law rather than the property owners is responsible for making it desirable or necessary for owners to get out of the business of rental housing."

Hearings to End Monday

Chairman Spence (D., Ky.) told the landlords that open hearings will be ended after next Monday's session. The committee then will try to agree on a bill. The measure is expected to be ready late next week for debate in the House.

Representative Cole (R., Kans.) vigorously protested Spence's announcement, declaring that dozens of landlords are still waiting to be heard.

Several committeemen said privately that the Administration may get some of its requests, but they predicted that the law will be extended only 15 months to June 30, 1950, instead of two years.

President Truman has asked for a two-year extension, stiffer penalties for violations, and a general broadening and strengthening of rent controls.

Silver, Neumann Quit in Jewish Fund Dispute

New York, Feb. 16 (NYHT.).—Resignations of Dr. Abba Hillel Silver as chairman of the American section of the Jewish Agency Executive, and of Dr. Emanuel Neumann, president of the Zionist Organization of America, as a member of the executive, were announced today.

The resignations, submitted last Tuesday, were the culmination of a long-standing fight which started in the United Jewish Appeal, central Jewish fund raising agency in this country, and eventually permeated the organization here and in Israel.

Before Israel became a state, the American Zionist and non-Zionist Jews contributed to Palestine and had a voice in the spending of the money. When Israel achieved statehood, a strong feeling developed that Israel, alone, should determine how the money was to be spent. The Zionists argued that as contributors their views should be considered and respected.

Road Zones Hearing Is Today

Annapolis, Md., Feb. 16 (Spl.).—Public hearing on a bill to give the Maryland State Roads Commission zoning authority for 200 feet on each side of roads with a daily vehicular traffic count of 1000 will be held at 10:30 a. m. Thursday by the House Judiciary Committee in the State House here.

A delegation from Montgomery County is expected to attend the hearing to oppose the bill, which was one of those offered by the legislative council. The Montgomery County Farm Bureau is opposed but the Montgomery County Civic Federation has delayed action.

The Prince Georges County delegation announced a hearing will be held Tuesday at 8 p. m. on granting authority to the City of Hyattsville to construct street improvements without securing consent of 51 per cent of the abutting property owners. Another hearing will be held Tuesday at 9 p. m. on a bill to extend the limits of Mount Rainier to include the Queenstown apartment project.

Four Prince Georges County bills were introduced into the house today by members of that county's delegation.

They call for:

Increasing the salaries of the mayor to $1200 and members of the town council of Mount Rainier to $600, provided town voters at the regular May town election approves the increase.

Providing a referendum May 24 to annex territory contiguous to the town of Cottage City to compose a Fifth Ward in an area next to the District of Columbia and the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad.

Requiring approval of the county engineer before plats for subdivisions may be recorded.

Authorizing Laurel town officials to regulate signs on streets, sidewalks and public property.

Anders R. Lofstrand, jr., chairman of the Montgomery County delegation announced he plans to introduce a bill to eliminate the personal property tax on farm implements and business inventories. The Silver Spring Board of Trade had advocated abolition of the tax.

N. Y. Jurors Drawn From 3 Districts

Merry Menagerie—By Walt Disney

"It's the wolf-in-sheep's clothing idea, with a new slant!"

New York, Feb. 16 (AP).—A Government witness testified today at the trial of 11 high U. S. Communists that no Federal jurors were drawn during 1947 and 1948 from the voting lists for six Harlem and lower East Side Assembly districts.

During the same period, the witness testified under defense cross-examination, 7825 jury notices were sent to persons whose names were taken from the voting lists for three Assembly districts in the wealthy, so-called "silk stocking district" of Manhattan.

The witness was Joseph F. McKenzie, Federal jury clerk here, who is the first person called by the prosecution to disprove defense claims that Federal juries are "rigged" in favor of the rich against the poor and members of minority groups, including Jews and Negroes.

ALP Request Granted

Because of this alleged discrimination, the defense argues, the indictment against the 11 members of the Communist Party's national committee should be voided. They are charged with conspiring to advocate overthrow of the U. S. Government.

Meanwhile, Federal Judge Harold R. Medina granted the left-wing American Labor Party permission to intervene in the trial by filing a brief as "a friend of the court." The State-wide party is headed by Representative Vito Marcantonio.

The ALP had asked to intervene, saying it was vitally interested in the outcome of the defense's challenge to the jury system.

Defense Request Denied

Later, Medina denied a defense request that all questionnaires filled out by prospective jurors be impounded so that the defense could determine how many of them had a certain penciled symbol marked on them.

The request was made by Defense Lawyer George W. Crockett, Detroit Negro, after McKenzie testified that the letter "C" with a circle around it in pencil on a questionnaire he received from a prospective juror meant the man was a Negro.

Forty jury-qualifying questionnaires, 30 of which bore the penciled notation, were placed in evidence by the defense.

Tried Rector 'Not Hopeful'

Garden City, Long Island, Feb. 16 (NYHT).—A secret "trial" of the Rev. Dr. John Howard Melish came to an end here today, with Dr. Melish telling reporters: "I feel very cheerful but not very hopeful."

The two-day closed hearing here was before the bishop's standing committee of the Protestant Episcopal Diocese of Long Island. The eight-man committee was considering a petition submitted by the vestry of the Holy Trinity Church in Brooklyn, asking that Dr. Melish be ousted as rector because of the "outside activities" of his son, the Rev. William Howard Melish, assistant rector. These activities include chairmanship of the National Council of American-Soviet friendship, which has been classed as a subversive organization by Attorney General Tom Clark.

Bogley to Halt Shopping Center Pending Ruling

Samuel E. Bogley, a Bethesda real estate man, promised yesterday to hold up a proposed $75,000 Montgomery County shopping center until pending litigation over the project is settled.

The pledge was made at a Montgomery County Circuit Court conference on a suit brought by nine Bethesda home owners, which seeks to obtain a reversal of rezoning action which cleared the way for the project.

Plaintiffs in the suit claim a four-fifths vote of the former county commission was necessary in zoning cases opposed by 20 per cent of the immediately adjacent property owners. Only three county commissioners voted favorably when the zoning was approved.

Miss Bentley Appears Before Grand Jury

New York, Feb. 16 (AP).—Miss Elizabeth T. Bentley, self-admitted former courier for a Communist spy ring, appeared today before the Federal spy-hunting grand jury here.

Miss Bentley was not subpenaed, it was learned, but went before the grand jury voluntarily to describe her activities as a member of the ring.

She testified several times before the preceding grand jury which last December 15 returned a two-count perjury indictment against Alger Hiss, former State Department official.

stuck tighter and tighter together—every time someone was shot, we stuck all the more together."

"Don't you know," Laughlin thundered, taking a stride toward the witness, "that soldiers like yourself—hundreds and thousands of them have written that she did good work and aided them?"

As Prosecutor Kelley rose to object, Laughlin, turning toward Federal Judge Edward M. Curran, stated: "In view of the testimony of this witness, we believe we are entitled to summon soldiers to testify as to the good work she did."

Judge Curran told the attorney to "lay the proper foundation" for such testimony "in affidavit form."

"What name did you know the defendant by? Laughlin demanded of McCarthy as he resumed cross-examination.

"We knew her only as Axis Sally and The Berlin Bitch," the witness drawled contemptuously.

Both McCarthy and a later witness, James B. Caparell, 31, of Queens, N. Y., told how Miss Gillars and Prof. Otto Koischwitz were forced to leave camp taunted by "vile" names after the soldiers refused to be interviewed unless shown official United States authorization, which they could not get.

McCarthy said Miss Gillars sought to interview the men in a barracks at Stalag 2-B, a prison camp near Hammerstein.

"She asked for an American cigarette. We gave her one. A little later she asked for another and in a short while a Chesterfield carton was passed in from the outside and handed to her. She was very pleased until she opened it. . . ."

"Why?" asked Kelley.

"Because it contained horse manure!" McCarthy said, grinning.

Caparell said he sent Koischurtz and an American medical captain to his (Caparell's) regimental commander, imprisoned in another part of the camp for official authorization to interview troops.

In the meantime, Caparell said, Miss Gillars told him 'I am an American like you are and I am here to help you.'"

The witness testified he retorted: "If you are an American like me how is it you are running free in Germany while I am locked up behind barbed wire?"

According to Caparell, Miss Gillars answered that she was "an idealist."

Boy Born Earless Will Grow a Pair In His Stomach

Pittsburgh, Feb. 16 (AP).—Eight-year-old Jimmy Meadors of Hartstown, Pa., is going to grow a pair of ears in his stomach.

Jimmy was born without ears. Now doctors are going to provide what nature forgot.

Thursday he will undergo the first in a series of six to eight operations in Children's Hospital. Dr. S. M. Dupertuis, a plastic surgeon, is in charge. The process will take two years.

Cartilage will be removed from Jimmy's ribs and molded into the shape of ears. The "ears" will then be placed in the boy's abdominal cavity for a period of time to foster tissue growth.

Later, they will be transplanted to the head where they will function as real "live" ears.

Jimmy can hear normally now as he has normal auditory canals and ear drums.

Public Dump Site Sought

Fairfax County—which lacks a county dump—is overrun with people who deposit their trash along public highways and vacant property, the Board of Supervisors was told yesterday.

The trash-depositors come from Fairfax, Alexandria, Arlington, and even Washington, Fairfax Police Chief Carl R. McIntosh informed the board.

When police arrest them for violating a county ordinance, he explained, they are unable to tell violators where to dump their trash since Fairfax has no public dump facilities.

The board appointed a three-man committee to find a suitable public dump site, probably on county-owned land on Telegraph rd. at Cameron Run.

In its meeting at the County Court House, the board authorized employment of a field assessor to make a door-to-door survey for personal property tax and State income tax purposes.

County Treasurer John W. Ferguson said he would designate Walter Buckley, presently Deputy Commissioner of Revenue, for the field assessor post.

Montgomery Assessments Attacked in Court Action

A lawsuit which would drastically affect Montgomery County's tax structure and "open the door" to endless litigation by property owners was aired yesterday in Montgomery County Circuit Court in Rockville.

Filed by owners of Bethesda business district properties worth more than two million dollars, the action attacks legality of property assessments in Montgomery County.

It has been described as "extremely serious and important to the State of Maryland" by Assistant Attorney General Richard W. Case, of Maryland, who represents the four groups of defendants. These are the Montgomery County Council, the deposed County Commissioners, the county assessment supervisor, Wilton T. Allen, and the State Tax Commission.

Various Infractions Charged

Listing several grounds, the plaintiffs contend their property assessments were arrived at by an illegal mathematical formula, that the supervisor of assessments failed to make a return on the levy before it went into effect and the County Commissioners also failed to adopt a formal resolution placing the assessments on the tax books.

Attorneys also said the proposed assessments had not been advertised as was required and that authorities had not conformed to State law requiring establishment of five districts and five classes of property for assessment purposes.

Discrimination Alleged

In addition, it was claimed the present failure to assess all commercial and industrial property in the same year is "discriminatory."

Associate Judge Stedman Prescott disqualified himself because his brother, William H. Prescott, a Bethesda real estate man, is one of the plaintiffs.

Dyna-Mighty power for Buicks up to 12 years old

GET IT IN 2 DAYS
TAKE 12 MONTHS TO PAY

Buick REPLACEMENT Power

PUT this new Fireball "Dynaflash" eight under the bonnet of your Buick—and hang onto your hat!

Like magic, the years of engine wear are gone. Flashing new life takes the place of tired power—and mounting garage bills! It's like driving a new car again.

And there's no waiting. These new engines, fresh off the factory production line, are in stock now—can be mounted and running sweetly in your Buick in two working days. They'll fit any Buick, 1937 model or later.

Price? It's surprisingly low—in the neighborhood of a ring-and-rebore job—and time payments, if you wish, will even keep it down to a few dollars a month.

How about looking into it—this week?

Alexandria Jurors Score Houseboats

The Alexandria grand jury yesterday met in special session and made three recommendations to the Corporation Court dealing with health and safety in the city and recruiting of policemen.

The jury recommended:

1. Inspection by city fire, building and health officials of an old three-story building at 208 King st. "because of a possible health and fire menace."

2. Removing or closing certain houseboats on the Potomac River and along Hunting Creek.

3. Changing the present policy of recruiting policemen from city residents to allow hiring men living within 5 miles of Alexandria in Arlington or Fairfax Counties, provided they move into the city within a year.

Judge William P. Woolls said he would refer the recommendations to the proper city departments.

The second and third floors of the King st. building are divided into four apartments renting for $10 to $16 a month, according to Sylvern Laupheimer, 117 S. Lee st., husband of the owner. A juror said the report referred to these living quarters and not to a mattress factory on the first floor.

Laupheimer admitted the building was not in good condition, but said "poor people have got to live somewhere."

One houseboat about which the jury was particularly concerned is beached at the foot of King st. Police said they have had a great deal of trouble there with gambling, drinking and fighting. Another, located on the north side of the Route 1 causeway over Hunting Creek, was the scene of a killing about two years ago, police said. Commonwealth's Attorney Howard W. Smith, jr., said he has already instructed police to clear persons out of troublesome houseboats.

Form of Test For Loyalty Is Opposed

The National Citizens Conference on Civil Liberties closed its two-day meeting here yesterday with a statement opposing continuation of the Government's loyalty review program "in its present form."

"Its demonstrated undesirable effects in the way of thought control and demoralization of Government employes far outweigh its presumed contributions to American security," the statement said.

Merely an Expression

E. Raymond Wilson, chairman of the Civil Liberties Clearing House and presiding officer at the meeting, said the statement "is not binding" on the some 60 organizations represented at the convention. Rather, it is an expression of the "sense of the meeting" and agreement by the majority, he said.

The conference recommended that "the investigation of Government employes should be strictly confined to those in positions genuinely affecting the national security."

"We firmly believe that the procedure by which loyalty of such employes is determined must conform to basic and time-tested procedures of fair trial, including specifically the right of cross-examination, confrontation of witnesses and impartial inquiry," the statement said.

Modification Urged

It urged that the loyalty program, if continued, be modified "by tightening its provisions" so that persons are not judged on "guilty by association" but rather by "overt acts."

The Conference also urged loyalty review boards to make public "a summary of the evidence in cases leading to discharge," while safeguarding the identity of persons involved, "so that the American people may be able to evaluate the records and standards of the Loyalty Review Board itself."

Snyder Outlines Federal Lawyers' Responsibilities

Secretary of the Treasury John W. Snyder outlined the two-fold responsibilities of Government lawyers to their agencies and to the public at large, yesterday afternoon at the meeting of the Federal Bar Association at the Annapolis Hotel.

Secretary Snyder was introduced by Special Assistant to the Attorney General James E. Palmer, jr., vice president of the association. Palmer announced establishment of a branch of the association in San Francisco with a membership of 200. The branch will become permanent May 1.

Senator Estes Kefauver (D., Tenn.) and Archibald Macdonald Gordon, counselor of the British Embassy, were honor guests. At the speakers' table were eight former presidents of the association together with the officers and Joseph J. O'Connell, jr., chairman of the Civil Areonautics Board, and Thomas Lynch, general counsel of the Treasury Department.

The association amended its constitution recently to admit former Government attorneys to become members on an associate basis.

'Sonny' Thomas, Takoma Park Boy, Dies of Leukemia

Frank "Sonny" Thomas, 5½-year-old leukemia victim, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank B. Thomas, 1108 Linden ave., Takoma Park, died yesterday at Children's Hospital.

"Sonny's" death at 5:30 p. m. came just three days after he received a thrilling visit from his cowboy hero, Gene Autry, who stopped in at the hospital between shows at the Uline Arena.

Ten blood transfusions, plus drug injections, were given the boy, but failed to prevent his death from the dread blood ailment.

"Sonny" was the Thomas' only child. His father is a machinist for the National Cancer Institute.

U. N. Vote Due Today On 'Slave Labor' Probe

Lake Success, Feb. 16 (AP).—The United Nations today failed to reach a vote on a U. S. proposal for inquiring into slave labor conditions in Russia as portrayed in testimony presented here by the American Federation of Labor from former inmates of labor camps.

The Economic and Social Council was expected to vote some time Thursday on the proposal.

Mrs. Biddle Asks District Court For Citizenship

Mrs. Anthony Joseph Drexel Biddle, 33, yesterday applied for American citizenship here.

Naturalization papers were filed in her behalf in District Court. They cited that she was of Canadian birth, and before her marriage July 11, 1946, to Colonel Biddle in Germany, she was Mrs. Margaret Suzanne Barbara A. Loughborough. Colonel Biddle was for many years in the foreign service.

Mrs. Biddle has a child, Anthony, jr., born November 30, 1948. She lives at 1314 28th st. nw.

Mrs. Biddle said she came to this country in 1939. She was, before her marriage, active in aiding displaced persons in Germany.

Young Zionists Group Plans Night of Games

The Washington Co-Ed Chapter of Masada, Young Zionists of America, will hold a Night of Games tonight at the B'nai Israel Synagogue, 14th and Emerson sts. nw.

Father Wins Supervised Custody

Mr. and Mrs. Billy W. Keith of Viers Mill Village, Md., yesterday were awarded custody of their 18-month-old son by Montgomery County Juvenile Court.

Juvenile Judge Alfred D. Noyes decreed the action at a custody hearing at Rockville with the provision that county welfare officials supervise care of the infant.

Keith last week was charged by county police with two counts of assault and battery on his son when the child was found to be suffering from a fractured leg and bronchial pneumonia.

Judge Noyes said he had also suggested the possibility of psychiatric treatment for the 24-year-old father but left the matter to the discretion of welfare officials.

3-Million ECA Loan To Britain Announced

The Economic Cooperation Administration yesterday announced a three-million-dollar loan to Britain. This is in addition to the 310-million-dollar credit previously granted.

The terms of the supplementary loan are the same as in the original credit. They call for an interest rate of two and one half per cent annually, beginning in 1952. Payments on the principal are to begin in 1956, and the loan matures in 1983.

Justice Department Gets Beating Case

cate if the sudden transfers of Det. Sergt. Roche and Plainclothesman Bonaccorsy from vice squad assignments was possibly linked with the beating of the cabbie by "unidentified white men."

Then, as reporters pursued their investigation of the case, Police Chief Robert J. Barrett on February 3 suddenly announced he thought Roche and Bonaccorsy responsible for the beating.

The same day, Barrett took occasion to observe he thought the victim had been persuaded not to identify the assailants.

Meanwhile, the victim continued to say he never thought the assailants were plainclothes policemen and declared he thought they were out-of-town men because their car was dusty and had clothes in the back.

Rowell was confronted by the two policemen named by Barrett and failed to identify them in a special line-up.

However, an Emergency Hospital nurse has told The Washington Post a man resembling Rowell appeared at the hospital the morning of January 14 and said he thought he had been beaten by policemen.

Another interesting angle of the case is the statement to reporters by Police Pvts. M. W. McClanahan and D. F. Reid that they passed by the scene of the beating just after the two assailants and victim left.

Reports Exchange of Words

A sharply conflicting statement was made to reporters for The Washington Post by a Thomas Circle drug store clerk who said he witnessed the beating.

Lee R. Thompson said he saw two uniformed policemen approach the two men in civilian clothes who were beating Rowell.

Thompson said he noticed the uniformed policemen exchange words with the assailants. After recognizing or learning the identity of the assailants, the two uniformed men walked away, he said.

One of the two uniformed men was McClanahan who often comes into the drug store and chats with Thompson, the clerk said.

Fleming Group To Confer With U.S. On Parade Taxes

Robert V. Fleming, president of the Riggs National Bank, yesterday was appointed chairman of a subcommittee of the Inaugural Committee to confer with representatives of the Bureau of Internal Revenue on the problem of taxes on admissions to inaugural functions.

Melvin D. Hildreth, chairman of the Inaugural Committee, said last night the committee will file a tentative return on February 28 to escape payment of penalty. No cash will accompany the return, he said, but a certified statement that a cash reserve has been set aside will be forwarded.

The committee will meet again on March 14, he said at which time final computation of the tax due is hoped to be completed.

Wholesale Food Index Advances

New York, Feb. 16 (AP).—The Dun & Bradstreet wholesale food index this week advanced for the first time in eight weeks. At $5.76, it was 1.8 per cent above last week's level which was a 28-month low.

The current figure was still 14.8 per cent below the $6.76 of a year ago. The index represents the total wholesale cost of a pound each of 31 foods in general use.

Foods which advanced this week included flour, wheat, corn, rye, oats, barley, hams, lard, butter, cottonseed oil, eggs, potatoes, steers, hogs and lambs.

Brunette Fights Purse Snatcher

The Washington Post

JEANNE MURPHY, 20, an advertising solicitor for The Washington Post, put up a violent but unsuccessful struggle Saturday night against a purse snatcher. The incident occurred in the hallway of the Detroit Apartments. In her struggle she fell to the floor, but the assailant grabbed the purse and ran. On her description a janitor was arrested. He is under $1000 bond for hearing in Municipal Court Friday

Woman Admits Fraud in Getting License to Wed

Richmond, Va., Feb. 16 (AP).—An 18-year-old expectant mother admitted in Hustings Court today she had made false statements to obtain her wedding license.

Stella May Rhoton Purcell, charged with perjury, pleaded guilty and was held pending a presentence report.

Judge John L. Ingram noted today that the girl is legally married to Willie E. Purcell, despite the false statements on the license.

Shortly after their marriage, Purcell, 33, was charged with miscegenation. This charge was dismissed in Police Court, when records were introduced showing Purcell was listed as a white man on Army discharge papers and on his birth certificate.

The couple obtained the marriage license December 31 from Deputy Clerk L. A. Schumann of Hustings Court. According to the indictment the woman said under oath she was 21, that both parents were dead and that she was a native of Kingsport, Tenn.

Her attorney told Judge Ingram today in court that the false statements were made because the girl was pregnant and was "desperate."

Police Closemouthed on Barnes Inquiry

By Ben Bradlee
Post Reporter

Police were close-mouthed yesterday about an investigation of the case of Gerald Barnes, who was arrested a few minutes after and a few blocks from where cab driver James Rowell was brutally beaten on January 14.

Superintendent of Police Robert J. Barrett referred all questions pertaining to the Barnes case to Inspector Robert S. Bryant, chief of detectives, the man who has been investigating the Rowell beating.

Referring to the status of the Barnes investigation, Bryant said only "I do not care to answer these questions at this time for reasons best known to myself."

45 Minutes After Beating

Barnes was arrested at 10th and V sts. nw. for keeping and selling whisky without a license by Officers James Roche and Angelo S. Bonaccorsy, approximately 45 minutes after the Rowell beating.

On February 3, Barrett told reporters that Roche and Bonaccorsy were "guilty as hell" of the Rowell beating "but I've got to prove it."

Barnes denies he sold whisky to the officers, and claims they fired three shots at him, beat him, and forced him to enter premises at 1003 V st. nw., after kicking down a door.

Denies Shots Were Fired

Roche yesterday denied that any shots had been fired during the arrest of Barnes, but declined to comment when asked if he had entered 1003 V st.

Barnes and his attorney, Wesley Williams, claim Barnes' arrest is a "cover-up for the Rowell beating."

Although Barnes' offense is alleged to have occurred January 14, at the request of the corporation counsel the case has twice been continued from February 4 to March 25.

Williams predicts the case will never come to trial, and has said he will ask for another continuance on March 25, if the Government does not.

Dr. Stewart to Speak

Sen. Johnston, Wife Hurt in Collision

Senator Olin D. Johnston (D., S. C.), chairman of the Senate Civil Service Committee, was one of four persons injured in a head-on collision yesterday near Mooresville, N. C.

Senator Johnston suffered only minor cuts, but his wife was admitted to a Mooresville hospital with three broken ribs. He said he would remain there until Mrs. Johnston could travel, the United Press reported.

En route from Washington to his Spartanburg home, Senator Johnston's automobile was struck by another car attempting to pass a trailer-truck on a hill, the State Highway Control reported.

The driver of the other car, identified as Frank Proctor, Enochsville, N. C., and a passenger, Carl Fleming, were treated at the hospital. Proctor was charged by the highway patrol with passing on a hill. Both cars were badly damaged.

Senator Johnston, former chairman of the Senate District Committee and a committee member at present, lives locally at 9506 East Stanhope rd., Kensington.

Dr. Hanson Leads Orchestra In Playing His Own Symphony

The National Symphony Orchestra was honored last night by the presence of Howard Hanson.

Hanson appeared in the dual role of composer and conductor, and in his turn honored the orchestra by the beauty with which he led it in a most excellently varied program. No man has done more for the cause of American composition than Dr. Hanson. In his years as head of the Eastman School of Music he has taught, encouraged, and displayed rising musical talent of our country, or at least of a large segment of it.

From the distant days when American music was not popular, to the present time when it is acknowledged throughout the country, Hanson has championed in the most effective ways possible, the creation and repetition in public, of native writing. Last night's program included his own fourth symphony, and a cogent Arioso for strings by Louis Mennini.

Hanson's most recent symphony is an impassioned requiem for his father. Its eloquence is not less because it is shorter than most symphonies. Lacking certain contemporary hallmarks in both rhythm and harmony, the symphony is persuasive in its abounding flow of melody, and a harmonic idiom made familiar in the symphonies of Jan Sibelius.

The quality of radiance enters into this work more often than into the music of the Finnish composer. This is true even of such passages as the scherzo, intended as a reminder of the final day of wrath. This movement depends upon sheer novelty of effect more than any of the others, and also says less. The symphony as a whole is a solid, honest work, and one which we and many others would no doubt enjoy hearing again.

Louis Mennini belongs to a musical family. His writing for strings puts him in that category which includes Barber, Diamond, and other younger Americans. It is successful both idiomatically and in emotional content.

Anatol Liadov's Enchanted Lake and Kikimora are among the happiest brevities in Russian music. The Lake is an idyl to rival Debussy's Faun any day. It is a pity we hear it so seldom. Hanson opened his program with a mellow suite from Dioclesian by Purcell, which he has scored in finest taste. The closing work was his own suite from Merry Mount, one of the few works by an American composer to enjoy anything like currency at the Metropolitan.

The orchestra played superbly for its guest leader at every point.

College Club to Dine

Regular Gas Ordered for U. S. Vehicles

By the United Press

The Bureau of Federal Supply has issued a directive forbidding Government agencies to use "premium grade" gasoline in standard automobiles and trucks, it was revealed yesterday.

The bureau ruled that regular grade motor fuel is good enough for Government vehicles.

Premium grade, or "high-test," gasoline usually sells for about two cents a gallon more than regular grade fuel.

The order was prepared by a technical committee of the Federal Specifications Board. The same agency recently instructed Government agencies not to change the crankcase oil in motor vehicles more often than every 4000 miles.

The directive said "tests on civilian and Army equipment" have shown that if a vehicle is properly maintained it can operate "satisfactorily and efficiently on regular grade gasoline.

If the engine of a Government automobile develops "knocks," it went on, the situation usually can be remedied by cleaning carbon from pistons.

When that doesn't work, it may be necessary to adjust the spark setting, the directive advised.

This Sermon Subject Should Fill the House

Philadelphia, Feb. 16 (AP).—The Rev. Earl C. Gross tacked up the title of his Sunday sermon at his First Baptist Church today—and it really made things hum for a while.

The title of his Sunday sermon is "House for Rent."

pulled the trigger. The rifle did not fire. The safety catch was on. Hunter began to run, with Harris in pursuit.

About a block away was the Howard Johnson Restaurant, at N. Washington and Montgomery sts. Hunter darted to the rear and the policeman followed. Hunter swung around and fired point-black at Harris.

Hunter then turned and fled and made his way back to Washington.

'Tip' Followed 10 Days

The above statement, police said, was made after Alexandria detectives convinced Hunter they had clearly tied him to the case.

For the past 10 days, Inspector Russell A. Hawes, chief of Alexandria detectives, and Detective Sergts. Thomas Woods and Francis Johnson of Alexandria had been pursuing a tip that originated in an underworld hangout in Richmond, Va.

Word reached police that someone had remarked in the Richmond hangout that "Pudey" was the one who killed the Alexandria policeman. Their investigation finally led them to Hunter.

Yesterday they told him they had conclusive evidence that he was in Alexandria the morning of the Harris shooting, that he was carrying two rifles and that he had tried to buy ammunition for the German-make rifle.

Police said when Hunter agreed to confess to the murder of the policeman he made one request, that his mother, Mrs. Pearl C. Hunter, be allowed to visit him at the jail. This request was granted and the mother visited him later.

D. C. Detectives Assist

Assisting in the questioning were two members of the Washington force, Detective Sergts. Paul Clarke aand Edwin Crandall of the robbery squad.

At the time of Hunter's arrest in connection with the Rosalia Theater murders, Alexandria detectives visited Washington and questioned him but he denied knowledge of the Harris slaying.

Police said when they finally got the tip leading to Hunter, they were convinced he was their man. A rifle had been used in the Rosalia Theater murders and an autopsy on the body of Harris showed he had been slain with a high-powered bullet, possibly from a rifle.

They said he laughed when he described how he carried the two rifles in his pockets and said: "You wouldn't believe it, would you?"

He told them he always carried a rifle "for protection," they added.

In the Rosalia Theater holdup last October 30, James E. Washington, 52, manager of the theater, of 1436 W st. nw., and Herbert Smith, 25, of 1224 7th st. nw., a bystander, were killed and three boys were slightly wounded.

Washington was slain with a rifle bullet as he was entering his car near the theater, at 218 F st. sw., with a zipper bag containing several hundred dollars in receipts.

The bandit exchanged gunfire with police before escaping.

Nations Give Pope Mindszenty Protest

Vatican City, Feb. 16 (AP).—Diplomats of 33 nations presented to Pope Pius XII today a message declaring the treason trial of Josef Cardinal Mindszenty an "offense to religious, personal and political liberty." They gave the Pope their sympathy.

From a gold, red and ivory throne, the Pope expressed his thanks.

Expressions by Pope

"In the midst of the conflict that opposes the defenders of a totalitarian regime against the champions of a concept of the state and society founded, according to the will of God, upon the dignity and the liberty of man," he said, "this historic audience faithfully reflects the thoughts and aspirations of by far the largest and most wholesome part of the community.

"It manifests the reaction of the Christian, or simply human, conscience against all oppression and all arbitrariness, against all denial of justice and all menace to sacred rights and principles."

Again today, as in two previous statements since a Hungarian people's court sentenced Cardinal Mindszenty last week to life imprisonment, the Pontiff avoided a direct condemnation of communism, the Communist government of Hungary or the Hungarian people.

"Fraternal Solidarity"

The Pope said the gathering of the diplomats "is not a verdict against the nations whose territories are the scene of such grave injuries to the elements rights of the human person."

Rather, he said, and he quoted from the diplomats' message, it is a "manifestation of homage, as well as fraternal solidarity, toward those who 'suffer because they defend their religious faith and the liberties it implies.'"

The diplomats, included representatives of most European countries, Lebanon, Egypt, Liberia, tiny San Marino, 15 Latin American nations, and the United States. Present also were Ambassadors of pre-Communist regimes in Poland and Lithuania, now representing governments in exile.

Conspicuously unrepresented were the nations behind the iron curtain.

Dr. Walsh Calls Case 'Manipulated Outrage'

The "manipulated outrage" against Cardinal Mindszenty is part of the present international movement of world communism, Dr. Edmund A. Walsh, S. J., vice president of Georgetown University, said last night.

Speaking to Georgetown alumni at Providence, R. I., Dr. Walsh said Moscow is "aware that the Marshall Plan is succeeding" and that the Church is "the last domestic obstacle" to total domination in the Satellite States.

The present Soviet attack on religion is not a new or special development, he said, but "rather a resumption of previous policy, a renewed attack in a very old campaign but with new tactics and smoother technique."

Progressive Party Leader Henry A. Wallace was singled out for censure by the Georgetown educator.

Wallace, he said, echoed the "Moscow school of jurisdiction—condemn first and then ascertain the facts"—when the former vice president recently said that, now that the cardinal had not been sentenced to death, the "full facts in the case" might be looked into."

Power Plant Funds Voted

ommended for grants to States to meet unemployment compensation costs. An amendment by Representative Rabaut (D., Mich.) boosted the total for this purpose to ten million.

Almost five solid hours of oratory preceded passage of the bill. It ranged from the Bonneville Power Administration in the Pacific Northwest to whether the ceiling of the House chamber in the national Capital should be repaired—and how.

As to the roof over their heads, the Congressmen decided after lengthy debate to leave it up to the Capitol architect. The bill contained $2,274,500 to finance renovating of the chamber.

TVA supporters on both the Republican and Democratic sides of the aisle claimed that the Tennessee Valley faces a power shortage in the next two or three years if a steam plant is not provided to supplement energy produced now by TVA hydro units. The steam plant is expected to cost 54 million dollars.

Representative Christopher (D., Mo.) said he would like to see the TVA expanded "and carried on up into my section so we can become a great industrial area."

Taber said the plant is not needed, and said taxpayers of the country "are paying for the subsidy being given to the people who use TVA power."

Representative Fenton (R., Pa.) called construction of the plant "another step toward State socialism."

An expected battle over whether top Reclamation Bureau executives should be engineers did not develop.

Representative Wadsworth (R., N. Y.) offered an amendment to extend a requirement voted by Congress last year that the reclamation commissioner and the bureau's regional directors must be engineers. The effect was to dismiss Commissioner Michael Straus and Regional Director Richard L. Boke from their jobs. Neither is an engineer.

Wadsworth's amendment was defeated 136 to 87.

These are the main money items in the bill:

Federal Security agency, $164,400,000; housing expediter, $4,800,000; Veterans Administration, $99,379,000; Agriculture Department, $10,734,500; Interior Department, $24,659,000; Army Engineers, $27,000,000, and Postoffice, $102,977,000.

Policy Stands, Acheson Says

ences in regard to the objectives which this Government is seeking to accomplish" by a North Atlantic treaty.

"We have been proceeding," he said, "on the basis of policies which have been clearly defined and which, I think, are well understood." These policies, he explained, were set forth in President Truman's inaugural address, in the Vandenberg resolution adopted by an overwhelming Senate vote last June 11, and in the unanimous report of the House Foreign Affairs Committee last summer.

"In conducting our discussions with other countries, we have taken as our guide these clear expressions of policy," he went on. He said he intended to continue "regular consultation" with senior members of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, and hoped to discuss the treaty with the full committee "in the near future."

He was asked whether his statement meant that the United States was not backing down, or "welshing," as some British newspapers headlined it earlier this week. Of course, he answered, it was implicit in his formal statement that there had been no change in American policy.

He also said the negotiators had not yet agreed on the duration of the treaty, which the Europeans originally wanted for 50 years and the State Department for 20 or less.

As to the secrecy that still shrouds most of the treaty draft, Acheson said: "I hope and expect that it will soon be possible to have public discussion on the basis of an actual text."

Northwest Rains Bring Flood Threat

By The Associated Press

Snow and wind still held the stage today in winter's grim drama of the Northwest. But a third villain, flood, stood in the wings.

Rising temperatures and a rainstorm moved across Washington into Idaho, bringing a series of snow avalanches in the Cascades.

Snowslides in the eastern Washington range set up the winter's worst blockade there, closing all three rail lines and the three most important highway passes.

Melting snow poured into the streams of Washington and northern Oregon where the Willamette River approached flood stage at Jefferson.

An inch of rain along the coast line of the two States added to the run-off problem. And there was new snow and the prospect of rain in Idaho.

Across the Continental Divide crews still worked in frigid temperatures to reopen snow-choked roads in North and South Dakota, Nebraska and Wyoming, as flood talk arose there, too.

In Omaha, Maj. Gen. Lewis A. Pick, head of the region's snow-fighting operation, said "I don't think it's possible to get out of this situation without some flooding."

A Fifth Army spokesman said wind had abated as a drift-piling factor Wednesday in all of the blizzard emergency area except southern Wyoming. Excellent progress in clearing roads was reported in the Dakotas and northwestern Nebraska.

In the Cascade Mountains, mountainside snow mantles 16 to 18 feet thick slipped into Snoqualmie, Blewett and Stevens passes, blocking those avenues to highway traffic. The only three railroads through the mountains were also cut off by snow slides.

Ex-Wife Appears At Alienation Trial

Charges Against Church Elder and Woman Dropped

Subornation of perjury charges against a church elder and a woman were nolle prossed yesterday in Municipal Court.

The defendants in the case were William S. Doleman, 56, of 801 Sligo pkwy., Takoma Park, Md., of the First Evangelical Christian Church, 401 Massachusetts ave. nw., and Mrs. Elizabeth Ford, 52, of 3755 Foote st. ne.

They had been accused of influencing Mary Holder, 15, of 1611 10th st. nw., to recant sexual assault charges on which the Rev. William Henry Powell of the Evangelical Christian Church, 710 N. Henry st., Alexandria, Va., was tried and subsequently acquitted.

In directing the nolle prosse, Assistant United States Attorney Oliver Dibble said, "The only evidence we have here is the testimony of Miss Holder, who on the District Court witness stand gave directly contrary evidence to that she gave the grand jury as to the Rev. Mr. Powell."

AMG Breaks Up Huge German Smuggling Ring

Frankfurt, Germany, Feb. 16 (U.P.). American military government officials claimed today they had cracked Germany's biggest post-war smuggling ring just as it was on the verge of a 20-million-dollar deal.

The gang was said to have forged licenses to import seven million pounds of food and 29 miles of suiting cloth into Bizonia.

One German and eight other persons have been arrested. The German has been arraigned. The other eight are out on bail.

Investigators broke up the ring when only 830,000 pounds of contraband food had filtered in.

If Stomach Gas or Sour Food Taste Robs You of Sleep

Here's How You May Help, Whether You Eat 500 Pounds or 2000 Pounds of Food In a Year

You can't feel cheerful, be happy and sleep well, if your stomach is always upset. As age advances the "old stomach" needs more help. The reason is this:

Everytime food enters the stomach a vital gastric juice must flow normally to break-up certain food particles; else the food may ferment. Sour food, acid indigestion and gas frequently cause a morbid, touchy, fretful, peevish, nervous condition, loss of appetite, underweight, restless sleep, weakness.

To get real relief you must increase the flow of this vital gastric juice. Medical authorities, in independent laboratory tests on human stomachs, have by positive proof shown that SSS Tonic is amazingly effective in increasing this flow when it is too little or scanty due to a non-organic stomach disturbance. This is due to the SSS Tonic formula which contains very special and potent activating ingredients.

Also SSS Tonic helps build-up non-organic, weak, watery blood in nutritional anemia—so with a good flow of this gastric digestive juice, plus rich red-blood you should eat better, sleep better, feel better, work better, play better.

Avoid punishing yourself with overdoses of soda and other alkalizers to counteract gas and bloating when what you so dearly need is SSS Tonic to help you digest food for body strength and repair. Don't wait! Join the host of happy people SSS Tonic has helped. Millions of bottles sold. Get a bottle of SSS Tonic from your drug store today. SSS Tonic helps Build Sturdy Health.

Baltimore Police Intensify Hunt for 3 Bank Robbers

Baltimore, Feb. 16 (AP).—All leaves were canceled today and the full force of the Baltimore detective bureau was thrown into a hunt for three stickup men who got $20,224 from a suburban bank yesterday.

No progress was reported in the search.

The Federal Bureau of Investigation, the State police, and the Baltimore County force were asked to participate in the investigation. All of Baltimore's 1600 patrolmen were given augmented descriptions of the three men and instructed to report any possible clue.

The armed trio popped into the Walbrook branch of the Union Trust Co. in northwest Baltimore yesterday morning just after it opened at 10 a. m.

'William Tell' Killing Defendant Acquitted

Bedford, Pa., Feb. 16 (AP).—Clark Morgan of Cumberland, Md., was free today of any charges of killing a tavern keeper in a game of "William Tell" with a gun and a whisky glass.

The 34-year-old Marylander was acquitted yesterday of manslaughter charges by a jury that deliberated nearly four hours.

Morgan admitted shooting Thomas B. Leary on February 4, while trying to shoot a whisky glass on Leary's head.

VFW Officers Call Pension Bill 'Betrayal'

Ranking officers of the Veterans of Foreign Wars opened a three-day conference at the Mayflower Hotel yesterday with a sharp attack on the Rankin pension bill as "a betrayal of thousands of aged and ailing veterans."

Omar B. Ketchum, national legislative director of VFW, joined other officials in assailing the multibillion-dollar proposal reported by the House Veterans' Committee on Tuesday.

Chairman J. R. Klawans of San Francisco said he spoke for the "disgusted and incensed members" of the VFW committee in calling the Rankin bill "a betrayal of thousands of aged and ailing veterans."

The VFW has supported a compromise pension bill to provide nonservice-connected payments of $90 a month to veterans of World Wars I and II at 65 years of age or with total disability.

One of the first acts at yesterday's convention opening was a study by the VFW housing committee of possible support for 4½ per cent loans for veterans. Its recommendations, made in executive session, will be voted upon by the legislative committee this morning.

Distinct And Separate

Last week Washington played reluctant host to a vociferous group nominally concerned with civil rights and calling itself the "Legislative Assembly and Rally to End Discrimination and Segregation." The sponsorship of this function was so suspect as to cause Mrs. Mary McLeod Bethune, president of the National Council of Negro Women, and nobody's tool, to withdraw her name. We think she did well, and suspect that others whose names appeared among the sponsors—in some cases so erroneously as to suggest they had no knowledge of the fact—would have followed suit had they known what was going on.

On Tuesday and Wednesday of this week, another organization met in Washington, the National Citizens Conference on Civil Liberties. The only connection between the two is in the possible similarity of purpose. We say "possible" because of our doubt that the first group is at all sincere in its professed devotion to individual liberties. In order to defeat that group's design of confusing identities and issues, the distinction between the two bodies should be clearly understood. It seems to us imperative for the preservation of civil liberties that no one be misled by red herrings deliberately slithering across the trail.

ECA Stockpiling

The forbearance that Secretary Acheson bespoke while Europe is struggling toward integration could be expressed most appropriately at this time on the stockpiling provisions of the ECA Act. Not less than 5 per cent of the counterpart funds in each country has to be set aside for the purchase of strategic materials in which the United States is deficient and for administrative expenses. The counterpart funds are those moneys which the recipient countries set aside in their own currencies as payments for Marshall Plan receipts. The stockpiling provisions have not yet brought commanding results. Indeed, the congressional watchdog committee rebuked ECA for its laggardliness. It did so in a section which included a sentence which brought us up with a start, as it will others who imagined that the ECA program was wholly devoted to recovery. The report actually states that the provisions relating to stockpiling "appear to reflect the intent of Congress that the countries of Europe should emphasize in their recovery program the production of strategic materials and that the United States should share in this production as an offset to the depletion of its own reserves of materials which has been brought about by the war and by our foreign aid deliveries."

This puts the United States in the position of extracting vital goods from the European economy to build up America's military strength under guise of a program intended to help them to recovery. It puts them to work serving us instead of requiring them to work harder for themselves. The program of stockpiling strategic materials against future emergency has nothing to do with the program for advancing recovery in Europe and should be entirely divorced from it. ECA ought to be relieved entirely of the responsibility for procuring stockpile materials and the responsibility given to some other agency with power to make long-term contracts. As for the part of the 5 per cent that goes to meet the administrative expenses of ECA, the obvious source is the account now rapidly piling up as the result of sales of surplus property under the Fulbright law. This money goes in part to improvement of diplomatic establishments; it would be appropriate to include support of ECA administration in this provision.

Suspicious Secrecy

Once again the AFL has brought up before the United Nations its proposal for an international investigation of forced labor, aimed admittedly at the Soviet Union and its satellites. Similar moves in the last two sessions of the Economic and Social Council have come up against a Soviet stone wall, with countercharges about lynching in the United States, "capitalist serfdom," and so forth. The current renewal, reinforced by Assistant Secretary of State Willard Thorp in a strong attack on the Kremlin's secretiveness, has received the same treatment.

Nobody outside the Soviet Union—and perhaps nobody inside it—knows exactly how many persons the Russian government has put in what it calls "corrective labor camps." The number of involuntary workers or forced laborers or slave laborers or serfs of the new Russian tsarism, whatever name one wishes to use, is an official secret of the Kremlin. Outside estimates are only estimates, based on various types of information. David Dallin and Boris Nikolavsky in their book Forced Labor in Soviet Russia put the number at 7 to 12 million. Prof. Harry Schwartz, by a different method of calculation, has figured it at 13.5 million. Secretary of the Army Royall mentioned 14 million last December. And at Lake Success Monday Mr. Thorp put it at 8 to 14 million. Others have gone as high as 24 and even 30 million.

The uncertainty over the number emphasizes only the fact that the Soviet Union will not permit its own figures to be published or permit non-Russians to make an objective on-the-spot investigation. But the statistical discrepancies reflect no substantial disagreement on the existence of forced labor in the Soviet Union on quite a large scale. Most students seem to agree, moreover, that it is an essential institution in the Soviet economy. Dallin reports, for instance, that the MVD got an order to arrest a specified number of people in one year to provide cheap labor for the Five Year Plan.

How bad conditions are in the labor camps is again hard to find out. A fairly steady trickle of accounts by people who have escaped paint them as horribly black. Ordinarily the tendency is to exaggerate what is unknown. In this case the absolute refusal of the Soviet government to let anyone else have a look at the forced labor camps suggests rather that the higher numerical estimates and the most terrifying stories of treatment are correct. This vicious circle, in which suspicion corroborates itself, is the price secretiveness must always pay—and there is a lesson for Americans in this, apropos of our secrecy about atomic energy.

Rowell Riddle

Two new developments in the Rowell beating mystery spur the hope that light now may be thrown on the Police Department's connection with it. Superintendent Barrett finally has turned over to United States Attorney Fay the results of the department's investigation into the assault on a cab driver by two men once alleged by Barrett to be policemen in plain clothes. Further, and by no means of lesser importance, the civil rights division of the Department of Justice is looking into the case for possible violation of Federal civil rights statutes by law-enforcement officers. These agencies may bring to the investigation some of the energy conspicuously absent in the Police Department's own probe.

Some persons may wonder why the Rowell case has received so much attention in this newspaper. The answer is simply that The Washington Post believes that the case reflects on the integrity of all law enforcement in this city. James Rowell, a cab driver, was brutally attacked on the morning of January 14 at Thomas Circle. According to Rowell, he happened upon two men as they were beating a third man. Rowell entered a drug store to get a headache powder. When he emerged, the two men turned on him and accused him of calling police. Rowell's story is corroborated by a drug store clerk on duty at the time who adds that he saw two uniformed policemen run to the scene and then walk away—apparently after learning the identity of the assailants. (The policemen assert that they arrived on the scene after the principals had departed.) Clearly there is an indication here of cover-up.

The answers to a number of questions are essential to any investigation that goes behind the immediate facts of the case to inquire into the why of the assault and its possible connection with other incidents. For example:

1. What was the role of the two accused plain-clothes men? What are the reasons that led Major Barrett to reassign them and state his belief they were "guilty as hell"? Why did the department try to hide the case originally?

2. Has there been intimidation? The circumstances certainly indicate it. Rowell has been represented as unable to identify his attackers. But a hospital nurse, approached for emergency treatment shortly after the incident by a man she believes to be Rowell, has stated that the injured man told her he thought his assailants were policemen. The reported behavior of the two uniformed men who ran to the scene lends credence to this belief. Furthermore, Major Barrett asserted initially that he thought one of the two accused men paid Rowell's medical expenses. There is a fishy aroma here that demands the attention of the Department of Justice even though Rowell has been disinclined to or prevented from entering a formal complaint.

3. Why did the two uniformed policemen take no action to protect Rowell?

4. Why were the two accused men beating the third person before they set upon Rowell? Is there any connection between this third man and a bootlegging case recently nol-prossed on the ground that the defendant was a good police informer?

The superintendent of police has made serious charges against two of his men. They have a right either to complete vindication or to full documentation of those charges. The implications of the whole mystery are so drastic for the good name of the Police Department that the community must now rely for objective answers on a vigorous investigation by the two outside agencies. These agencies have nothing to hide.

Judd's Bill

The House Judiciary Committee's unanimous approval of Representative Judd's bill to amend the immigration and naturalization law is significant in more ways than one. Five such bills have been introduced in the present session of the House, all identical and all substantially the same as the bill Dr. Judd sponsored and labored to perfect in the last session. Dr. Judd is a Republican. But in nonpartisan recognition of the credit due him in this matter, the Walters Subcommittee and now the whole committee have put his bill on the docket instead of one of the three Democratic versions.

Here is a clear demonstration that amendment of the immigration and naturalization law is not a party project but a national one. The proposed legislation has two principal purposes. The first is to open the way for resident aliens from Asian and Pacific areas who are otherwise qualified to become naturalized citizens. It would put them on exactly the same basis as immigrants from Europe or Africa in obtaining citizenship, fulfilling the partial progress made in 1943 and 1946 when Chinese, Philippine, and Indian peoples were given that privilege. Its chief practical effect would be to permit some 80,000 Japanese in the United States and Hawaii to become citizens. These people average above 50 years of age and many of them are parents of the Nisei boys who proved their devotion to this country so valiantly in the last war.

The second main purpose is to provide immigration quotas for the same Asian and Pacific areas on approximately the same basis now in the law for other areas of the world. The practical effect would be to give minimum annual quotas of 100 to all but Japan, which would receive, according to the proportional quota system in force since 1920, a quota of 185. The details are too complex to be explained in this space, but they are numerically as restrictive as the present law. The effect is to keep the present barriers to immigration but to remove racial restrictions from them.

Simple justice to the older generation of Oriental immigrants, who have contributed much to this country—in many cases their sons—but who cannot now share the full rights of citizenship available to their fellow immigrants from other areas is the most compelling argument for this measure.

Norse Reaction

The reaction in Scandinavia to the apparently evasive answers that Foreign Minister Lange got in Washington on what Norway can expect by way of American military support in case she joins the Atlantic Pact is one of embarrassment. Denmark is somewhat explosive. Her Foreign Minister, Mr. Rasmussen, has criticized the "rigidity" of American diplomacy in making Atlantic membership a condition precedent to arms shipments. He cannot be blamed. As for Norway, she hardly knows which way to turn. The disappointment over the reaction in Washington, coupled with the maladroit words uttered subsequently in the Senate about the Atlantic Pact, should logically make her turn to Stockholm and reexplore the possibilities of an exclusive Scandinavian defense union. This was the choice that Sweden had put before Norway—either the Atlantic Pact or the Scandinavian Pact.

The trouble in this respect is that Norway does not feel exclusive. She shares with the Western world the realization that a challenge has been launched against Western civilization which can no longer be met through the enforcement provisions of the United Nations. As a custodian of Western civilization Norway is prepared to do her part in defending it. The spirit of Norway—which became refined in the crucible of war—would have to be transformed completely before she could enter an exclusive Scandinavian union. The problem would be eased for Norway if there were an escape clause in the Scandinavian Pact allowing Norway some kind of affiliation with the Atlantic community.

As to this, Sweden is adamant. On the surface she wants to pull down the hatches against the outside world, and post Scandinavian guns—even those she would get from the West—in all directions, west as well as east. In practice, of course, this would not happen. Neutrality is what Bentham would call "an impostor word," and in no application more than Sweden's. This is implied in a statement to the Swedish Parliament by the Swedish Foreign Minister. Mr. Unden says that the Scandinavian Pact must be looked at in the context of the U. N. Charter, and his spokesman has made it clear in talking with American newsmen that involvement with the Atlantic pacters is inevitable if the Russian goes on the rampage. In other words, neutrality is not envisaged, simply a buttressing of the Charter under Article 51 to defend an entire region against aggression. As a practical matter the Swedish position is unexceptionable, and a Scandinavian union should be regarded as a kind of corresponding and correspondent grouping with the Atlantic Pact.

The nub of the problem for the present lies in the matter of arms shipments by America. It should never have arisen. From the point of view of the general security, access to the American arsenal should not be subject to bargain, but only to availability and specific arrangements. They would be beneficial to the Atlantic security if they served to pull the Scandinavian community together.

ADVICE TO THE ARTIST

Copy Da Vinci if you must,
But keep the copy hid.
There are things to do today
Da Vinci never did.

Da Vinci's amber shades are lost
In frosty webs of light,
And silver skies our window frame
Are diamond-cut with flight.

Sunlight slants through railway ties
On a white and pitiful face
Bent somehow Madonna-wise
With unguessed grace.

Da Vinci wrought in golden light,
And ours is blue and thin;
But it no less than his betrays
The miracle within.

Save for posterity to see
When all our towers are dust
The spirit quickening the flesh,
Steel shining through the rust.

Officers' Pay

Drew Fearson, in his column of February 12 speaks of Congressman Dewey Short bawling out some generals from the Pentagon who were seeking an increase in officer personnel:

"The trouble with you fellows is that you are always clamoring for more rank, more stars, and more pay."

I don't know anything about the clamor for "more rank, more stars," but the part about the clamor for more pay is quite interesting. Since 1922, senior officers of the Army (and others of the armed services) have received an increase in pay of 8 per cent—10 per cent increase in base pay and no increase in allowances. During the same period, congressional pay has been raised from $7500 to $15,000 ($12,500 salary plus $2500 in nontaxable expense money), an increase in pay of 100 per cent—over 100 per cent, actually, considering tax free expense money.

War Power

The Constitution provides, in Article VI: "This Constitution and the laws of the United States which shall be made in pursuance thereof and all treaties made, or which shall be made, under the authority of the United States, shall be the supreme law of the land . . ."

Assume that the Administration should conclude a North Atlantic Defense Pact with those European powers whose relation to us is such that we deem an attack upon any of them a direct and immediate menace to us. Assume also that in such a treaty we undertook, reciprocally with the other signatories, to take immediate action to repel any unprovoked attack upon any signatory. Assume further that such a treaty were ratified by the Senate (in accordance with the spirit and intent of the so-called Vandenberg Resolution).

Would not such treaty become part of the "supreme law of the land" so that in case of attack upon any signatory the President would have power, indeed would be bound, to take immediate action, including military, naval, or air-power action, to repel, and assist the signatory so attacked in repelling, such attack without waiting for a declaration of war by the Congress? This notwithstanding the provision in Section 8 of Article I of the Constitution. "The Congress shall have power . . . "To declare war, grant letters of marque and reprisal, and make rules concerning captures on land and water."

I take it that in view of these two provisions the President should properly, and that he would, promptly report his action to the Congress and request of the Congress either a declaration of war against the offender or a declaration that a state of war exists with such offender.

Over The Coals

It is a pity that The Washington Post, with its amazingly easy opportunity to become a great newspaper, is steadily building its reputation instead as a newspaper of special pleading.

The Washington Post is almost a great newspaper. That is a tantalizing almost, for just a little more common sense and high resolve, just a little firmer regard for uncolored public service on the part of those at the top could do the trick.

Obviously the know-how is there. Those who actually get out the paper have the necessary professional skill. What is lacking is the vision of what a great newspaper should be and do by the owner-benefactor, his wife and his son-in-law. The upper echelon is so busy righting the wrongs of this group and that, so zealous in watching the individual they hope to pin something on for pushing somebody around, that they have missed the mark. Instead of a great newspaper, they are causing their topnotch staff to issue a paper that is a special pleader, a nagger, a breast-beater.

I charge The Washington Post, for example, with leading Negroes to believe they can have everything they demand without regard to time or consequences. It is a cruel, if not wrongful, policy because it is bound to lead to disappointment for many, tragedy for some. Justice must prevail and will prevail, but it can never do so by force.

I charge The Washington Post in going beyond legitimate need to harass the police.

I charge The Washington Post with giving display out of all proportion to news value or opinion value to special causes that would receive entirely different treatment at the hands of the paper's competent professional staff.

Nepotism in business and journalism is not in itself wrong unless it is combined with amateurishness and misplaced zeal for "causes." The recipient of executive authority from relatives on a newspaper should first go through the mill and learn what he needs to know before inserting his name above that of the editor; then he should exercise his authority with due regard for the obligation of a newspaper, with its special and almost sacred guarantees of freedom, to serve the welfare of all the public fairly—majority as well as minority, the highest as well as the lowest.

"Inherent" Authority

I was interested in the letter published February 8 on "Inherent Authority." While I might agree that the President has no "inherent authority" to do what he thinks "may be good" for the people, unfortunately for the people he has the "power."

The President's Attorney General boldly announces the President has full authority to coerce the citizen to conform to his will because he is the Commander in Chief of the armed forces of the United States and the President then publicly announces he is to determine what is for the "good" of the citizen, and, having so determined, he has the power to enforce his will against the citizen.

The reading of history teaches that the people of the American British colonies in the eighteenth century brought on a revolution based upon the denial of this power. It does seem strange that after 200 years it should be a President of the United States to claim he has all the power enjoyed by George III.

"Partners Or Allies"

Your splendid editorial of February 8, "Partners or Allies," deserves to be reprinted and given the widest possible distribution. It is clear, unequivocal statement of the need for a federal convention to explore the possibility of creating a great federal union of the free. I hope that many newspapers throughout the country will reprint it.

Your editorial sets a standard for clear thinking with regard to peace and security for free people. I am confident that before long editorials of a like character will appear in newspapers and magazines throughout the Nation.

Segregation In Washington

I have your story of February 9 on what the Executive Board of the Federation of Citizens Associations had to say of the report of the National Committee on Segregation in the Nation's Capital.

No recognition is given the basic evil—the progressive concentration of the "ghetto" areas, promising to be more and more accentuated as the city is beautified and slum areas removed, with the accompanying increasing rate of disease, delinquency, and violence. What is said of the allocation of Lanham Act funds, transfer of teaching positions, and such is probably all very true, but the statements don't answer the problem at hand.

Specifically these statements do not answer the problem of what to do about the evil alliance of banks, insurance and title companies, building and loan associations, and real estate men which not only seeks to prevent colored citizens from moving out of the "ghetto" in the center of town but by such devices as a freeze of home loans to colored home owners is actually dispossessing Negroes in areas such as Georgetown.

Nor do they explain how Negroes can ever receive adequate medical attention when colored physicians are excluded from the District Medical Society and when the segregated hospital accommodations for Negroes are in almost all cases inferior to those offered whites. The Federation of Citizens Associations should state just how "mutual understanding" between races is to be achieved when colored and white children are not allowed to meet upon the playgrounds.

LUCILE D. SISSON.
Bryans Road, Md.

Now that the Federation of Citizens Associations has made its report and has invited discussion of the problem with local Negroes, unbiased answers to the following questions might channel such action as it is predisposed to take in an intelligent direction.

Were the members of the federation, themselves, isolated in areas where the neighborhoods in general are decidedly foul, ugly, decayed and the public service provided substandard, would not they be so stigmatized in the minds of the rest of the population that they would be frustrated and appear different, inferior and degenerate?

Would not the provision of a housing pattern that would make available to them new, acceptable, unrestricted housing developments allay much of their frustration and stigmatization?

Were such a pattern made a functional part of the local redevelopment program, could they but feel that the rest of the population was sincere in its expressed hope for better understanding and improvement?

Future Of Alcoholism

By Malvina Lindsay

Drinkers' 'Progress'

ALCOHOLISM in this country apparently is going to get worse before it gets better. Out of all the recent stock-taking on drunkenness have come short-term warnings and long-term hopes. City and industrial life and a maturing population will tend to increase drinking. But an intelligent and civilized approach to the problem is at last developing.

Just as we were being informed that alcoholism had become the No. 4 disease in the United States—behind only cancer, tuberculosis and heart ailments—a milestone of progress in public attitude toward it was being marked off. This was its acceptance by the Federal Government as a public health problem. This means that research and education concerning it will be pushed on a wider scale.

Ten years ago when people generally were either piously condemning "drunks," or else laughing at them, such a step would not have been possible. Hence a private agency, the Research Council on Problems of Alcohol, an affiliate of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, was doing the research pioneering in universities and hospitals.

NOW THE United States Public Health Service and the National Research Council have taken over the functions of this private scientific body. The Public Health Service will carry on the education and public information activities—possibly in time accomplishing as important results as it did with venereal disease education. The National Research Council, set up originally by presidential order, but an independent agency working in close cooperation with the Government, will direct the research projects.

Despite this advance on a national level, a great many communities are still treating alcoholics as "drunken bums," it was recently reported at the Institute of Alcoholic Studies at the University of California in Los Angeles. These other discouraging facts were also brought out at the institute: there are as yet no specific cures for alcoholism; few alcoholics are being competently cared for; little progress in either cure or prevention of alcoholism has been made; about 1 out of every 40 persons is repeatedly in trouble because of excessive drinking; among cities having the highest records in alcoholism are Washington, D. C., San Francisco and Los Angeles.

Chief optimism at the institute centered on today's more "rational approach" to the treatment of alcoholism as a disease. Research, education and religion were regarded as the chief hopes of prevention and cure.

MORE ALCOHOLICS in the near future seem an inevitability unless some miraculous "cure" is produced. One reason for this is that industrial life is crowding people into cities, giving them a sense of insecurity, subjecting them to competition and pressure that lead to frustrations and neuroses for which the solace of the bottle or the social highball is sought. Social drinking is also more prevalent in urban life.

One hundred years ago only half the population was of drinking age, now three quarters is—and this ratio is increasing. Hence we may logically expect more alcoholics, points out Joseph Hirsh, former director of the Research Council on Problems of Alcoholism, in his recent book, The Problem Drinker.

One group showing marked problem drinking increase, Mr. Hirsh says, is that of veterans of World War II. However, he does not accept the widely prevalent idea that alcoholism is increasing greatly among women. There is no proof, he says, to show whether women are drinking more or less. Women drink more openly than formerly and are no longer hidden by their families when they become alcoholics, rather are sent to hospitals and even to jails.

Like other students of alcoholism, Mr. Hirsh would have States and cities pass legislation to have alcoholics cared for by public health agencies rather than police. And more and more research is also his prescription.

Transit Radios

Not until last Sunday was I subjected to the transit radio torture which seems inevitable for all residents of Washington. I believe the Capital Transit Co. said the music would be soft and soothing so the passengers might relax and enjoy their ride. The two radio announcers who babbled at each other were bad enough, but one of the songs, which lasted 5 minutes and 40 seconds, was "The One o'Clock Jump."

This, of course, is one of the loudest jazz tunes ever written, and it really was quite a wonder that not one of the windows in the bus was cracked. A look of pain and futility was all that registered on the faces of the unfortunate passengers. The Capital Transit Co. could not be using Webster's definition of relaxation soft, or enjoyable.

I hope you will continue to fight this diabolical scheme which the Capital Transit Co. has thought up to annoy the passengers and collect money. It is also quite possible that you might frighten the D. C. Board of Commissioners out of hiding so they would prohibit such nonsense and keep to some degree the sanity and safety of the District.

Today and Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

Pact Trouble And Its Cure

THE TROUBLE over the Atlantic Pact, which has been advertised to all the world first by the Scandinavian crisis and then by the discussion in the Senate last Monday, has been brewing for some months. The trouble can still be set right. But not by any new combination of words in the pact itself. For the trouble arises from a fundamentally false idea which the American negotiators, with the best of intentions but for lack of experience, accepted.

Lippmann

This was the idea that American military collaboration with western Europe—a necessary and desirable thing—could be and had to be based on a treaty which would run a long time—for as many as 16 to 20 years.

THE IDEA is fundamentally false. It is not possible to write a treaty which will guarantee military collaboration over a long period of time. The United States cannot under the Constitution do this. No other country can in fact, whatever its constitutional theory, do it. Witness the British and French guarantees to Czechoslovakia before Munich, and their 20-year treaties, signed during the war and still theoretically valid, with the Soviet Union.

Nor is it necessary to write such a treaty for the purpose of achieving military collaboration of the most intimate and effective kind as long as the situation calls for it. Witness our military collaboration with Canada, with Great Britain as a result of the famous Churchill-Roosevelt arrangement about the destroyers and the bases, with Denmark about Greenland.

A STRONG case can be made for a pact which gives legal recognition to the Atlantic Community. A strong case can be made for military aid and special collaboration with Britain, France, and Benelux. But to attempt to fit them together was to drive a square peg into a round hole. It was bound to produce one grave crisis after another. It has already done serious, perhaps irreparable, damage in Scandinavia. It has now, because the Senators were compelled to state the self-evident but forgotten truth, brought about a severe crisis of confidence in western Europe. If the underlying idea of treating the pact as the contract of a military coalition is not reconsidered, a destructive debate will be provoked both here and abroad.

THE RIGHT course is in principle quite clear, and should avoid many otherwise insuperable practical difficulties. The Atlantic Pact should be divorced entirely from the forthcoming bill to provide military aid. That is to say, adherence to the pact should not be a condition for receiving military aid. Nor should it be deemed a pledge that military aid, over and above that to which all victims of aggression are entitled under the Charter, will be given to those who sign, and by implication denied to those who do not sign or are not invited.

The pact, in other words, should not be treated as a military alliance. I say this as a firm believer in the need for close military collaboration between North America and western Europe. That collaboration should be founded, however, not on the Atlantic Pact but upon concrete military accords (similar to those made by ECA) under a military aid bill. Within the American constitutional system that is entirely feasible. It has been done many times before. It can be done again. That is the way to make arrangements for the supply of arms, the use of bases and facilities, the coordination of strategical and tactical plans.

THEN, our special collaboration in the North Atlantic would not be dependent on a formula in a pact which must either promise too much to be a genuine commitment or too little to be convincing to our friends and opponents abroad. We could proceed directly to the immediate practical objective, which is to build a North Atlantic military system. It would develop under practical experience. Congress would review it each year to determine whether the system worked and was still necessary.

Not only the constitutional power of Congress in regard to war would be respected but also its right to be consulted in the great measures that might precede a war. The alliance would exist de facto. But it would be permanent only if and as each Congress, because the country continued to believe in it, renewed the appropriations on which it rests.

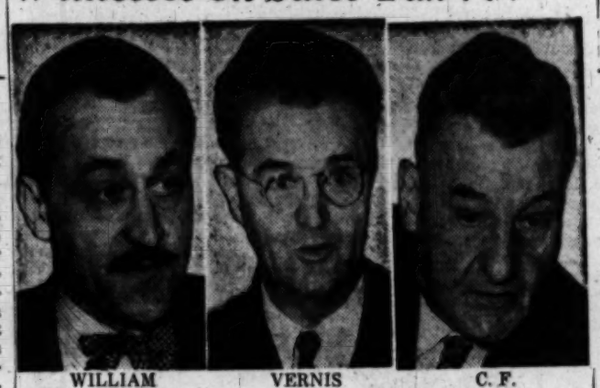
More than that cannot be done under the American system of government. More should not be attempted here, or expected abroad.

IF, AS I have argued, the alliance is made temporary and de facto, on military accords negotiated under the military aid bill, what is the meaning of the pact? Essentially what Senator Vandenberg said it would have to be: the formal recognition of a community of interest. The function of the pact would not be to organize a military coalition around the periphery of the Soviet Union. Its function would be to encourage the organization of the disunited fragments of our Western society—to establish a legal foundation upon which the Western society can evolve the supra-national institutions that it must have if it is to survive and is to flourish.

Conceived in this way, and excluding nations in the buffer belt, the pact, after the necessary revision, could be presented sincerely and without casuistry to the United Nations as a regional arrangement within the intent of the Charter.

And it could be presented to the American people as honestly within the paramount rule of American foreign policy, laid down by Washington, "to steer clear of permanent alliances . . . taking care always to keep ourselves by suitable establishments on a respectable defensive posture, we may safely trust to temporary alliances for extraordinary emergencies."

Witnesses on Sales Tax . . .



WILLIAM PRESS — VERNIS ABSHER — C. F. PRELLER

BENJAMIN SIGAL — MRS. LESLIE WRIGHT — MRS. FRANKLIN SARTWELL

The Washington Post

It was indorsed substantially in full by Vernis Absher and Clifford H. Newell speaking for the Federation of Citizens Asosciations.

Citizens particularly liked the idea of an increased Federal payment. Several thought the Commissioners had not asked enough, and urged Federal grants as high as 32 million a year.

Backed By Business

Business and organized citizens' groups generally indorsed the sales tax program; spokesmen for labor, veterans, and other groups opposed the sales tax as being too hard on those with small incomes. Examples:

William H. Press, speaking for the Washington Board of Trade, declared "we strongly urge adoption of a sales tax for the following reasons: (1) it will yield a large amount of revenue; (2) no other source is available save those that would be oppressive and injurious to the economic health of the community; (3) the sales tax is particularly suited to the economic characteristics of the District, and (4) it will probably be less burdensome than any other levy of similar magnitude."

Against the sales tax, C. F. Preller, president of the Central Labor Union, AFL, said "we are in complete opposition to the sales tax as a means of balancing the budget—workers in the lower income brackets would suffer a reduced standard of living; people in the higher brackets would merely experience a reduced rate of savings."

Benjamin C. Sigal, Washington chapter president of Americans for Democratic Action, hit at the Commissioners, both for sponsorship of the sales tax and for budget inadequacies in the school, health and welfare programs. He said the Commissioners, by repeated calls of fiscal "crisis" to get a sales tax through, "convict themselves of fiscal mismanagement."

Defending the Commissioners, and also the sales tax, Mrs. Leslie B. Wright of the Northwest Council of Citizens Associations declared the city government heads had done a good job. Representative George J. Bates (R., Mass.) quipped that they must have been collecting her ashes regularly. No, said Mrs. Wright, she uses gas.

Sees "Ample Proof"

Mrs. Wright told the committee that Bates' present support of the sales tax was ample proof that the District needs it. After long opposition to the sales levy, Bates last year headed the drive that resulted in House passage of a sales tax bill. It was later blocked in the Senate.

"You worked on me for 10 years," said Bates.

"You're hard to convince," said Mrs. Wright.

Rufus S. Lusk of the Washington Taxpayers Association; Elwood Davis, president of the Junior Board of Commerce; Herbert S. Colton, Washington Building Congress; Charles J. Bauer, Building Owners and Managers Association; J. Wesley Buchanan, Home Builders Association of Metropolitan Washington; J. Garrett Beltzell, Washington Real Estate Board; Louis P. Frick, Federation of Business Men's Associations; Mrs. Harvey W. Wiley, District Federation of Women's Clubs; Frank E. Weakly, Hotel Association of Washington, and A. Graham Shields, Oil Heat Institute of Greater Washington, who also urged that since the sales tax would fall on fuel oil, it should fall on competing public utilities.

Lined up against the sales tax were:

Milton S. Kronheim, wholesale liquor dealer; Mrs. Franklin O. Sartwell, Northeast Council of Citizens' Associations; Miss Sally Peck, District Progressive Party; Edgar Brown, National Negro Council; Jerome B. McKee, District American Legion; David Whalley, attorney; Mrs. Monroe Burk, District League of Women Voters; Milton Kelenson, Washington Industrial Union Council, CIO; Charles Sands, Hotel, Restaurant Employes and Bartenders Union, AFL; Mrs. Dorothy Eidean, Women's Auxiliary, United Public Workers of America, and Edward E. Fisher, Local 471 of the Cafeteria Union.

Other witnesses included:

F. Joseph Donohue, Washington Retail Liquor Dealers; Ralph Curtis, Restaurant Beverage Association of Washington; Dr. Evart Warren, District Optometric Association, who urged exempting eye glasses, crutches, artificial limbs and wheel chairs from the sales tax; Mrs. B. G. McIlwee, 507 Quackenbos st. nw., and Col. Charles I. Stengle of the American Federation of Government Employes, AFL, who called for a higher Federal payment.

Washington Calling

By Marquis Childs

A Reasonable Labor Law

BOTH HEAT and light, with considerably more of the former, are being generated as the Senate hearings on new labor legislation continue in their third week. This is a forecast of the debate to come on the Senate floor, which promises to be long-drawn-out and full of rancor.

Childs

The prospect is that the final bill may be really satisfactory to no one and especially not to organized labor. Granted that organized labor was at fault at the outset in trying to make the Senate jump through the labor hoop like an obedient trained seal, this will not be a healthy situation. Out of it could come strikes and widespread labor unrest.

But sensible and knowledgeable men continue to search for a reasonable solution. Between the emotional poles of Senator Taft on the one hand and Senators Murray and Neely on the other hand is a wide area of agreement.

A majority of the Senate would be likely to favor repeal of the Taft-Hartley Act if there could be substituted for it an improved Wagner Act. Under the "improvements" both unions and employers would be required to bargain in good faith. Secondary boycotts and jurisdictional strikes would be prohibited as unfair labor practices.

Unions would be required to file and publish financial statements and by-laws. The Conciliation Service would be retained as an independent agency.

THE CHIEF obstacles to agreement are the closed-shop provision and the issue of whether the Federal courts shall have the power through injunction to stop strikes that threaten the national welfare. On these two points most of the heat is generated.

From Joseph Kovner, a specialist in labor law, comes what seems to me a reasonable proposal to bridge the dissension over these two points. He suggests that a commission of experts be appointed now by Congress to study and make recommendations within six months on the main points of dispute.

The commission would consider the closed shop and other forms of compulsory union membership to determine what regulations, if any, should be included in law to insure the rights of the individual worker. It would also study possible controls to be applied when strikes seem about to endanger the safety or health of the Nation.

During the six months the experts could go into every phase of these touchy issues and with particular reference to the actual practices and habits of management and labor. Their recommendations would carry much weight with Congress.

SUCH A commission would not necessarily consist of experts already tagged as on the side of either management or labor. In universities and research institutions an enormous amount of more or less objective study has gone into labor-management relations. Thus Mr. Kovner, formerly assistant general counsel to the CIO, was one of a group that spent three years in a study of labor organization financed by Johns Hopkins University. That study has not yet been published.

Congress would not wait for the commission's recommendations to repeal the T.-H. Act and adopt a modified version of the old Wagner law authorizing the closed shop and without the right to enjoin strikes in the courts. Leaders of organized labor would feel that they were under close public scrutiny during this period and they would be unlikely to take advantage of the repeal of Taft-Hartley controls.

Senator Ives of New York and Senator Morse of Oregon, who are seeking a middle-ground solution, could profitably consider another constructive suggestion. Unions and employers would be required to give 60 days' notice of the termination of labor agreements to the Federal Conciliation Service. The law would provide for emergency mediation boards to act before the end of the agreement and not after it had ended and a strike was imminent.

The final outcome can be a dogfight with everyone disgruntled and unhappy, except, perhaps, a few Republicans who might think that this was the way to discredit the Democrats. Or a constructive and reasonable law can be adopted by the Congress. One way to get a workable law is to put a commission to work to assemble knowledge and brains. Such a cooling-off period may be necessary for Congress if the deepest controversies are to be resolved satisfactorily.

Nylons Disintegrated By Airborne Irritant

Jacksonville, Fla., Feb. 16 (U.P.).—An airborne irritant cost a few more Jacksonville lasses their nylons today but authorities said they were lucky they still have their health.

Dr. W. W. Rogers, city health officer, said the condition may be similar to that in Donora, Pa., recently when a "death fog" seared lungs.

The soot particles that apparently carry sulphurous, nylon-attacking acid here fortunately cannot be inhaled, Rogers said.

military governor. These laws do not mention secret trials.

The order creating the commission, however, was issued by the Army's European headquarters in Heidelberg. The order specifically declared the commission should not be bound by court-martial rules, and directed the commission to take necessary steps to "protect and preserve the security of information, the public disclosure of which, because of its nature, may be considered detrimental to the best interests of the United States."

McKee said the Army Intelligence asked for the secrecy, but that possibly a review boad at some later date might make public some of the withheld information.

He said the case probably would be completed Thursday afternoon, but certainly by Friday morning. A related trial, which will not be secret, is to start Monday morning. The last of the series of five is expected to end sometime in March. Like the present one, the fifth trial will be conducted in strictest secrecy, but trials two, three and four will be open, McKee said.

Even the guards—who normally would be stationed close to the prisoner—were ordered from the trial room when the hearings started. They took positions flanking the doors. Officers inside the trial room carried pistols.

Everyone connected with the case answered questions with: "Sorry, we can't say anything at all about it."

About all that really is known is that it stems from the arrest November 9 of some 20 persons accused of having sold important military and other information to the Czechoslovak government. Nobody ever has discussed the nature of the information obtained except in vaguest terms.

self-rule provisions as the rewritten measure provides. However, they have set down this objection as of "secondary importance and purely a matter of political strategy."

Meanwhile, local Republican leaders also moved into the year's kickoff drive for congressional action on self-government for the District.

GOP's "Real, Deep Interest"

James Wilkes, chairman of the Republican State Committee in and for the District of Columbia, last night asserted his group's "very real and deep interest in the home rule fight."

He said he had not yet been able to secure a copy of the new bill draft to compare it with the pending House measure, sponsored by Representative James C. Auchincloss (R., N. J.).

The Republican home rule sponsor yesterday questioned the constitutionality of a provision in the new, re-writen bill which gives the city council authority to enact almost all local legislation, leaving to Congress only a final veto power.

"Legal experts thoroughly explored that question when I prepared my bill last year," Auchincloss stated.

He said he would attend today's Senate hearing.

Area News in Brief

New VD Broadcasts Mainly for Women

If every pregnant woman would have a blood test before her fifth month of pregnancy, congenital syphilis could be wiped out. This is the belief of the District Health Department which is sponsoring a new radio series to acquaint the public, particularly women, with venereal disease.

The programs wil be heard over WWDC every Friday at 10:45 p. m. The program this Friday night will deal with a 16-year-old girl whose life was blighted because of a careless mother.

The girl was examined several weeks ago at Gallinger Hospital and found to be a victim of congenital syphilis. She had inherited the disease from her mother.

The disease has ravaged her mind so that she has the mentality of a child of 4. The syphilis germ can be killed with penicillin but the damage to the brain cannot be repaired.

Fire Routs 2 Families

A fire, reportedly caused by explosion of a small bathroom oil heater, yesterday routed two families and their eight children from a three-story frame home at Olney, Md.

Volunter firemen from Sandy Spring and Burtonsville confined the damage to several rooms of the large dwelling. Occupants of the house, owned by John M. Beane, were Mr. and Mrs. Richard Hostler, their six children, and Mr. and Mrs. Dwight Teele and their two children.

Teele suffered minor leg burns when he attempted to extinguish the blaze. He was treated and released from Montgomry County General Hospital.

Vote to Excuse Bidder

District Commissioners yesterday voted to excuse a bidder on the new laboratory at Gallinger Hospital if the Comptroller General's office approve the move.

Roystone, Grimm & Sammons, 1115 Wilson blvd. Arlington, Va., offered the low bid of $317,506 on the project, but later asked to be released from the contract award on the grounds that an error had been made in preparing the bid.

District Auditor A. R. Pilkerton yesterday forwarded a memorandum to the Federal Comptroller's office asking if the city heads may permit the withdrawal.

This Is the New Look!

A peeping Tom with a new twist was convicted yesterday in Municipal Court.

He is David Simpson, 26, no fixed address, who was fined $75 by Judge John P. McMahon for disorderly conduct.

Detectives reported that on Tuesday they observed Simpson on the escalators between the basement and second floor of a downtown department store.

He was holding a mirror close to the escalator steps, and adjusting it so that he could get a good view of the underpinning of the woman in front of him.

Commented Judge McMahon: "If that isn't disorderly conduct, what is it?"

Rent Boost Hearing Today

District Rent Examiner William T. Kane will hold a hearing today at 9:30 a. m. on a request for an increase in rents on 314 units of the Park Central Apartments, 1900 F st. nw.

The apartment building owners have requested boosts to cover increases in taxes. Present rents range from $41 a month for 1½ rooms to $80 for three-room units. Proposed rents are from $42 to $81.90.

Justice Dept. Provokes CAB, Backs Nonscheduled Carriers

By the United Press

The Justice Department puzzled and provoked the Civil Aeronautics Board yesterday with a plea in behalf of nonscheduled air carriers.

William D. McFarlane, special assistant to Attorney General Tom C. Clark, said that proposed new rules for 60 nonscheduled lines were inconsistent with "fundamental principles of free enterprise" dating back to the Sherman Antitrust Act. The carriers claim the rules would destroy them.

Chairman Joseph J. O'Connell, jr., of the CAB, interrupted McFarlane's statement during oral argument on the new rules to point out that Congress, in 1938, made air transportation a Federally regulated industry. This, O'Connell said, he did not understand that the Sherman law applied to air transportation.

In private conversation later, several board members expressed the view that McFarlane had argued for a situation of free competition in aviation which could lead to chaos which the Civil Aeronautics Act was intended to prevent.

One member questioned agreed with Howard Westwood, American Airlines attorney, who had said it seemed the Justice Department "seeks to sabotage your effort" to enforce rules governing nonscheduled operations.

The two-day oral argument saw a heated scheduled airline attack made on the manner in which nonscheduled carriers have touted their employment of and management by veterans.

The scheduled airlines proposed that the board repeal the authority of nonscheduled lines to fly at all, either domestically or internationally.

Imports of Soviet Manganese and Chrome Ore Jump

Russiaan shipments of manganese and chrome ore to the United States practically doubled in December, the Census Bureau reported yesterday.

Imports of those strategic metals from the Soviet rose from $1,400,000 in November to $2,700,000 in December. At the same time total United States shipments to Russia were only $500,000 in December and less than $50,000 in November.

The increase in manganese imports took place while United States trade circles were stirring with reports—which have abated recently—about a "coming" Russian cutback in deliveries of this vital steel-making metal.

Meanwhile, the House approved unanimously yesterday a bill suspending for two more years, to March 31, 1951, the import duty on copper. The action is intended to encourage imports of the metal.

British Laborites Face Attack on Health Plan

London, Feb. 16 (U.P.).—Winston Churchill's Conservative Party is expected to launch an attack against the Labor government in the House of Commons Thursday for its "spending spree' under the national health scheme.

Smoke Routs 30 Co-eds At Maryland University

About 30 University of Maryland coeds fled a smoke-filled dormitory yesterday only to learn the smoke came from a chimney clogged with an overload of trash.

Four Prince Georges County volunteer fire companies responded to the alarm in the recently opened dormitory. Some 80 girls occupy the building, but the majority were at classes at the time.

Vice President World Bank's To Go Abroad

Robert L. Garner, vice president of the International Bank for Reconstruction and Development, will leave Sunday on an eight-week trip to France, Greece, Turkey, Iran, Egypt, the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan, Algeria and French Morocco. E. A. Bayne, loan officer, Jean Andre Villechaise, economist, and Mrs. Margaret C. Russell, secretary, will accompany Garner.

In Paris Garner will talk with French officials and with officials of the Organization of European Economic Cooperation. In North Africa and the Near East Garner will hold on-the-spot consultations on how the International Bank can be of aid in financing development facilities in those areas.

Garner expects to arrive in Turkey in time to confer with the mission recently sent there by the International Bank for the purpose of studying Turkey's development program.

Excise Taxes Exceed C. & P. Net In Year

By S. Oliver Goodman

Those Federal excise taxes you pay on telephone bills amounted to nearly a million dollars more than Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. netted in 1948.

Maddox

This was revealed yesterday in the C. & P's annual pamphlet report. Excise taxes collected by the company and remitted to the Government totaled $4,500,800 in 1948. Net income of the company amounted to $3,643,219 during the same 12 months.

In addition, C. & P. Federal income taxes aggregated $3,888,942 for the year, an increase of 43.9 per cent over the previous year.

H. Randolph Maddox, C. & P. president, said that 125,375 telephones were installed in Washington last year, for a net increase of 37,211, the second highest yearly gain on record. New demand for service, he pointed out, continued at a very high level. Unfilled requests at the end of 1948 numbered 3572.

"Total gross additions to plant in 1948," Maddox stated, "amounted to $16,176,972. New construction during the past three years totaled $33,496,250 and equalled the entire amount invested in plant at the end of 1931--an investment that had been built over the first 48 years of the company's history."

At the end of 1948, he said, the total investment in plant amounted to $232 per telephone.

Commenting on results of 1948 operations, Maddox pointed out these highlights:

Total operating revenues amounted to $33,792,783, an increase of 14.4 per cent over 1947.

Operating expenses, including taxes, reached a new high of $29,777,298, an increase of $2,631,-941.

Payrolls totaled $21,186,439, up $1,596,653.

Net income of $3,643,219 was equal to 5.65 per cent on invested capital and compared with $2,152,-212 in 1947.

OUTLOOK FORUM: Washington's business outlook from four viewpoints will be discussed at a luncheon meeting Monday of the Sales Executives Club in the Mayflower. Participating in the panel forum will be Alfred G. Neal, president of Potomac Electric Power Co.; Hulbert T. Bisselle, senior vice president of Riggs National Bank; Andrew Parker, president of Woodward & Lothrop, and Charles H. Hillegeist, head of the real estate firm bearing his name. Donald M. Bernard, advertising director of The Washington Post, will serve as moderator.

BUILDING LESS: January weather held down the number of new home units started in that month to 50,000, the Bureau of Labor Statistics reported. The number was 6000 under the December "starts" and 2600 below that of January, 1948. The January estimate includes 4000 publicly financed units. The New York City Housing Authority was responsible for 3500 of those. Home building was most serious affected in the West North Central States. Moderate increases were reported in the number of permits issued for new homes in the South Atlantic and East South Central regions, where higher than normal temperatures were recorded in January.

AD AWARD: A Hecht Co. advertisement won one of the awards in the "100 Best Retail Advertisements of 1948" contest, conducted by the National Retail Dry Goods Association. Members of the store's advertising staff were presented with certificates. Those honored were Beth Black, Winifred Karger, Martha Owens, John Wolf, Jessica Grice and Richard Meyer.

NEW OFFERINGS: Halsey, Stuart & Co., Inc., heads a group offering 40 million dollars of Duke Power Co. first and refunding mortgage bonds, 2⅞ per cent series due 1919, at 101.31 per cent . . . First Boston Corp. group was awarded $10,005,000 of 2½ per cent Pennsylvania Railroad equipment trust certificates on a bid of 99.76. Reoffering is planned at prices to yield from 1.25 per cent for those maturing 1949, to 2.70 per cent for those maturing 1963 . . . ICC approved Atlantic Coast Line Railroad Co.'s proposed issue of $10,-665,000 of equipment trust certificates.

SWEET STUFF: Those announced price cuts for chocolate bars won't mean a thing for retailers or consumers. The announced reductions, effective at the start of this week, were in the producers' price to wholesalers. Wholesalers' prices to retailers remain unchanged.

EARNINGS: North American Aviation, Inc., reported net income of $1,222,979 for 1948, equal to 36 cents a share, compared with $23,511 or 1 cent a share in 1947. Other earnings reports:

Government Excesses Need Curb—Holden

New York, Feb. 16 (AP).—Speculative excesses by American business and industry "have been singularly absent in the recent boom," Thomas S. Holden, president of F. W. Dodge Corp., said today.

"The big problem is to curb the excesses of Government," he said.

Holden, whose company is a fact-finding organization for the construction industry, addressed a joint convention of the National Sand and Gravel Association and the National Ready Mixed Concrete Association here.

Warning that some of the proposed social-welfare programs of the Government involve "a strong possibility of a return to deficit spending," Holden said this would mean "new inflation and renewed clamor for price controls and other kinds of Government regulation."

He said pressure-group support for a vast public housing program "has been obtained by a clamorous propaganda built on phony statistics of the country's housing needs."

Actually, the Dodge president said, the acute phase of the housing shortage is over. He cited Census Bureau surveys which he said indicate that since 1940 nonfarm housing in the United States has increased by 22 per cent, compared with an 18 per cent rise in nonfarm population.

An Administration measure proposing Federal grants to local governments for slum clearance, Holden asserted, is calculated to by-pass the authority of the States and make local governments dependent upon the favors of the Washington bureaucracy."

He said the bill proposes economic research to include needs estimates which would in fact set quotas for housing production and for all the materials required for the housing programs the Government bureaus might devise in the future.

"Thus is the path made easy for nationalization of key industries via the housing route," Holden commented.

Chicago Grain

Chicago, Feb. 16 (AP).—Soybeans and lard showed strength, while grains failed to get anywhere on the Board of Trade today. Wheat, corn and oats ended with May contracts higher and most deferred deliveries off a bit.

The strength of soybeans and lard largely was tied in with export demand for these products. Holland was reported to have purchased four million pounds of soybean oil. Cuba took approximately five million pounds of lard. Germany and Mexico also were mentioned as lard buyers.

All prices were off at the start, soybeans running up losses of around 3 cents. A creeping advance then got under way, developing considerable speed late in the day. At that time soybeans were up around 7 cents from yesterday's close and 10 cents from earlier lows.

In the closing minutes selling pressure expanded and most deliveries fell back rather rapidly, particularly deferred contracts of grains. Trading was active most of the day, although the start was slow, and the market continued to act nervous and to reverse its trend quickly.

Wheat closed ⅝ lower to 1 cent higher, corn was ⅜ lower to ⅜ higher, oats were ¼ lower to ⅝ higher, rye was 1 to 2 cents lower, soybeans were 2¾-4½ higher, and lard was 10 to 20 cents a hundred pounds higher.

3 Republicans Oppose Welfare Department Plan

By The Associated Press

Some Republican House members served notice yesterday that they will oppose transforming the present Federal Security Agency into a Department of Welfare. They said it looked like a grab for power.

Three Republican members of the House Expenditures Committee filed a minority report protesting the committee's decision Tuesday night to establish such a Cabinet-rank department with broad powers to deal with health, education and social welfare matters.

Representatives Hoffman (R., Mich.), Lovre (R., S. Dak.) and W. L. Pfeiffer (R., N. Y.) termed the committee's action "premature." They also criticized the authority proposed for the Secretary of Welfare as "altogether too broad," giving him a chance to put out "unlimited propaganda" to keep himself in office.

They also urged delay until the Hoover Commission studying reorganization of the executive branch of government makes its recommendations for regrouping welfare agencies.

Bulgar Ministers' Trial Set Feb. 25

Sofia, Bulgaria, Feb. 16 (AP).—Fifteen Protestant ministers and officials charged with treason, espionage and black market money dealings, will go on trial February 25, it was announced tonight.

The arrest of the Protestant churchmen was announced Friday. They will be tried in a Sofia district court. The 15 are of the United Evangelical Church.

Peso Hits New Low

Mexico City, Feb. 16 (AP).—The peso hit a new low today, reflecting Mexicans' lack of confidence in their money. Later the peso steadied. Dollars were bought at 7.13 and sold at 7.16 after two hours' support by the bank of Mexico.

Reds Threaten Japanese Unions

The free trade union movement in American-occupied Japan is making rapid growth, but stands in danger of being captured by the Communists.

That's the estimate of the labor situation in Japan disclosed yesterday by Assistant Secretary of Labor John W. Gibson on his return from an official visit to Japan.

To permit Japanese labor leaders to learn more about democracy and free trade unionsm; Gibson would like to have a group of Jap labor officials visit this country, and a group of American union officials visit Japan.

End of Denazification

Berlin, Feb. 16 (AP).—Denazification of western Berliners will end June 1, United States, British and French officials tonight ordered denazification boards to wind up their business by that date and to accept no additional appeals after February 28.

Marshall Plan Has Slowed Down Reds, ECA Aide Tells Small Businessmen Group

The Marshall Plan has been "a brake on the spread of communism," and much of President Truman's inaugural speech "point four" is already in effect, Deputy ECA Administrator Howard Bruce said last night.

He said the President's "point four" plan for technical knowledge is one reason for the absence of unemployment in western Europe. The now-famous "point four" program "should expand rapidly in the near future," Bruce told a meeting of the National Small Businessmen's Association at the Statler Hotel.

The Economic Cooperation Administration's "first accomplishment," he added, has been "a brake on the spread of communism in western Europe." Evidence of its success can be found "in the increasing violence of the Communistic attacks on the program."

About 500 persons attending the dinner meeting—including some 175 members of Congress—heard a detailed outline of the accomplishments and aims of the "New Army" in a talk by Brig. Gen. C. T. Lanham, director of the Personnel Policy Board Staff of the Office of the Secretary of Defense.

General Lanham assailed those who would undermine the Army's mission by constant criticism. He grouped the Army with businessmen and members of Congress as being "under ceaseless attack" from the public.

Would Slash Spending

He called for drastic reductions in Government spending. There is "only one untouchable item in the budget—that is the interest on the public debt," he said. All others "should and must be cut."

Earlier in the day, several hundreed members of the association visited their Representatives on Capitol Hill and advocated legislation to:

1. Reduce corporation income taxes on the $25,000-$50,000 bracket from 54 to 38 per cent.
2. Add a provision to the Taft-Hartley Act. (which they want retained (banning industry-wide bargaining.
3. Reduce Federal spending, and
4. Eliminate "double taxation" on corporations.

Board Favors New Building For Cardozo

The Board of Education yesterday overrode a recommendation of Dr. George D. Strayer and voted for a new school to replace the present Cardozo High School.

Adopting a report prepared by Schools Superintendent Hobart M. Corning, the board said that a new Cardozo is needed to provide concentrated business training for Negro youth.

Dr. Strayer in his report to Congress on school building needs recommended that plans for Cardozo be scrapped and the proposed new Armstrong and Spingarn High Schools be enlarged to take care of Cardozo students.

A resolution from the McKinley High School Parent-Teacher Association urging sex education in the high school curriculum was received by the board.

Mrs. Gertrud L. Watkins, 1725 S st. nw., teacher of home economics at Armstrong High School, was retired after 36 years service.

The meeting was adjourned early in memory of Mrs. James A. Gannon, wife of the member of the board, who died Tuesday.

Masaryk Left Estate Of $37,000 in Britain

London, Feb. 16 (AP).—Jan Masaryk, who plunged to his death from a window of his Prague residence last March 10, left an estate in England of 9451 pounds ($37,804).

His will, dated September 19, 1940, and probated today, directed that $5000 be paid to Dr. Jan Papanek "to be used by him to carry on the political work for which this money was intended."

"Dr. Papanek, repudiated the Communist government.

Mental Clinics Face Closing In Maryland

Baltimore, Feb. 16 (AP).—Clinics operated in eight Maryland counties for the mentally ill may have to be closed.

Dr. Kenneth B. Jones, chief of the division of mental hygiene in the State Health Department, sounded the warning today.

The trouble is the State has not appropriated money for participation in the National Mental Health Act. This Federal program provides $2 for each $1 the State puts up.

Dr. Jones said the Government allocated $21,120 to the department for the mental health clinics last year, the current appropriation is $47,700 and for the year starting July 1 another $41,000 has been allocated.

Unless the State comes forward with money, the Federal funds will be cut off after July 1, 1950.

One on the Aisle—

Gable Is Superb In Great Movie

By Richard L. Coe

METRO HAS MADE a corking fine picture of "Command Decision," at the Capitol. It's the best screen drama to come out of Hollywood in a long time and you decidedly should see it.

The key to this picture is its integrity. The dialogue is first-rate, the sort of crisp exchanges you get from real people. Imaginatively directed by Sam Wood and played to the hilt by a cast that includes Clark Gable, Walter Pidgeon, Van Johnson, Charles Bickford, Brian Donlevy and John Hodiak, it is a work the world's largest studio can be proud of.

The film closely follows William Wister Haines' novel and stage play, but with some stunning photographic effects on the Eighth Air Force English bomber field in 1943, it boasts one crackling good scene which the stage could show only partially.

This is a shot of Gable, as the harassed one-star general, giving radio instructions to a bombadier, pressed into service as a pilot, on how to bring in his wrecked plane. For wartime scenes in a nutshell, this has a punch that you'll always remember. In a cool, taut voice, the pores of his face breaking out in sweat, Gable tells the washed-out flying cadet when to hit the runway. Just as it seems that the landing has been safely made, disaster is at the controls and the plane bursts into flames, its injured men trapped inside. Surely this will go down as one of the movies' finest scenes.

And in that moment, too, we have what "Command Decision" is about. The story tells of the bitter responsibilities of the top brass. Gable plays a one-star general recently raised to command of a division. Through intelligence channels and weather reports he recognizes that, cost what they may, three jet plane factories must be destroyed at once beyond fighter cover in Germany. The need to keep his men at maximum effort is one thing, to satisfy the various demands of upper levels is another.

Story From Characters

This is embodied in several men: an immediate superior who seeks to keep losses down at the moment he is seeking greater congressional, public and brass support for the entire Air Force; a visiting congressional delegation, one of whom voted against air appropriations in 1938 and now seeks to make national publicity via his aviator nephew; a war correspondent who knows only part of the story and whose dispatches undermine confidence in the brigadier's command; a visiting West Point classmate who might well be after his job but doesn't begin to understand its wracking responsibilities.

While personal friendships play their part in this story, the larger emphasis is on the attitudes of those in responsible positions. Each sees the war as a whole, and this particular segment of it, from his own particular experience. It seems to me that the less admirable aspects of the general's opponents have been softened, but not so much as to destroy the essential tangle.

In the leading role, Gable at last has the sort of part exactly right for him. His scene at the control tower is a real job of acting; he works with his eyes and the very pores of his skin to suggest this brave man whose inner misery is completely expressed. Walter Pidgeon's scene explaining why he's had to turn Army politician is so convincing that the character of his general is not so despicable as I recall it from the stage. Van Johnson's five-stripe wisdom is ably expressed, and from the all-male company you get a completely rounded group of performances.

Last night's premiere was attended by many official, diplomatic and military notables. Maj. Gen. C. R. Smith, president of the Air Force Association, presented a citation of honor to M.-G.-M. "for furthering the cause of air power in the interests of national security and world peace" and for "outstanding public service." The citation was accepted by Eric Johnston, president of the Motion Picture Association, on behalf of M.-G.-M.

"SHOW BOAT" and "Old Man River" won't be with us this year at the natural National, but one of that grand song's better singers will be . . . Kenneth Spencer, who played Joe in the recent revival of "Show Boat," will be giving a concert Saturday night benefiting the Interracial Nursery School . . . The bass will give has concert at the Lincoln Congregational Church, 11th and R sts . . . Tickets from the school, 1703 11th st., DEcatur 1573.

THE MONTGOMERY Players will act "The Male Animal," the James Thurber-Elliott Nugent comedy, Saturday night at 8:30 in the Leland Junior High School auditorium.

"COMMAND DECISION." M-G-M release produced by Sidney Franklin in association with Gottfried Reinhardt. Screen play by William R. Laidlaw and George Froeschel from the play by William Wister Haines. Photographed by Harold Rosson. Music by Miklos Rozsa. At the Capitol Theater.

'Golden Drug' Gives Promise In Measles

Aueromycin, the "golden drug," has halved the treatment time for virus pneumonia and may be effective against measles, a team of local physicians reported here last night.

The ever-increasing importance of the antibiotic was stressed in the report of six George Washington University physicians on their uses of the drug at Gallinger Municipal Hospital.

The report was given in monthly meeting of the District Medical Society by Dr. Harry F. Dowling, clinical professor of medicine, and Drs. Robert Lee Brickhouse and Mark Lepper, both clinical instructors in medicine.

Dr. Dowling, said that the series of nine measles cases treated was too small to warrant a cure claim.

Apparent effect of the drug on measles, he said, is to shorten the fever stage of the disease, the stage that starts before onset of general rash. The fever lessened in six to 24 hours after appearance of the rash, in contrast to the ordinary range of 12 to 48 hours, he said.

Last night's report covered results of aureomycin's use on 150 patients.

Other diseases attacked by the drug in the study included the Rickettsial diseases, such as Rocky Mountain spotted fever, typhus and "Q" fever; pneumonia, and scarlet fever.

Overtime Payment For Sleep Period Ruled Due, Maybe

Trenton, N. J., Feb. 16 (AP).—A night watchman who slept every night he worked may be entitled to overtime wages, the appellate division of New Jersey's superior court ruled today.

A jury should decide the question, the court decided in reversing a lower court opinion in which overtime pay of $3835.69 was ruled out.

Felix Remisiewski of Jersey City filed suit for recovery of overtime pay against his employer, the Parodi Cigar Co. of New York. He said his working hours were 5:30 p. m. to 11 p. m. and 5 a. m. to 8 a. m., but that he was allowed to sleep on company property from 11 p. m. to 5 a. m. without being paid for the sleeping hours.

"My sleep was seriously disturbed by interruptions from representatives of a burglar alarm system, who woke me up two or three times a week, sometimes twice a night," he said in claiming overtime pay for the 11 to 5 period.

Truman Hopes 5 Millions Will Do White House Job

By the United Press

President Truman voiced hope yesterday that five million dollars would be "more than enough" to repair the White House.

Unofficial estimates have run as high as eight million dollars.

Mr. Truman made his comment to members of House and Senate subcommittees on public works who called on him. The President said he wanted the full committees to make an inspection tour of the building.

Because of the fire danger and possible structural collapse, the Truman family moved out of the White House last fall and now lives at Blair House, across Pennsylvania ave.

Baptists Pick Huggins; To Meet Here in 1950

Biloxi, Miss., Feb. 16 (AP).—Dr. M. A. Huggins of Raleigh, N.C., was reelected president of the Southern Baptist Convention at a meeting of executive secretaries of the convention today.

Also reelected were Dr. John McGuire, Jacksonville, Fla., vice president; and Dr. Willis J. Ray, Phoenix, Ariz., recording secretary.

'Blackout' Halts Speech Of S. African Premier

Capetown, South Africa, Feb. 16 (U.P.).—Premier D. F. Malan had a "blackout" and was forced to stop midway in a speech to the South African Assembly today.

Malan read the same few words over several times. Former Premier Jan Smuts prompted him, but Malan got stuck again. The speaker adjourned the debate.

Malan's physician said later the Premier was "all right now—it was just a little blackout. It has happened to him before and could happen to anyone while making a speech."

Central, Tech Win Interhigh Games

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

EARL J. HILLIGAN, who used to write baseball for the Associated Press with care to repress bias in his dispatches, now admits to violent partisanship in his post as public relations director of the American League. The last time the National League won a World Series, Hilligan dismissed it airily with "anything can happen in baseball."

DEFINITELY he is not to be trusted in his thinking whenever the merits of the two leagues are the topic. He has avowed for too long that any temporary superiority of the National League in the World Series and the All-Star games is accidental. But when he turns his hand to the authorship of the annual American League Red Book, Hilligan becomes the completely trustworthy historian.

POVICH

The American League Red Book for 1949 is at hand this week and the pity is that it isn't aimed at wider circulation than the club officials and press and radio correspondents. For the baseball fan it represents meat and would-be best-seller material.

It's choked with the kind of departmentalized facts that give an illuminating picture of what actually happened in the 1948 pennant race, and what could happen this season. What they did last year, and who are these new guys coming up with eight American League clubs.

THE INDIANS won the 1948 pennant, Hilligan points out, because, for one very important reason, they played better ball at night than any other club in the league; better than they did in the day games, in fact. And in every instance the standings of the clubs at the finish reflected exactly their success in night ball.

Ted Williams was the league's best hitter, but not at night. That distinction belonged to Lou Boudreau, who hit .368 under the arcs. But the Red Book reveals something specious in Williams' own claims that he didn't like to hit under the lights. He has claimed for a couple of years, you remember, that he was at a disadvantage because he couldn't see the ball spinning, unlike in the day games. But he had a .361 average under the lights, nevertheless, a figure only eight points below his over-all average.

Hilligan's book lays bare, too, the reason why the fourth-place Athletics finished in the first division. They did it by beating the daylights out of Washington, Chicago and St. Louis in the parks of the latter clubs. The A's won 10 out of 11 at Washington, 10 out of 11 at Chicago, and 9 out of 11 at St. Louis. At home, they couldn't break even with the Nats and White Sox.

THE LOW ESTATE of the Nats last season was apparently no accident. They hit fewer home runs than any club in the league, 42. On the road Gil Coan hit four homers, all of them in St. Louis. At Fenwick Park, Boston, where home runs are supposed to be cheap, the Nats hit none of the 102 that were clouted out of that park. In Detroit, another inviting park for homers, the Nats hit one—the contribution of Earl Wooten, rated least likely to hit a homer anywhere.

In their own park, where they play 77 games, the Nats compiled only 11 homers. The Yankees, in only 11 games at Griffith Stadium, swatted 8. Williams, Joe DiMaggio and Larry Doby hit homers in every park in the league. Griffith Stadium stopped Pat Seerey of the White Sox from hitting for the circuit around the circuit.

Tommy Henrich of the Yankees claimed the distinction of hitting more grand-slam homers with the bases filled than any other guy. He achieved that feat four times in 1948, thereby joining three other guys in American League history. They, too, are well known, being the late Babe Ruth, Lou Gehrig and Rudy York.

THIS EDITION of the Red Book emphasizes anew that the .300 batting average still qualifies as the select circle for hitters. Among those who have figured in 400 games, the equivalent of three seasons, only seven players can boast a lifetime batting average of .300 or better. Williams is tops with his .354 for seven years in the majors and his margin is 24 points of the runner-up, Joe DiMaggio. Buddy Lewis barely gets in with an even .300 for his 10 years in the league.

And what the club owners are pleased to call the Great American Game apparently comes close, at least, to being for Americans only. Hilligan lists only three foreign-born players on the rosters of the eight clubs that include a total of 320 names.

The Athletics own two of these with Outfielder Elmo Valo claiming Ribnik, Czechoslovakia as his nativity, and Rookie Pitcher Henry Bisatti, born in Italy. The White Sox own Chick Piretti, also Italian-born. Hilligan apparently discounts Cleveland's Steve Gromek, born in Hamtrack, Mich.

Veeck Wages Hot Fight With Council Over Rent

Cleveland, Feb. 16 (AP).—The "cold war" between Bill Veeck and city council over rental of Cleveland Stadium started to simmer today.

The Cleveland Indians' president said that maybe it would be better if he ran his own ball park, while Councilman Henry W. Speeth expressed critical interest in Veeck's promotional expenses.

Speeth, Democratic floor leader in council, said that "unless Veeck is prepared to give the city a fair contract (for stadium rental) I intend to ask him about reports of lavish gifts of diamond rings and television sets, about reports of a party for World Series sports writers said to have cost $75,000, and of other lavish parties."

Veeck Replies Quickly

"The minute council sticks its nose into my personal affairs, they are on dangerous ground," the Tribe president said. "My personal affairs aren't any topic for general discussion by city council.

"I am merely a tenant. As long as I live up to my obligations and pay my bills, I have discharged my duty under our contract.

"There comes a break-even point at which it is better to run your own ball park and we are close to that."

The Speeth-Veeck verbal exchange came after Councilman Jack P. Russell said he would introduce February 28 a resolution requesting Mayor Thomas A. Burke to limit the number of Indians' games at the stadium to 40 instead of the customary 77.

Veeck said city councilmen did not realize that the $450,000 spent by the Cleveland Baseball Corp. in "promotional work—advertising, party for Ohio mayors, ladies' days and entertainment for 400,000 school children" aided the entire city.

The ball club also was the largest single contributor to the community fund and gave a lot of money for sandlot baseball, Veeck added.

"We could go back to the old operation under which Cleveland baseball owners made money for a good many years," Veeck continued. "Of course, Cleveland didn't win anything. When you are fighting for your life, you have to protect yourself."

Mayor Is for Veeck

Acting Mayor Lee C. Howley said:

"It is to the best interests of the Indians and the city of Cleveland that the baseball team play all its home games in the stadium. The city intends to live up to the letter of the law of its contract and has no intention of abrogating it. However, there is no question that the stadium didn't yield a fair return to the taxpayers last season."

Figures released by Stadium Commissioner Paul Hurd showed the Indians paid an average of $1978 per game to the city last year, or 6 cents per fan paid by trast to 12 cents per fan paid by the Cleveland Browns professional football team.

Veeck termed the figures "inaccurate."

The city, he said, provided the Browns with such help as ticket takers, ushers and police, while the Indians spent $155,000 in 1948 for such service, in addition to a gross rent of $152,359.

D. C. Figure Skaters Place Third In World Tournament at Paris

Crowd Boos, Feels Ann Davies and Hoffner Best

PARIS, Feb. 16 (AP).—Carlton Hoffner, jr., and Ann Davies, a young couple from Washington, D. C., took third place in pairs competition at the world's figure skating championships here today.

Hoffner, 17, a former Central High tennis player, now a freshman at Virginia, and Miss Davies, 18, a student at Woodrow Wilson High in Washington, finished behind Andrea Kekesy and Ede Kiraly, the Hungarian champs, and Karol and Peter Kennedy of Seattle, Wash.

The Hungarians' winning score was 11.35 points. The Hoffner-Davies score was 10.64.

The fans let loose with the greatest demonstration of the evening when the Davies-Hoffner score was announced. The crowd booed and whistled in protest over the low rating they received.

MISS DAVIES, a petite redhead with a pixie smile, and Hoffner, were making their first start in the world competition. The contest was judged on free skating only.

Dick Button of Englewood, N. J., gave a remarkable display of rhythm to take a long lead in defense of his world's figure skating championship.

The 19-year-old wizard of the flashing blades, holder of both the Olympic and world titles, amassed 638.1 points in skating six compulsory figures to move far in front of the 12-man field. The scoring was unofficial.

The second phase of the competition—free skating, which is Button's specialty—will be staged tomorrow. Observers feel that nothing short of a calamity could keep the Harvard freshman from winning his second straight world title.

Loss Costs Eastern Sure Berth In Playoffs

By Herb Heft
Post Reporter

Eastern missed a chance to clinch one of the three remaining playoff spots yesterday by dropping a 51-37 decision to Central's Vikings in the first game of an Interhigh basketball double-header at the Armory.

In the second game, McKinley Tech moved into a fourth place tie with idle Coolidge by trimming Anacostia, 50-47. A crowd of 1198 saw the double-header.

INTERHIGH STANDINGS

	W.	L.	Pct.		W.	L.	Pct.
Wilson	8	0	1.000	Roosevelt	4	5	.444
Eastern	6	2	.750	Western	3	5	.375
Central	6	2	.750	Anacostia	3	6	.333
Coolidge	5	3	.625	Ch'berlain	1	7	.125
McKinley	5	3	.625	Bell	0	8	.000

With the four-team playoffs scheduled to open Tuesday night, only unbeaten Wilson is assured of its participation. Central and Eastern are tied for second with 6-2 records. Tech is tied with Coolidge for fourth, each with 5-3 records.

Line-up for the playoffs depends on the outcome of three games today and tomorrow. This afternoon at 3:30, Coolidge faces Chamberlain at Coolidge. On Friday, Central plays Tech and Wilson meets Eastern. If Friday night finds two teams tied for fourth, a preliminary playoff will be held on Saturday, probably at the Armory.

Central called on its two tiniest players, Jimmy Pantos and Terry Gregory, to pull them past the Ramblers. Five-foot 10-inch Pantos had a hot hand at the outset, scoring four field goals in the first three minutes, and sparked the Vikings into a 14-4 first quarter lead.

The Vikings upped their margin to 19-6 early in the second quarter and then watched Eastern get hot, and cut its halftime deficit to 21-17.

Five-foot 9-inch Gregory took up the cudgel for Central in the second half, netting nine points. The Vikings led, 35-27, and coasted home.

Pantos fouled out with 5:30 left in the game, but took scoring honors with 16 points, and Gregory had 14.

Anacostia, upset victor over Coolidge last Monday, gave Tech an awful scare in the second game. Tech scored the first seven points, but Anacostia scored the next eight, and it was nip and tuck the rest of the way.

In the first half, the lead changed hands 11 times, and Anacostia took a 22-21 lead into the dressing room. Billy Werber put Tech ahead with the first basket of the third quarter, and the Trainers kept the lead until three minutes of the last quarter and elapsed.

A set shot by Sonny English and a foul toss by Ronnie Brooks at that point put the Indians on top, 43-42. Werber again came to Tech's rescue with a layup, and the Trainers stayed ahead the rest of the way.

Werber played the best game of his interhigh career, scoring 17 points, and grabbing most of the rebounds. Tony Sgro was right behind with 15. Dick Cook, hitting from outside, sparked Anacostia with 10 points, and his loss on fouls with six minutes left in the game was fatal to Anacostia.

VA Pays Bill For Feller's Flight Drills

Cleveland, Feb. 16 (AP).—Bob Feller, the pitcher, has a Veterans Administration certificate of eligibility for a course in advanced flight training.

The Cleveland Indians hurler owns a small private plane, holds a pilot's license and makes frequent aerial trips.

His eligibility for training at Government expense is based on his four years service in the Navy.

An official of the local VA office, who declined the use of his name, said today the type of training for which Feeller was certified involves tuition running "somewhere between $300 and $500."

He said subsistence allowances were not involved in Feller's case because of a ceiling on the total of a veteran's earnings and subsistence. In the case of a veteran with more than one dependent, if the earnings plus subsistence would run more than $290 a month, no subsistence is paid.

The VA official said regulations concerning Government-paid tuition made no distinction in the earning power of various veterans, this factor being taken into account only in determining whether subsistence should be paid. Feller's 1949 contract, based in part on bonus attendance clauses, is believed to enable him to earn about $72,500 this year.

The Veterans' Administration no longer certifies veterans for flight courses for pleasure flying only but for business purposes. The VA official said a statement which Feller submitted with his application related the necessity for quick trips from the scenes of his ball-playing to his pusiness interests scattered around the country.

The certificate of eligibility enables a veteran to enroll in a flight school of his choice, and signifies to the school that the Government will pay the tuition.

Feller, asked for comment, said he felt in view of his four years in the Navy he was justified in taking advantage of the course. He said he needed the training for aerial business trips.

3 Ex-D. C. Teachers 'Promote' Army's World Boxing Show

The Army's first global boxing tournament, opening Monday night at Fort Myer, is the most ambitious indoor fistic production ever attempted here, and if it's successful, three former District school teachers deserve some of the credit.

They are Maj. Herman Littman, Capt. Joey Kaufman and Sergt. 1/C Jim Munro, who formerly taught physical education at Roosevelt, Eastern and Central Highs, respectively.

Kaufman comes closest to being classed as an expert in boxing promotion. He was a candidate for the University of North Carolina team back in 1935.

Performs Like Veterans

Yet, despite their inexperience, they're handling their assignments like seasoned promoters.

As athletic officer of the Military District of Washington, Littman is official host of the tournament. He's also in charge of the eight MDW boxers entered. And he is in charge of channeling the ring equipment, lights, microphones, telegraph wires, etc., in his six-camp command to Fort Myer.

Kaufman is athletic officer (or athletic director) at Fort Myer. With Capt. Irving Fleisher, of West Orange, N. J., he is in charge of the gyms and dressing rooms of the 64 visiting champions. He has finished moving 4000 bleacher seats from the camp football field to the riding hall, scene of the tournament.

Munro is the "house mother" to the 64 visitors at their new homes. He arranged their transfer from the guard house, where they were originally quartered to their comparatively swank quarters, which are equipped with a television set, ping pong tables, etc. He also takes care of their training table, drawing up their menus, and keeping tab on their bed-times.

The three former D. C. teachers were on hand to greet boxers from the Pacific Command and Sixth Army, who arrived yesterday at Bolling Field from San Francisco. This afternoon, eight more boxers from the Fourth Army will arrive, bringing the number of teams here to six. Nine teams are entered.

Colonials Beat Out Quantico

Quantico, Va., Feb. 16.—Bill Cantwell shot George Washington to a 60-58 victory over the Quantico Marines here tonight.

Cantwell, whose 16 points topped the Colonials, got 10 of them early after intermission when the visitors overcame a four-point halftime deficit and went ahead to stay.

Later, when the Marines threatened to recapture the lead, Cantwell went into action again, bagging six more points to keep his club in front.

Led by Cy Waldrop, former Naval Academy star who scored 14 of his 19 points in the first half, the Marines ran up a 30-26 halftime lead.

Post Bowling Tourney Steams Ahead With Entries Soaring

Interest in the third annual bowling tournament sponsored by The Washington Post in cooperation with the Metropolitan Washington Duckpin Operators' Association for the benefit of the Metropolitan Police Boys Club and nearby county boys' activities, continued to mount as the third day and night of competition found all 27 alleys in this area buzzing at top speed.

Operators reported good scores at all alleys and also that entries in many cases had more than doubled the turnout for 1948. Additional entry blanks were requested by Bethesda Bowling Center, where Manager Fred Murphy, reported almost 300 entries the first two days; Penn Recreation Center, where Manager Lou Kramer has already secured more than 200; Brookland Bowling Alleys, where yesterday afternoon Manager Karl Gouchenour secured almost 100 per cent participation from the 60 women of the P-TA League; and Clarendon Bowling Center where participation at this stage is ahead of 1948.

Manager Hap Newman of Chevy Chase Ice Palace, with the aid of the Women's Auxiliary of the Police Boys Club, announced that his field of entries for the first two nights had exceeded by 200 that of last year, and is confident that before the event ends, his alleys will have rounded up close to 2000 bowlers.

Newman and Julie Singer, manager of Greenway, cochairmen, official scorers, and top men of the prize committee, are confident there is an excellent chance of hitting the 15,000 mark before the competition ends, on March 1.

Penn Recreation scores were reported red hot. For instance, Joseph Kirk of the U. S. Geodetic League yesterday clicked off a 399-87-486, but Manager Kramer has indicated that somebody will top this before the week ends. From the same league, H. Moritz tallied a 341-111 for a 452.

Bethesda Bowling Center also reported a torrid score. Ed Schmidt of the Bethesda 340 League batted out a 472, which was fashioned from a 418 gross and a 54 handicap, featured a 163 high game. In the Bethesda Ladies' League, Christine Wendehack scored a 309-81-390.

Pollard Hurt As Lakers Rout Stags

Minneapolis, Feb. 16 (AP).—Even without Jim Pollard, injured seven seconds after the game started, Minneapolis scooted to a 90-71 victory over Chicago in a Basketball Association of America contest tonight before 4923.

George Mikan led the Lakers with 25 points, which brought him within 5 points of Joe Fulks, Philadelphia's ace in the individual scoring race. Arny Ferrin from Utah filled in for Pollard with 15 counters.

Swede Carlson got 17 as the Lakers pulled away early in the second half.

C. U. Strategy Slows Foes, Poses Problem

IN HIS FOXY effort to stop fast-breaking teams, Catholic U. Coach Abe Rosenfield is annoying a few Mason-Dixon Conference basketball coaches and eventually may wind up getting in the hair of the rules makers.

Rosenfield's system is quite simple—and entirely legal, Abe says. He keeps a substitute stationed at the timer's table and every time CU scores a basket or the other team brings in the ball, Abe sends in his man.

It particularly harassed then unbeaten Loyola which Catholic held to a 56-47 score.

Eddie LaFond, C.U. director of athletics, said yesterday he received word that Paul Menton, commissioner of the conference, was seeking an interpretation of Rosenfield's method. Menton himself thought it perfectly within the rules.

SO DOES Rosenfield, who said, "Some complain that it slows the game. I doubt if more than five minutes are added. Thing important to me is that it slows down those fast-breaking opponents."

Baseball Can't Afford Fights

By Red Smith

New York, Feb. 16 (NYHT.).—Veeck is Veeck and Weiss is Weiss and if either of 'em has a brain in his head the twain will not meet in Happy Chandler's star chamber. With the courts turning a jaundiced eye upon baseball's business methods and the Department of Justice snooping into monopolistic aspects of the game, this is hardly the time for baseball to break out its soiled linen under the public nose.

In ordinary circumstances, the current bickering between the Yanks' George Weiss and the Indians' Bill Veeck over the services of Artie Wilson, a Negro shortstop, would only furnish a smidgeon of good midwinter fun. Things could get thicker fast, though, if Chandler were asked to apply baseball law to a guy over whom baseball never has had jurisdiction.

Wilson has been an employe of the Birmingham Black Barons, who do not belong to organized baseball. The Yankees, seeking to buy his release from the Barons, made an offer to that club which was accepted by telegraph. Before they signed him, however, Veeck made an offer to Birmingham which, he says, was also accepted. Then he got Wilson ahead of the Yankee representatives and put him under contract.

Weiss hollered Copper. In the absence of written rules for such cases, Chandler has requested that baseball protocol be observed in deals with Negro leagues and there be no indiscriminate raids upon teams like the Barons. As fair business practice, this seems the only decent policy.

Therefore if it can be established that the Yankees were the first to reach formal agreement with the Barons, it would seem that Chandler would have to rule in New York's favor. It would be inconsistent with his policy to let Veeck muscle in on a deal the Yankees had made in good faith.

But as far as baseball law is concerned, Wilson has been a free agent. If Chandler took him away from Cleveland and assigned him to the Yankees, that would be denying a free agent the right to accept the better offer. Or, at least, the offer he prefers.

It would seem wisest, just at this time, to forget this quarrel and add the case to baseball's voluminous file on rookies who got away. There isn't a club in existence that hasn't had some prize catches wriggle off the hook.

Redland Hunt Races Listed For March 5

Redland Hunt's point-to-point races, annually the first horse competition hereabouts, have been scheduled for March 5. The usual four fixtures will be on the program: Terpenning Cup Pair Race; Gap Hunters Race; Heavyweight Race and Redland Bowl.

The Redland Bowl is the program feature and will be over a course of from 4 to 5 miles of hunting country. The event annually draws topflight horses and riders from Maryland and Virginia. As in the Terpenning and Heavyweight tests, all horses entered must have been hunted during the current season with Redland or other recognized or registered hunts.

The Bowl is "open to all" and riders will weigh in at a minimum of 165 pounds. The Terpenning is for catch weights with a lady and gentleman or two ladies to make a pair. In the heavyweight event, riders must weigh 200 pounds or more with tack.

Entries for the program close on March 1 and are being received by William Bowling, racing secretary, 7124 Moorland Ine. Bethesda, Md., phone Wisconsin 5826. Entries cost $3 per horse with post entries accepted at $6. No entry fee is required for the Gap Hunters Race which is open only to families of landowners or renters in the Redland country.

As usual with point-to-point racing, the exact location of the course is not announced until 48 hours before the program.

Track Opens Meet Apr. 11, Bucks 'Graw

Charleston, W. Va., Feb. 16 (AP).—An expanded program of 79 days of racing at the Charles Town track was approved today by the West Virginia racing commission.

Chairman Beverley Broun said the dates would include a split spring season, beginning April 11 and ending May 5, and another opening May 16 and closing June 11.

Another 18 days, with the first five days taken over by the Charles Town Horse Show Association, will open on June 27 and close July 16.

The 15-day winter meeting will be held from December 5 to December 21.

Broun said the stepped-up program had largely been based upon requests by stable owners who wanted the additional days of racing to offset idleness and the incident overhead costs when no tracks were in operation.

It was explained that the new Charles Town dates would not conflict with any half-mile tracks in adjoining Maryland, although Havre De Grace, Md., a mile layout, will be going from April 11 to May 4. This period covers all but one day of the first dates approved for Charles Town.

At the same time, the State commission approved the same dates for Wheeling Downs as last year. This will be a 55-day meet extending from July 30 to October 1.

Charles Town had 61 days of racing last year, an 18-day meeting in December and a 43-day program extending from May to July.

Md. Bill Asks More Days for Half-Milers

Baltimore, Feb. 16 (AP).—The legislators are seeking more racing days for Maryland's half-mile tracks.

Senators Dulin (D., Anne Arundel) and Bailey (R., St. Mary's) introduced a bill to authorize the tracks to run for 12 days each instead of 10.

Senator Dulin said his bill to increase each half-miler's season is designed to attract better horses. Under the present 10-day limit, the senator said, a horse can run in only two races at each track. During a 12-day meeting, he figures, an owner would have three shots at purses.

Western Swimmers Win From Bullis

On Tonight's Schedule

Four Area Colleges Play in 2 Games Here

Two teams seek revenge against intra-District rivals in the top games on tonight's local court calendar.

Maryland, beaten in the last second the last time it met Georgetown, entertains the Hoyas at College Park. American U., victor by 58-40 over Catholic U., has to convince the Cardinals again at Brookland.

In other games here Wilson Teachers plays Bridgewater and Howard meets North Carolina A. & T. at Turner's Arena.

Elmer Ripley's fading Georgetown quintet hopes to snap a four-game losing streak against Maryland. The Hoyas boast triumphs over GW and the Terps and still can salvage the mythical District title from an otherwise disastrous season.

Capt. Ray Corley was responsible for the Hoyas' 53-51 win over Maryland at the Armory. After Ronnie Siegrist tied the game with a foul toss in the last 30 seconds, Corley slowly brought the ball up court. He coolly held it while his bench counted off the seconds, then shot his basket just before the final whistle.

Flucie Stewart's Terps have an atrocious 6-14 record but recently have been playing better ball than they have all season. North Carolina interrupted their three-game winning streak last Saturday but the Terps still feel they can play on even terms with a Georgetown team that has lost seven of its last eight.

Catholic U., loser of its last three starts, is battling to stay in the running for a Mason-Dixon Conference play-off bid against American U. tonight.

The Eagles stunned previously unbeaten Loyola, 63-47, Tuesday night and now have a 9-2 Conference mark. In their first meeting, the teams played on even terms until the fourth quarter when Staff Cassell's Eagles pulled away.

At Boxing Friday

Terps Save 800 Seats For Public

EIGHT HUNDRED seats will be reserved for the general public at College Park tomorrow night when Maryland's boxers meet Michigan State, their 1948 Sugar Bowl victims.

The Terps are coming off a 6-2 setback at the hands of LSU which defeated Michigan State's mittmen in this year's Sugar Bowl. Big gun for the visitors is 145-pound Charley Davey, three-time NCAA champ.

Catholic Host to Citadel

Undefeated Citadel and Catholic U. boxing teams clash tomorrow night at Brookland. The Citadel, seeking its fourth straight win, features two Southern Conference champs, Dale Matthews, 165-pounder with 21 consecutive collegiate decisions, and Bill Ohlandt, heavyweight.

Johnny Arnold, CU lightweight, will sit out The Citadel match. Three aspirants for his spot include Tom Wing, Joe Incarnato and John Doherty. The Cardinals are after their third straight win.

Hoyas Run in Garden

Georgetown's mile relay team, with the Nation's second best time indoors this year, competes in the National AAU meet in Madison Square Garden Saturday night.

Vin Cino, Mort Kane, Bob Spearman and Ed Sause raced the mile in 3:20.4 in the New York A. C. meet, only two-tenths of a second behind the best time made by N. Y. U.

The Hoya 2-mile team of Dick Saunders, Pat O'Brien, Dave Smith and Joe Deady has been clocked in 7:51 and that's third best in the country this year.

Colts at Greenbelt

Greenbelt Recreation Department's basketball team figuratively tackles the Baltimore Colts tonight at the Greenbelt Center School gym. Leading the Colts will be Y. A. Tittle, LaMarr Davis and Buzz Mehrtes.

Llanos Sub at Turner's

Art Llanos, Puerto Rican bantam champ, will replace Jose Cardenas as Jimmy Cooper's opponent next Monday night at Turner's. Cardenas suffered a cut eye in his recent draw with Felix Ramirez and has been advised to rest.

Army-Navy Site Due Soon

Annapolis, Md., Feb. 16 (AP).—Capt. H. H. Caldwell, Naval Academy athletic director, said today the site of the 1949 Army-Navy football game will be decided shortly.

The two academies have been looking around for some time for a stadium in which to stage the annual classic—with an eye on the net proceeds.

Philadelphia, where the game has been played the last few years, is one of the places under consideration, Caldwell added. He gave no hint of the others.

Whatever agreement is reached may be for one year or a longer term, Caldwell said.

"We have made a good study of possible places," Caldwell said, "and determined certain costs—especially rail transportation for the midshipmen and cadets. We are interested in what the net proceeds will be because it runs our athletic program.

"To date, to our knowledge, no decision has been reached."

Under an inter-academy agreement, each serves as "home team" in alternate years. Army will be host for the 1949 meeting.

New Orleans authorities reportedly turned down the game because the city would have to spend more than it would receive.

Silver Spring 'Gas' Station Is Opposed

Approximately 50 Silver Spring residents opposed erection of a proposed gasoline filling station at Gist and Chicago aves. last night at a Montgomery County zoning hearing.

The rezoning petition, submitted by the Sinclair Refining Co. seeking clearance of the filling station, was one of six heard by the Montgomery County Council, during the zoning meeting in the Liquor Control Board Building in Silver Spring.

Refining company spokesmen warned opponents it owns six adjoining lots "and we can go ahead any time we want to."

Samuel E. Stonebreaker, Washington real estate man, speaking for the company, said rezoning of the lone lot would "eliminate a mud hole and improve the neighborhood."

When he added, "We don't want the rezoning if the neighborhood doesn't want it," the citizens applauded. Under questioning by Chairman Frederic P. Lee, however, Stonebreaker said the company would not withdraw the petition.

The Maryland-National Capital Parks and Planning Commission was unable to agree upon a recommendation and Commissioners Richard F. Green and Clarence C. Keser voted in favor of approval while Vice Chairman E. Brooke Lee opposed the change.

A petition opposing the project, bearing 75 signatures, was presented by the Sligo Avenue Citizens Association. Speakers charged erection of a filling station would depreciate property values, lead to increased traffic endangering school children, and destroy the residential character of the neighborhood.

A. U. Swimmers Splash Dickinson

Tankmen of American University chalked up their fourth victory in five outings this season yesterday as they outsplashed Dickinson College, 39-36, at the local pool. Whitmore, of the invaders, was the individual star with three first places.

'Society Jewel Thief' Reported Captured

Cleveland, Feb. 16 (U.P.)—Police tonight reported the capture of a "society jewel thief" who had 11 packets of unset diamonds on him valued at around $100,000.

The man was identified as Gerald Graham Dennis, 28, of New Rochelle, N. Y.

Scientists Urged To Refuse to Do Arms Research

Dr. Nelson Fuson, assistant professor of physics at Howard University, last night urged scientists to refuse to do research for military or destructive purposes.

In so doing, they would contribute to the interests of peace, he told the Washington Pacifist Fellowship at its meeting at the Friends Meeting House, 2111 Florida ave. nw.

Dr. Fuson said scientists seeking to turn away from preparation for war must refuse to do destructive work, stimulate discussion among themselves and remove secrecy from their efforts, seek a worldwide agreement against use of mass destruction weapons and take positive action to halt manufacture of atomic weapons.

Operation Performed Upon Harry Bridges

San Francisco, Feb. 16 (AP).—Harry Bridges, CIO Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union president, was operated upon for a stomach ailment today at University of California Hospital.

His surgeon, Dr. Leon Goldman would not comment on the operation other than to say it was "a successful stomach operation" and that "procedure was normal."

Doubling of Liquor Tax, License Fees Favored

A 2 per cent sales tax and doubling of the present tax on liquor and present liquor license fees were advocated last night by the Dahlgren Terrace Citizens Association, meeting at Crosby Noyes School, 10th and Franklin sts. ne.

Salary increases of $330 annually also were indorsed by the association for District police, firemen, teachers and civil employes.

In other business, the group favored the extension of rent control for another year, advocated the establishment of a dispensary system for liquor sales and elected Mrs. Iva Rhyne delegate to the Northeast Council.

Eastland Garden

The Eastland Garden Civic Association has approved a 2 per cent sales tax for the District, an opposing stand to that of the executive committee of the Federation of Civic Associations.

The civic group took the action at its meeting Tuesday night at 4214 Meade st. ne.

The favoring vote was taken after members expressed the belief that homeowners would bear the increased burden of taxation if a sales tax is not enacted.

In other action, the group supported the Marshall Heights body in opposing redevelopment of that area, reaffirmed its opposition to the opening of a retail liquor store in the 1000 block of Kenilworth ave. ne. and referred the problem of burning garbage and trash at the Benning dump to its committee on civic improvement. It also supported the opposition to this practice voted by the Kenilworth Citizens Association and the Kenilworth P-TA.

Trinidad

Th Trinidad Citizens Association will sponsor a movie at the Atlas Theater March 2 and 3 with proceeds to be used for the Trinidad Playground, it was announced last night at the group's meeting at the Wheatley School, Montello ave. and Neal st. ne.

"Give us the tools . . ."

Now is the time to FIGHT SOCIALISM in Washington

Permission is freely extended to companies, associations, or individuals to quote from or reprint all or parts of these editorial messages, with or without credit mention.

This is the 73rd of a series.

Do we want to follow Britain down the economic skids?

We Americans face that question today. For we are being advised by Administration economists in Washington to take the course which destroyed Britain industrially. It is the temporarily easy course of cutting down expenditures for tools in order to have more things to consume right away.

The President's Council of Economic Advisers tells us we are spending too large a part of our national income on new tools and equipment. A larger share, they say, should go for goods and services used directly by consumers.

Before we take that advice, let us look at Britain. When the British once allowed their industrial plants and equipment to run down—they started down a dreary road to industrial stagnation and decay.

British industry once ruled the world. Low production costs enabled it to undersell all competitors. Efficiency gave British workers the highest living standards anywhere.

Now all that Britain has between it and economic disaster is pluck and American aid through the Marshall Plan.

The British people are living poorly—still on rations and in austerity. With practically everyone working, and working longer hours than we do in the United States, they cannot produce enough to pay for the raw materials and food they must import.

How did Britain get in this fix?

The story is complicated. British sacrifices in two wars play a tragic part in it. But another fact also stands out:

Britain began to go downhill even before World War I—when British industries allowed their plants and equipment to grow obsolete.

Once that process started, it grew steadily worse. By 1929 the share of Britain's national income being plowed back into capital investment had shrunk to less than two-thirds of what it had been twenty years earlier. We were putting twice as big a share of our national income into capital goods at this same time.

Skimping on capital equipment—on new plants and new tools—put the skids under industrial Britain.

World War II only speeded up a process already well under way.

British industry today shows the results of its failure to keep up to date. Here are three examples found by Dr. Laci Rostas, Britain's leading authority on measuring workers' productivity:

An American produces four times as much pig iron as his British counterpart.

He produces more than four times as many tires.

In all industry, on the average, an American produces almost three times as much.

The real reason is the American's better tools. The British are struggling with equipment that is, on the average, forty years old.

Britain once had a big head start in industrial equipment. But she let it slip away. And as it went, Britain's industrial and political leadership slipped with it.

How could British leaders have slept while all this happened?

This, too, is a complicated story. But parts of it stand out clearly:

1. British business men put in more time perfecting cartels to avoid competition than they did in improving their plants and equipment to meet it.

2. British labor leaders concentrated on sharing the work and sharing the wealth—rather than doing the job necessary to have enough wealth to make the sharing worthwhile.

3. British governments taxed away the means to buy new equipment. By steadily increasing personal taxes, they undercut the ability of individuals to invest in new equipment. Finally, they took away the incentive to get new equipment by progressively taxing away any returns on it.

4. Farseeing socialists smiled all the while, knowing that as private industry more and more lacked the tools to do a progressive job, they would have their chance to run the country.

Now, with Britain's fate in their hands, the socialists are trying desperately to stem the nation's economic decline by rebuilding its industrial plants and equipment.

They are making a little headway, but not enough. There are several reasons. One is that Britain must export most of the new equipment she can make. Another major reason—increasingly important for her future—is that money needed to renovate Britain's run-down industry is taxed away to support welfare programs. The (London) Economist grimly puts it this way:

"The importance of the function of saving has only been discovered now that the means of saving have largely been destroyed."

Our own Federal and State governments, too, have dangerously whittled away incentives. They have more than tripled tax rates on personal and corporation incomes in the last twenty years. Now, the President proposes to do more whittling.

If the United States is not to go Britain's way, we must preserve our incentives to save and to invest in industry.

If the United States is to progress, we must continue to build up our industries.

The President's Economic Advisers say we can slow down. But the McGraw-Hill survey of "Business' Needs for New Plants and Equipment," reported in the previous editorial in this series, produced facts to the contrary.* It showed that industry now plans—if it can get the money—to spend $55 billion in the next five years for new plants and new tools. Moreover, it showed industry's needs for new facilities are large.

By cutting down the incentives to save, by giving soothing advice that we do not need to save so much, Washington is pushing us toward Britain's way—the route via industrial stagnation to socialization.

Before we skid too far, we should pull up short and ask ourselves: Do we want to go Britain's socialistic way?

There still is time to say, "No."

New Paper Money 'Seasoned' to Make It Last Longer

STORY: Did you ever hear of "seasoning" paper money? Most of us don't have the opportunity to lay away a few bucks until they are properly "cured." So, the Treasury does it for us. In fact, it seasons paper money not unlike a farmer cures a ham.

E. L. Kilby, the Commissioner of Public Debt, insists that the various money bills be held in stock and treated for several months after it's printed in order to properly "season" it. Otherwise, he says, the paper bills will wear out much sooner.

Not long ago Kilby checked up on his reserve stock of paper money. He counted only 5½ million sheets compared to triple that number about six months ago. In other words, Treasury was being forced to put out "green" paper money — unseasoned bills that would wear out fast. Kilby estimates he must use 103 million sheets of bills to replace "unfit" currency this year, and next year the replacement figure will jump to 106 million sheets.

To build up a reserve stock large enough to give him time enough to "season the dough," Kilby has ordered the Bureau of Engraving and Printing to dash off 16 million sheets of money over and above its quota for this fiscal year. This presents quite a problem for the bureau, since it's short of expert plate printers.

So, in order to make the maximum use of what few plate printers are available, it's planned to put them and some other employes on a six-day week and a nine-hour day—a 56-hour week—for four months starting March 1. The overtime pay will just about double the plate printer's pay check. The average plate printer is paid $6000 a year at BEP.

TRIPLE PLAY: One of the interesting bits of high-level gossip is this switch in top officials:

That Joseph J. O'Connell will resign as chairman of the Civil Aeronautics Board to return to a top job in the Treasury Department; that Paul Aiken will resign as the Second Assistant Postmaster General to replace O'Connell as CAB chairman. The rumored reshuffle, it seems, depends on a high-placed vacancy at Treasury, and who is involved isn't clear.

FHA: A compulsory leave-without-pay plan for all employes of the Federal Housing Administration was being debated yesterday.

It's estimated that each of FHA's 5100 employes—1550 are in this city—would have to take at least a month's leave without pay in order to absorb an $800,000 budget cut, if it's finally approved. FHA officials have decided to try to absorb the cut through a leave without pay system instead of firing employes.

FHA was given a 19-million-dollar operating budget for this fiscal year. After the budget was okayed, Congress gave FHA additional duties and the agency was allowed to overspend its appropriations to do the work. FHA officials figured $4,800,000 was the bare minimum needed. The House Appropriation Committee chopped off $800,000. The Senate will be asked for the full amount.

FHA is one of Uncle Sam's big money makers. Last year, for example, its income from insurance fees and so forth totaled 66 million dollars. This money was turned over to the Treasury. FHA was permited to spend 22 million dollars by Congress. So, for every 33 cents it spent, it put 66 cents in the Treasury. Not a bad deal.

WAA: At the end of this month, War Assets will be down to 5000 employes from a post-war high of nearly 60,000. Only 900 will be left here. Administrator Jess Larson has explained to a congressional committee that WAA's average employment for the last four months of this fiscal year will be 3800.

But by the time June 30 arrives WAA will have only 2100 employes, Larson said, and only 450 of those will be in this city. In other words, WAA will let out about 450 additional people here in the next four and one-half months. Most of the 1650 field employes on June 30, Larson said, will be guarding surplus property that hasn't been sold.

USES: The U. S. Employment Service had plans to hire upwards of 5000 employes in its State offices but they were stopped cold at the Budget Bureau.

The agency requested a deficiency appropriation of 14 million dollars. Budget Bureau whittled this down to four million dollars—enough to maintain its present 37,500-man staff and possibly a few hundred additional. The money, if finally approved, will prevent another big USES lay-off. Robert Goodwin, USES boss, had hoped to build his agency back to a 43,000-man staff.

NOTES: J. Louis Bixler, a prominent attorney with Justice's immigration and naturalization service, will retire the end of this month. He has been in Government for 45 years . . . Harry C. Hensley an economist with Farm Credit Administration, is retiring after 24 years of good service. He's the author of many documents dealing with marketing.

SECRETARIAL: Civil Service gave the first part of the general secretarial exam last November 20. It won't give the second part until all of the first papers are graded. When will that be—Civil Service won't predict.

Takoma Park Council Gets Annexation Bill Today

Plan for 'New City,' Manager-Type Government Goes To Delegates Next

Proposed legislation to double the area of Takoma Park, Md., and hire a manager to run it will be handed the Takoma Park City Council for action today.

If approved by the council, the bill will be sent to the joint delegation of Montgomery and Prince Georges Counties in the State Legislature for action this session.

Drawn up by the joint committee of the Prince Georges-Takoma Civic Association, the legislation would:

1. Provide for creation of a new city of Takoma Park over an area of about 5 square miles. Present size of the city is 2 1-3 square miles.

November Referendum Planned

2. Set up a referendum of the entire population within the five-square-mile area on November 2, 1949. Population of Takoma Park now is 13,500 with some 6000 persons residing in the territory which would be annexed.

3. Create the post of city manager to serve at the pleasure of the city council.

4. Provide for election of a new council March 28, 1950, with the new city government to begin operating July 1, 1950.

5. Transfer all assets of the present city to the new one. Takoma Park has no bonded debt and its municipal assets are estimated by the joint committee to be $250,000.

6. Set up an "adjustable" tax rate, with persons residing in the new part to pay taxes commensurate with municipal services, which would be limited at the outset.

7. Include under municipal services all activities now carried on by the city government.

Modifications Likely

According to committee member Robert E. Mohr, president of the Spring Park Community Association, the proposed bill has a "good chance" of approval by the city council although, he said, the council may make modifications.

Mohr said the proposal has already received some consideration from members of the county delegations to the State Legislature, who requested that it be given to the Takoma Park City Council for approval before submission to the State body.

Back of the bill, he said, is the general idea to develop the Takoma Park area in a well-integrated manner.

Seek Custody Of Pignatelli Property Here

District Court was asked yesterday to grant ancillary letters to the executors of the $3,500,000 estate of the late Mrs. Henrietta Pignatelli, Atlantic & Pacific Tea Co. heiress.

Represented by attorney Joseph P. Tumulty, jr., the executors seek custody of some $150,000 in property Mrs. Pignatelli possessed in the District.

She died June 3 in Bergen County, N. J. She was the wife of Guido Pignatelli, who gave up his title of Prince of Montecalvo to become an American citizen in 1947.

Included in the property here is her home at 2941 Massachusetts ave. nw., assessed for taxation at $81,975, and personal property valued at $73,900.

Under terms of her will, Pignatelli is to receive $12,000 a year for life and an outright bequest of $50,000 additional. Her daughter, Mrs. Josephine H. Douglas, receives 2215 shares of first preferred A & P stock. The bulk of the estate goes to Mrs. Pignatelli's son, George Huntington Hartford, 2d of New York City.

Mrs. Pignatelli was born Henrietta Guerard of South Carolina. She was married to the late Edward V. Hartford before she married Pignatelli.

Apartment Zoning Cut in Arlington Plan

New apartment zoning has been "practically eliminated" in a section of Arlington County's proposed new master zoning plan revised to date by the Arlington County Board.

Board member Daniel A. Dugan said the board thus far has completed about one third of the new zoning blueprint, covering all of south Arlington up to Columbia Pike.

Within that area, about 63 acres originally slated for apartment zoning in the initial master plan have been returned to their present status, the Arlington Planning Engineer's office said.

Thirty of the acres initially scheduled for apartment zoning have been changed to one-family residential; 30 acres to two-family residential, and about three acres to general commercial.

When the proposed master plan first was made public last summer, several Arlington civic groups objected to the "great increase" in apartment zoning it called for.

Dugan said he thought the County Board might be able to take final action to pass the new zoning plan by the middle of April.

Prince Georges Apartment Site Approved

Rezoning to permit construction of a two-million-dollar apartment project was approved yesterday by the Prince Georges County Commissioners at a hearing in the County Service Building, Hyattsville.

The commissioners sanctioned rezoning of a 15-acre tract along Newton st. between Cheverly-Landover rd. and Defense hwy. for erection of a 288-unit building. The site is near Prince Georges General Hospital and is now zoned for single family dwellings.

The garden-type apartment house will be built by the Haines Motor Co., 3715 Bladensburg rd., Colmar the Prince Georges County Construction is scheduled to start soon.

The commissioners also approved a request to rezone for apartments a four-and-a-half-acre tract next to the Glasmanor subdivision near Oxon Hill.

6 Crossings Get Flash Signals On 13th Street

Rapid-flashing red signals began operations on six important intersections on 13th st. nw. at 1 a. m. today.

Installation of the flashing devices is expected to reduce the early-hour accident toll by warning drivers as they approach the 13th st. artery. They will remain on from 1 to 6 a. m. daily, the period during which the traffic signals are normally turned off.

Traffic Department employes installed the devices at Euclid, Harvard and Monroe sts., Missouri ave., Columbia and Spring rds. The signal will flash red on these crossings, enforcing a complete stop, and amber on 13th st. at these corners, warning drivers to slow down.

The District Commissioners have adopted a policy of purchasing red flashing connectors with all new controllers.

The subject of the discussion will be: "The Role of the Accountant in the Management of the Government's Fiscal Affairs."

$5000 Bond

2 Are Held In Dice Debt Shooting

Two Baltimore men were ordered held in $5000 bond each yesterday in Municipal Court for action of the grand jury in connection with a Tuesday night shooting over a dice game debt.

The men, James T. Skeens, 28, and John J. Bruno, 38, are charged with assault with a dangerous weapon.

The case against Lonnie Polson, 34, of 1706 67th ave., Cheverly, Md., was nolle prossed after the United States attorney's office had first increased the charge against him from simple assault to assault with a dangerous weapon.

According to police the shooting resulted when Skeens and Bruno, both armed, came here from Baltimore to collect $670 they won in a floating dice game.

Police said the Baltimore men and a companion, who is still being sought, located Polson in a poolroom at 1013 9th st. nw. With Polson was Edward R. Ryan, 24, of 1013 8th st. nw.

Hero of shooting

An argument followed and the men moved onto the street, police said. Ryan was shot in the right thigh and Polson was clubbed.

The two out-of-towners and their companion fled in an automobile, but the Baltimoreans were captured after a chase by Police Pvt. Theodore E. Marquis of the First Precinct. The companion jumped from the car during the chase

Assistant United States Attorney Edward Carey announced that the charge against Polson had been increased and asked the court to set $5000 bond for each man.

Attorney Earl Davis, representing Polson, objected and demanded an immediate hearing if the bond was going to be set so high. Davis declared that his client had been one of the men assaulted.

Carey said the Government was not prepared to proceed.

"The victim of the assault," said Carey, "is in the hospital and can't be here. But there is no doubt that in the shadow of this court last night, on the streets, a man was shot in the heart of the city. Guns were used here. It is lucky the victim isn't dead."

Judge Casey said he believed there should be an immediate hearing, especially in regard to Polson. Carey countered that he was unprepared.

"I will direct you to prosecute," said Judge Casey.

Carey then left the courtroom, conferred with superiors, returned and announced the charge against Polson would be nolle prossed.

The hearing on the charges against Skeens and Bruno was brief. The only witness was Private Marquis.

Court Group To Study Data On 7 Divorces

The Committee on Admissions and Grievances of District Court will meet in closed session Saturday to study records of seven Baltimore divorce cases which may be of interest to the local court.

The committee will attempt to determine whether Washington attorneys are involved in a "divorce mill' in which fraudulent addresses are being used.

A committee spokesman said the study was suggested by the grievance committee of the Baltimore Bar Association, which is investigating alleged fraudulent practices in certain Maryland divorces.

One of the seven cases to be studied by the local committee involves a decree awarded last March to Mrs. Rhoda Delores Connelly, whose address was listed as 4315 Rhode Island ave., Mount Rainier, Md.

Judge E. Paul Mason of Baltimore District Court ordered the decree annulled when informed that no such address exists.

In recent weeks, two out-of-State persons were convicted of perjury for giving false Baltimore addresses to obtain Maryland divorces. And disbarment action was started against a Baltimore lawyer on grounds he permitted two New York clients to offer false addresses in divorce suits.

$75,000 Suit Charges Liquor Price Fixing

The Middle Atlantic Distributors, Inc., was charged yesterday in a civil suit with illegal restraint of trade in a price-fixing agreement for liquor sales here.

Suing for $75,000 treble damages under the Sherman Antitrust and Clayton Acts is Maurice Milstone, owner of Milstone's Acme Liquor Store, of 927 Pennsylvania ave. nw.

According to the District Court action, liquor brands involved Canadian Club, Hiram Walker's Imperial, Walker's Deluxe, Hiram Walker's Distilled London Dry Gin and Drambuie, all handled here by the defendant firm.

The complaint, filed by Attorney Wendell Berge, says that in February, 1948, the Middle Atlantic Distributors offices entered a conspiracy to fix retail prices here, and forbade dealers in the brands mentioned to cut prices.

By the competition-elimination plot, a constant surveillance is going on here to prevent breaches of the agreement, it was alleged.

Milstone claims he has refused to comply and as a result the defendant refuses to do business with him.

Bondsman Is Convicted Of Swindle

O'Day Faces Up To 10 Years and $1000 Fine for Not Reimbursing Client

Bail Bondsman Gerald (Jerry) O'Day was convicted yesterday in District Court of swindling a client out of $1000.

The jury deliberated approximately 30 minutes before returning the verdict before Judge Henry A. Schweinhaut. O'Day was released under $1000 bond pending a probation office report.

The client was Bronislaus Matuszak, alias Robert Melton of Baltimore. He testified that while under a robbery indictment, subsequently dismissed, he put up the money with O'Day as "indemnity security" for a $2000 bail bond given in April, 1948.

Matuszak said that when he demanded return of the money, it was refused him.

O'Day never took the witness stand, but his attorneys contended he was given the money with the understanding that he keep it for from six months to a year. The money was to be used by O'Day to cover other bonds on which O'Day faced forfeiture because the suspects were fugitives, it was said.

Assistant United States Attorney Charles B. Murray argued that O'Day was under a duty to repay the money as soon as the indictment was dismissed.

O'Day faces up to 10 years in prison and a $1000 fine.

2 Raids Produce 5 Arrests On Lottery, Vagrancy Charges

The vice squad struck twice yesterday and arrested five persons on vagrancy and lottery charges.

In the first raid shortly after noon at 1128 10th st. nw., Mary Riddle, 45, was charged with operating a disorderly house and vagrancy and released under $800 for Municipal Court action today.

Evelyn E. Wright, 27, and Mildred Williams, 34, residents and occupants of the house at the time of the raid, were charged with vagrancy. They were released under $300 bond for court action today.

In the second raid at 2:45 p. m. at Lang pl. and Bladensburg rd. ne., police arrested two persons in a taxicab and charged both with operating a lottery and possession of lottery slips.

Arrested were Hampton Chavis, 40, of 340 L st. sw., and Annabelle Toogood, 30, of 630 Delaware ave. sw.

Police said they asked the woman if she were "still running numbers" and that she replied "yes."

When asked if she had any with her, she turned over six envelopes of number slips, according to police.

Chavis told police he did not know Miss Toogood was running numbers. He told police he had been driving her for three days.

Both were held in $1500 bond for Municipal Court action tomorrow.

Valet Shop Fire Routs 20 Patrons

Harris & Ewing

HASTY EXIT—Klaus Dohrn of 1616 19th st. nw., who lost his trousers in the fire, descends ladder from burning valet shop

More than 20 patrons and employes of the Golden Star Valet Shop, including a stout, pantsless customer, were routed into cold, wet rain when a basement fire sent smoke up through the store yesterday at about 3:30 p. m.

William Alexander, 16, of 8A M st. sw., an employe of the store, was the only person injured in the three-alarm blaze at 1342 New York ave. nw.

Alexander, who worked in the basement, was taken to Emergency Hospital with second and third degree burns on the body. His condition was undetermined.

Louis Rosenberg, a shoemaker in the shop, said Alexander came charging up the basement stairs "with his clothes on fire. I grabbed a coat and tried to smother the fire, but he was running. Finally, I and a few other fellows caught him and smothered it."

Eight Escape by Ladder

The fire, third in the history of the valet service firm, forced "eight to 10 persons" down ladders mounted along the store front, according to Capt. Howson McLearen of No. 3 Truck Co., first unit to respond to the initial alarm at 3:42 p. m.

Among these was Klaus Dohrn, 260-pound freelance writer, who was having his suit pressed. "I was in underwear only. I heard someone yell 'Fire' and then I noticed smoke. At first I thought it was a joke."

He hastily clambered down the ladders from his third-floor waiting booth, not even waiting for a pair of pants. He later called a friend at the Mayflower Hotel who brought trousers and then hunted for a shop handling "outside" garments. By evening he was re-outfitted and ready to make a trip to New York City.

Damage Not Estimated

Fire Chief Clement Murphy and Fire Marshal R. C. Roberts said the fire probably began in the rear of the basement near some trash bins. Roberts said fire officials were investigating cause of the fire, including whether it was caused by cleaning fluid. He said, however, officials were told the establishment used noninflammable fluids in its cleaning operations.

The owner of the store, David Zoslow, was not present at the time of the fire and later declined to estimate damage. The shop's interior suffered damage from flames and water. Zoslow's firm operates three other rapid-service establishments in the District.

The blaze brought out 30 pieces of fire apparatus, 75 policemen to handle traffic and several thousand spectators who lined curbs in the vicinity. Fire Chief Clement Murphy and Police Chief Robert J. Barrett directed operations of their forces.

Streetcars Tied Up

Streetcars on the Mount Pleasant, Rosslyn-Benning and 14th st. lines were tied up for 40 minutes, Capital Transit Co. officials reported.

Smoke from the fire billowed down 14th st. attracting many downtown shoppers and office workers.

Five patrons at the shop were forced into the street last May when a fire broke out in [illegible] ond story of the 3½-sto[illegible] ing. The previous fire wa[illegible] ruary, 1941, when a two-[illegible] caused an estimated $[illegible] damages there.

U. S. Court Building Bids To Be Asked In 4 Weeks

Contract Award Expected in April; $18,665,000 Job To Take 2½ Years

Construction bids for the new Federal Courts Building will be invited on or about March 15, Chief Justice Bolitha J. Laws of District Court announced yesterday.

Judge Laws said the Public Buildings Administration expects to receive the bids in the latter part of April "and have the contract let immediately."

It is estimated that construction of the extensive structure, on the square bounded by 3d st., Constitution ave., John Marshall pl. and C st. nw., will require 2½ years, he said.

Cost Estimated at $18,665,000

Congress has authorized $14,875,000 for the construction, with the total cost of the project—including the District-owned site—estimated at $18,665,000.

Judge Laws and Louis Justement, architect of the new building, yesterday outlined some of its features at a District Court meeting of the District branch of the American Bar Association's Special Committee on Improving the Administration of Justice.

In joint meeting with that committee was its laymen's group, which played a prominent role in the long effort to gain authorization of the courthouse.

Besides its 20 courtrooms, 19 to be available for District Court and one for the United States Court of Appeals, Judge Laws said the new building will have many "unusual conveniences" for jurors and witnesses.

Provision for Television

On its fourth floor, said Justement, it will have a jurors' lounge room, 42x70 feet, with comfortable chairs, "dictation booths" will be available in the "witness lounge" for businessmen witnesses to conduct their private business in idle courtroom moments, and a "message center" will be convenient to witness and jury rooms.

Also in the jurors' lounge will be a connection for a television set, said Judge Laws, "if someone will donate it."

It was previously announced that on the partial seventh and eighth floors atop the building there will be sleeping facilities for two full juries, for use when juries deliberate into the evening.

Judge Laws yesterday accepted "with regret" the resignation of Benjamin M. McKelway, editor of the Evening Star, as chairman of the special committee's lay group, because of the press of other business. Dean Elmer L. Keyser, of George Washington University, was named to succeed McKelway as the laymen's chairman.

Probation Study Asked

At Judge Laws' suggestion, subcommittees of the lay group were asked to consider special probation care for rehabilitable convicted persons, and legislation to provide a Youth Correction Authority which could give separate institutional and probation care, as determined individually, for convicted persons under 24 years of age.

Also approved was a proposal to study plans for putting "teeth" into the office of Commissioner of Domestic Relations, by expanding its authority in the new court building establishment.

The joint meeting received an extensive report from its Traffic Court Subcommittee, and ordered copies prepared for further study. It included recommendations to extend present two-to-three-month service of judges in Traffic Court to six months, and to require full notice of hearings held by the Board of Revocation and Suspension of Operators' Permit, and appeals from the board's decisions.

The report noted a "constant public clamor" about complaints of license suspension without knowledge of hearings.

Col. Robert Davis Dies at Walter Reed

Col. Robert Davis, 68, who rode with Teddy Roosevelt's "Rough Riders" and was a member of a distinguished American family, died yesterday in Walter Reed Hospital after an illness of 10 days.

His is a notable family. His brothers are William H. Davis, former head of the War Labor Board; Owen Davis, the playwright, and Harold P. Davis, the author.

Another brother, now dead, Albert Gould Davis, was president of RCA and vice president of General Electric.

His sisters are Mary Gould Davis, writer and professor of folklore at Columbia University, and Perley Davis, who is prominent in Christian Science work in New York City.

Colonel Davis, who lived at 3800 Columbia pike, Arlington, was a native of Bangor, Me. He joined the Army in 1898, and was commissioned in 1901. He saw duty in the Philippine Insurrection and served on the Mexican border in 1916.

He commanded the 341st Field Artillery during the first World War. He was aboard the first transport to go overseas in 1917, sailing with Gen. John J. Pershing.

In 1920, he was the first commanding officer of the Signal Corps Training School at Fort Monmouth, N. J.

Colonel Davis retired from the Army in 1928 and for the next 10 years headed a New York corporation. In 1938 he retired and moved his home to Arlington.

In addition to his wife and brothers and sisters, Colonel Davis is survived by four daughters, Mrs. Robert S. Burton of Panama, Miss Elizabeth Gould Davis of Washington, Mrs. Archie B. Schaefer of Arlington, and Mrs. Benjamin Atwood, jr., of Andrews Air Force Base, and three grandchildren.

Funeral services will be held at 11 a. m. Monday in Arlington Cemetery with burial there.

Sergeant Bryant was killed by enemy fire on Luzon, April 7, 1943 when he tried to assist a wounded buddy. He was the second of three brothers fighting in the war to be killed. His brother Corpl. Arthur Bryant was killed in Sicily in 1943.

Born in Farnham, Va., Sergeant Bryant came here in 1938 and worked for the Terminal Refrigerating Warehouse Corp. before he joined the Army in July, 1941.

Besides his parents, Sergeant Bryant is survived by a brother, Robert M. Bryant, 3227 12th st. se., and six sisters, Mrs. Louise Arnold, 4318 Branch ave. se.; Mrs. Trudie Taylor, 5306 Branch ave. se.; Mrs. Pearl Headley, 124 Rolph dr., Forest Heights, Md.; Mrs. Mabel Garland, 512 Mellon st. se.; Mrs. Norma White, Indian Head, Md.; Mrs. Ruby Potts, 460 Mellon st. se.

3 Boys Yoke Cab Driver But Fail to Get Money

A long run-a-round cab ride over Northeast Washington last night, ending in yoking of the cabbie, brought three boys a wallet, some keys and personal papers but no money.

Henley Johnson, 27, 3419 15th st. se., the cabbie, told police he picked up the three youths, who looked about 18 years old, at 1st st. and Massachusetts ave. ne. After directing him to a nonexistent address, he said they ordered him to stop in front of 2715 Mills ave. ne., where they yoked him and ran off.

Ramsdell Rites Set Today in Cloppers, Md.

Requiem mass for Paul C. Ramsdell, 55, of Cloppers, Md., a Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. examiner who died unexpectedly Monday while vacationing in Miami, Fla., will be said at 9 a. m. today in St. Rose's Catholic Church, Cloppers. Burial will be in the church cemetery.

Born and educated here, Mr. Ramsdell had lived in Montgomery County since 1917.

He was the son of the late Rev. Charles B. Ramsdell, pastor of Northminster Presbyterian Church here.

Mr. Ramsdell's career in banking included positions as vice president of the Montgomery County National Bank in Rockville and of the Federal Land Bank in Baltimore. He was a member of the Knights of Columbus.

In addition to his wife, he is survived by a son, Charles B. Ramsdell, Baltimore; three daughters, Mrs. Joseph McNally, Cloppers; Mrs. Hampton Jones, Rockville; Mrs. Robert Kingsley, Bethesda, and a brother, Hobart H. Ramsdell, Washington.

Officials See Pvt. Longoria Reinterred

While President Truman's personal representative, Texas Congressmen, and members of the soldier's family stood nearby in the cold rain, the body of Pvt. Felix Z. Longoria was lowered to its final resting place yesterday in Arlington Cemetery.

It had come a long way from Luzon where he was killed in the fighting for the Philippines in 1945, via Three Rivers, Tex., his hometown, where an undertaker was reluctant to handle his body.

Just before the services yesterday, newsmen asked Maj. Gen. Harry S. Vaughan, aide to the President, if he was there as the President's personal repesentative.

"Yes," he replied, "I came here for the services of that Texas boy who got all that unfavorable publicity due to the stupidity of that undertaker."

The undertaker said he had discouraged use of his chapel not because of the soldier's Mexican ancestry, as Latin-American groups had charged, but because he thought there was friction in the dead soldier's family.

Senator Lyndon Johnson of Texas heard about the incident and arranged for the Arlington burial. He was joined at the graveside yesterday by Representative John E. Lyle (D., Tex.) and Justo Sierra, First Secretary of the Mexican Embassy.

H. F. Seawell Dies; Ex-Judge Of Tax Court

Herbert Floyd Seawell, 79, former judge of the United States Court of Tax Appeals in Washington, died Tuesday at his home in Carthage, N. C.

Judge Seawell served on the Tax Appeals bench from 1929 to 1936. He retired from active practice of law three years ago because of a heart condition, according to his family, the Associated Press reported.

Born in Duplin County, North Carolina, he was one of five children. He attended Wakefield High School, Wake Forest College and the University of North Carolina.

Judge Seawell was a member of the North Carolina State Bar Association, American Bar Association and the Masons. He served as United States district attorney for the Eastern District of North Carolina and was nominated by President Theodore Roosevelt for a United States district judgeship, but the Senate took no action on the nomination. He was also a member of the United States Board of Tax Appeals.

His hobbies were listed in the 1935 edition of "Who's Who in the Nation's Capital" as: "Exercise in the open woods, growing flowers and shrubs, building up abandoned places as homes and farms."

Funeral services, to be held in Carthage, have been tentatively set for Friday.

Club Honors Career Women

Five of Washington's top career women were the center of attention when the Soroptimist Club of Washington celebrated its annual Career Women's luncheon in the Cabinet Room of the Willard Hotel yesterday.

Representing diversified professions the guests of honor were Madame Agasta, Mrs. Elsie V. Burns, Mrs. Carita B. Sandler, Miss Eleanor B. Swenson and Miss Shirley Thrush.

Madame Agasta, designer of one of the First Lady's Inaugural gowns, thinks that harmony in the workroom is one of the most important factors of a successful business. Mrs. Sandler, president of the Valley Forge Distributing Co., agreed and added courteous employes and advertising.

The luncheon meeting was presided over by the president, Mrs. Edith Claude Jarvis, and the chairman of the luncheon who introduced the guests was Miss Mary Ahern.

Widower, Successfully Married for 36 Years, Now Has Second Wife in View, But His Senior Age and His Children's Scowls Give Him Pause

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: After a very successful married life lasting 36 years, I have been a widower for nearly three years. Recently I met a very charming woman who is a real companion and we have much in common.

We both like the great outdoors, we like fishing, golfing and motor trips, and we have had some good times together since our friendship started.

Ruth and I love each other very sincerely, and we have been contemplating marriage, but a couple of angles are giving us pause. One is the difference in our ages, as I am 15 years her senior; and while we wouldn't mind this difference ourselves, we are thinking of public opinion.

The other deterrent is the attitude of my two children. Both are grown and "on their own," but they seem to think that their Dad ought to spend the balance of his life alone. What do you think of it all? Ruth and I are sure we can "make a go of it" if we marry, but we would appreciate your views on the subject. C. H.

Favorable Facets To "Age-Balance"

DEAR C. H.: You were married for 36 years, you've been a widower for three years, and I dare say you married in your twenties, which puts your age around 60, and your charming friend Ruth's about 45—unless, womanlike, she's cheating a bit on Old Father Time.

'Tis said that a woman is as old as she looks and a man as old as he feels; and since you are an outdoors man who enjoys fishing, golfing, motor travel, charming companionship and good times, obviously you feel "in the pink." Thus the age-difference between you and Ruth is nothing to give you pause; and in fact it may have constructive aspects.

Let's think of it as an age-balance, rather than an age difference in the apologetic sense. Here are the potential advantages I see: 1. Happy companionship with a quietly congenial, somewhat younger wife should perpetuate your youthful spirit and interests indefinitely—besides keeping your health in vigorous repair, due to a fond wife's normal concern to provide good cookery and restful regime.

Normal for Man to Marry Again

2. Through the years, Ruth can retain the blooming serenity of a normally maturing woman who isn't burdened by the negative strain of trying to retain a static "girlish" appearance or personality—as many women nervously feel compelled to do, after 50, if the husband is near their own age or slightly younger, and seems drawn to the ranks of younger people for friendship. In relation to you, Ruth will always feel romantically young—almost 16, as it were.

As for public opinion, why should it gape at a sixtyish man's marrying a middle-age woman—a perfectly appropriate dignified choice on the part of each, it seems to me.

So much for the age-angle. Now about the children's prohibitive attitude: Inasmuch as they are grown and on their own, it has no recognizable justification. It seems selfish, inconsiderate, and possibly animated by property-concern. If Ruth's character is unassailable, their negativism probably means they don't want any second wife stepping into their mom's shoes and qualifying for a dowry-interest in your estate.

But after all, that's your business; and it's perfectly normal that you would gravitate to matrimony again, having been happily married for 36 years. Sociologists find that widows or widowers who were fortunate in their first choice usually marry again—and successfully. M. H.

Versatile Garments

This Year's Spring Coats Designed for Double Duty

By Peggy Preston

YOUR ole spring coat just isn't what it used to be. It's been destandardized to the place where it can look like a dress, a suit, or—if necessary—an actual coat.

All this makes it pretty pleasant for the girl who needs versatility in her wardrobe. One garment that serves as two is a nice answer to inflationary prices that would nip her plans for an Easter outfit in the bud.

Time was when a spring coat was an exact length, with regulation sleeves and style features. It served well for a month or two each season, then was discarded because it failed to meet changing weather requirements.

From March to May

But that's all changed now. An interlined, three-quarter or hip-length topper, for instance, can do the following: Go over a suit in March, a lightweight wool in April, a silk print in May and a cotton on summer evenings. On moderate days its is suitable over a heavy suit. Then, as further proof of its versatility, try it over a contrasting skirt and blouse, and watch it become an extra suit.

The topper coat has become an American classic, taking its place alongside the one-button suit, the spectator sports pump and the beret. It is both ageless and agile, an almost perfect garment.

This year you'll find a wide and interesting variety of toppers in the shops. There are hip-length jackets that wrap-around, cocoon fashion with big, wide pockets accenting the sides. Newer still are the longer toppers that reach to just above the knee, and may be worn with or without a belt. In some instances the belt fits snugly in front, but ducks into slits at either side and disappears, leaving the back to swing out gracefully.

Brown and White Combination

Coats such as this are effective in any shade or fabric, but we noted one the other day that was especially nice. Made of brown and white checked wool it was worn over a plain brown skirt, and lighted up with sparkling white accessories.

Another wearable garment this spring is the costume coat, made up in such fabrics as gabardine, sheer wool, faille or taffeta. The sheer wools are exceptionally good fashion as they answer the needs of the majority of women. These are both warm and serviceable, but pretty and graceful as well. They may be worn as a dress, accessorized with a fur piece or clips; or as a coat over a gay print dress.

FEATHERWEIGHT for spring and summer is this gray wool costume coat from the collection of coats and suits being shown at Lansburgh's. Cut on slimming princess lines, the skirt flares from a molded waistline. Small, button-up collar, soft shoulder lines and neat cuffs are other fashion items important for spring, 1949 hand-stitched and handsome

The inspired designer of this newest Selma suit works wonders with wonderfully becoming, very subtle lines and detailing. For example, the clever treatment of the back and the inverted jacket pleat, repeated in the skirt. Imported sharkskin in beige or gray or fine gabardine in your most flattering pastel or a dark shade.

Follow This Simple Formula For a Million-Dollar Figure

By Ida Jean Kain

THE FORMULA for keeping hips streamlined is worth a million, figuratively speaking. Well, here it is: for 8 hours of sedentary work, add 8 minutes of active calisthenics and subtract excess calories. In case you need to reduce weight and take off hip inches—double the exercise time, cut calories to 1200 a day . . . and have a million-dollar figure by Easter.

Let's put the formula into brisk action . . .

POSITION: Lying on back on floor, stretch to full extension, arms over head on floor, legs stretching down.

MOVEMENT: Roll across the hips and clear over to fat pad on side of thigh, then roll back across hips to other thigh. Roll 12 times at the beginning, and later 50 times, resting between each 10 rolls.

Now take it from a sitting position, to concentrate on back hip muscles . . .

POSITION: Sitting on floor, leaning slightly backward until weight is resting on exact spot that needs slimming, arms out at sides slightly back, ready to act as propellers and a brace.

MOVEMENT: Roll across the buttocks over to the side of the hip, flinging the arm out to the side as a brace. Roll back across buttocks to opposite side, using other arm as a brace. Roll 20 times, later working up to 50 or 100.

The sharkskin is two-ply worsted of fine construction, loomed especially for use as a coating material, in brown and grey.

The gabardine, Uxbridge by name, is of finest worsted, in natural, light beige and cocoa.

Each fabric lends itself admirably to this stunning coat design with a full, sweeping back, impeccably finished by hand.

The bulkless zip-in leather warmer lifts out in a whisk with its new "quick-release" fastener. Here indeed is the coat that will retain its fashion-correctness through the seasons and the years. Sizes 10 to 18.

Women of Holland United

A Simple Patchwork Skirt, Combining Gay and Dark, Becomes a Symbol of Life

By Mary Van Rensselaer Thayer

MRS. JAN BOISSEVAIN, Holland's Patchwork Skirt lady, is coming to Washington next week. Perhaps you're read a bit about her in Mrs. Roosevelt's column, "My Day." She's the remarkable woman, a Utrecht University graduate, who put scholarly knowledge to practical use, set up a beauty institute in her Amsterdam house, then when war came worked with her husband and five children as leaders in underground activity. Jan Boissevain was imprisoned in 1941, died in Buchenwald just before Holland's liberation. The couple's two eldest sons were shot by local German authorities and a third was sent to Dachau. Adrienne Boissevain was arrested, too, transferred from one Dutch prison to another until, in 1944, she was dispatched to Ravensbruck, the notorious concentration camp for women near Berlin. In April, 1945, she was liberated through the efforts of the Swedish Red Cross under the direction of the late Count Folke Bernadotte. Half starved, ill, she was nursed back to health in Sweden, then, in late summer, returned to Holland, where she located her two daughters and, after considerable search, her third son.

Her Patchwork Skirt Became a Symbol

TEMPERED by terrible ordeal and almost unendurable suffering, Mme. Boissevain became convinced world unity is sole solution for future life on earth. Always a feminist, she was sure women could accomplish much toward world peace if they were made to realize their value and power. As a symbol, she founded an organization called The National Skirt. These skirts are patchworked from remnants of material, which individually remind the wearer of both sad and gay events. Around each wedge-shaped patch is stitched a date representing some high point in the owner's life. The scraps of cloth, pieced into a whole, then symbolize the present and act as encouragement for a brighter future. Throughout Holland the idea caught on like wildfire. During Queen Juliana's investiture ceremonies thousands of women wearing patchwork skirts paraded before her. The skirts, which in such brief period are already part of the country's tradition, gave the women a feeling of unity, a union of feminine force and strength. To further encourage Holland's women, each finished skirt is registered and stamped officially.

The idea is spreading to other countries, and Mme. Boissevain, who's here on a lecture tour, tells about it in most fascinating fashion.

Food for Body and Spirit

WITH Cardinal Mindszenty's fate in headlines, a letter arrived, postmarked from an Austrian DP camp, written by Gen. Pavle Pavlevich, formerly of the Yugoslav royal army. General Pavlevich is one of the 60,000 Serbian DPs who have no place to go. Though his regiment fought against the Nazis, he'd be shot if he returned to Titoland. He's too old to be eligible to come here under the Stratton bill. For the last eight years he's been living in a DP camp, working most of the time on an Austrian railroad. A clipping from this column about his compatriots who, though they fought on our side, have been virtually abandoned, was sent to him in a CARE package. Here, in small part, is what's in a DP's heart.

Without Hope, Yet They Are Hopeful

"DEAR MRS. THAYER, you wrote that we are 'almost without hope.' You are right. But we have an unconquerable spirit and hope, not only we in exile, but also the people in the country, especially we have enormous faith in your free Nation, U. S. A., and we believe that one day—O God help us—your great Nation will vanquish the enemies of humanity, justice, Christianity, and make free my people, too. We lay our hopes in God and in America. I repeat that we 'almost without hope' are hoping, and our belief in justice is unconquerable. But every day we are asking: Why are we treated like rejected people and, even more, like sentenced people?

"You can understand that we, people at the limit of our endurance and in despair, are very pleased and happy to see, from time to time, that there are good people thinking about us. We are so grateful to all those who accepted your invitation to appease our sufferings. I am enormously grateful, not because of myself—I am at the end of my life—but because of our youth and the others who were obliged in the early days of their lives to know the meaning of injustice, suffering and, above all, what it means to be forgotten and abandoned after an unsuccessful but honorable and unselfish fight, not only for themselves, but for all humanity."

Washington Birthday Ball

The historic old City of Alexandria, Va., is celebrating its 200th anniversary this year and will celebrate the 217th anniversary of the birth of George Washington on February 22 at an official bicentennial birthnight costume ball. The fete will be held in the Cameron Street Recreation Center and is sponsored by the Bicentennial Commission, the four local chapters of the DAR; the Alexandria Committee for the Colonial Dames of America for Virginia, and the Alexandria Association.

Mrs. Charles Marbury Seaman is general chairman of the ball and Edward C. Van Devanter is chairman of the men's floor committee. Sidney and his orchestra, which will play for dancing, will be in colonial costumes as will a group of dancers who will do the minuet and the Virginia Reel. A tableau will be put on representing the first board of trustees of the town and the Lieut. Gov. Thomas Lee, with their direct or collateral descendants in the parts. Tickets may be had at any of the sponsoring organizations or at Chequire House or the Bicentennial Commission.

Free Lithuanians Mark Birth of a Lost Freedom

By Genevieve Reynolds

DIPLOMATIC and official Washington, plus a band of personal friends, turned out yesterday to celebrate Lithuanian independence with the Lithuanian Minister and Mme. Zadeikis at a party held in the legation at 2622 16th st. nw.

The Minister and his staff are among the group of native Lithuanians who refuse to recognize the Soviet's annexation of their native homeland. So all day the green flag of the country that received its independence on February 16, 1918, waved bravely in the wind and rain. It was there when the guests arrived between 5:30 and 7:30 p. m. as a reminder of the unrelenting struggle to regain full independence.

Madame Zadekis, who wore a becoming black street-length dress, received with the Minister in the Rose Room. First to catch the eye of the visitors was a magnificent collection of dolls depicting a wedding in a Lithuanian village. Mrs. K. Tuliene, modeled her characters after real people. The costumes are authentic reproductions of those worn in the various provinces of the country and the entire lifelike scene represents a wedding procession returning from the church with the bride's parents greeting the newlyweds with salt, bread and ale. Last heard from the artist—Mrs. Tuliene—was back in 1942 when, along with some 40,000 other Lithuanians, she was deported to Siberia.

Among the early arrivals yesterday where the New Zealand Minister and Lady Berensen, the Icelandic Minister and Mme. Thor Thors; the Iranian Ambassador and Madame Ala; the new Minister of Ceylon and Madame Correa, she in a handsome orange silk sari.

The Minister Counselor of the Cuban Embassy Joaquin E. Meyer was there as were the former Minister Counselor of the Cuban Embassy and Senora de Baron; Mr. and Mrs. Lothrop Stoddard, Representative Edith Nourse Rogers, Dr. Sara Wambaugh, outstanding woman expert on plebescites; Mrs. Anthony Wadden.

Representative and Mrs. Mike Mansfield chatted with Mr. and Mrs. Orion Libert, the Spanish Minister and Senora de Baraibar.

Glimpsed here and there around the buffet table complete with delectable strawberry short cake were Mrs. Robert Hale, wife of the Maine Representative; Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Morris, Mr. and Mrs. Norman Littell who had as their guest Basil Vlavianos of New York City.

Still others present were the Mexican Counselor and Senora de Fernandez MacGregor; North Carolina-born William Creech, student in Slavic affairs at Georgetown University and former exchange student from the University of North Carolina to Norway; the Ambassador of El Salvador and Senora de Castro; Mrs. James W. Boyer and her house guest Mrs. Arthur W. Jacobson of Birmingham, Mass.; Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Burke; the Director of the Mint Nellie Tayloe Ross; the former Yugoslavian Ambassador and Mme. Fotitch.

Senora de Caceres Feted

By Mrs. Albers at Luncheon

SENORA DE CACERES, wife of the retiring Honduran Ambassador, was guest of honor at another farewell luncheon yesterday, given by Mrs. Henry Albers in the Palladian Room of the Shoreham Hotel.

In the group were Senora de Castro, wife of the El Salvador Ambassador; Senora de Munilla, Mrs. Eldon F. King, Mrs. James Souby, Mrs. William Berry, Senora de Copello, Mrs. Bruce Smith, Mrs. Tomas Cajigas, Mrs. Elmer Pratt, Mrs. William A. Disque, Mrs. Frederick Mitchell Gould and Mrs. D. C. Hamberger, daughter of the hostess.

Mrs. Henry P. Lewis gave a tea for Senora de Caceres on Tuesday in the Shoreham's Palladian Room.

The other guests included Senora de Restrepo and her daughter, Senorita Maria Elena Restrepo; Senora de Castro and her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Alexander Castro; Senora de la Colina, Senora de Acosta, Mrs. Dennis Chavez, Senora Lopez, wife of Gen. Estanislao Lopez, Chief of the Argentine Military Delegation to the Inter-American Defense Board; Senora Maria Emma Fernandez, Senora de Munilla, Senora de Copello.

Party Goers Pushed for Time

Hellos, Goodbys, Set Fast Party Pace

By Marie McNair

"WE'VE been to the Lithuanian Legation; stopped to say goodbye to the Indian Ambassador and Lady Rama Rau, and from here we're going to see the Eisenhowers at Gen. and Mrs. Wade Haislip's house at Fort Myer." That was the program for the New Zealand Ambassador and Lady Berendsen's when I met them yesterday at the cocktail party given by the Ambassador of Ecuador and Senora de Dillon.

It was the pattern that several hundred members of diplomatic and official Washington followed too, with only variations of starting points. Arriving early at the Ecuador Embassy, I found the drawing room suite already filled and the perfume from a 4-foot bouquet of white lilacs and red roses on the buffet table sending a spring-like fragrance throughout the rooms.

There was a hint of spring in the gray lace and chiffon gown which Senora de Echegaray dressed to go on to dinner, had worn, and in the rose colored rolled brim hat worn by Mrs. Charles G. Ross, with a side-kick skirt, lined with the same color which also edged the sleeves on her black frock.

But there was Mme. Bonnet, wife of the French Ambassador, swathed in furs to remind us that it is winter after all, and the hostess, herself, in a simple, but exceedingly chic, black frock made with a fullness in the skirt and a deep square neckline.

The Norwegian Ambassador and Mme. Munthe Morgenstierne were there, and I met the Minister of Iceland and Mme. Thors in a gay pale pink hat, at their last party before going to see "Command Decision" at the Palace.

The Colombian Ambassador and Senora de Restrepo were lingering in the softly lighted oyster white drawing room and the Argentine Ambassador, Jeronimo Remorino, was greeting his diplomatic colleagues.

The Chilean Ambassador, Felix Nieto del Nieto, made his way quietly from one room to another; the British Ambassador and Lady Franks did the same. The Spanish Ambassador-at-large, Felix Leguerica, was introducing his wife, recently arrived from Spain, and the Guatemalan Ambassador, Ismael Gonzalez-Arevalo, arrived with Senora de Gonzalez-Arevalo, who was wrapped in a platina fox cape.

Stanley Woodward and Mrs. Woodward, both tall and handsome, found a number of good friends in the gathering, and then there were Mrs. George V. Allen, wife of the Assistant Secretary of State, in a wine red costume; Gen. and Mrs. Gordon Young, who had been partying most of the afternoon; Mrs. Max Truitt, on her way to dinner; Mrs. Claude Pepper with Capt. and Mrs. William H. Watson on the sidelines and vivacious Mrs. Paul Daniels sipping a drink with her husband, who's the Director of the Office of American Republic Affairs of the Department of State.

Mme. Rybar, with violets on her shoulder and her hat, brought along her pretty daughters, blonde Mrs. Robert Geauque and Mrs. Saltzman Rowe, and the former's husband, and they left there bound for the Indian Embassy farewell party given by the Ambassador and Lady Rama Rau.

And—to go on—Capt. and Mrs. Valentine Pottle and Bill Jenkins, talking first to Col. William S. Culbertson, then Mrs. English Gordon; and Mrs. Harold Walker, Arthur Saul, Dr. and Mrs. Brison Norris, Constantine de Stackelberg, Julio Heurtematte of the Panama Embassy staff, Mrs. Walter Wilds with plaid ribbons on her hat; Mrs. Charles McEnerney, and Mrs. John Davis Lodge with a short skirted black frock trimmed in lace.

Arlington Vote Hits D. C. AAUW in Tiff

The Arlington Branch, American Association of University Women, yesterday made public its unanimous indorsement of an interpretation by the parent body of by-laws governing eligibility for membership in the national organization.

The national organization's interpretation of the by-laws recognizes the eligibility of any qualified woman college graduate regardless of race, creed or color.

Action was taken at a business meeting Tuesday night in the form of a resolution instructing the Arlington group's delegate to the biennial AAUW convention in June, when by-laws pertaining to membership are expected to be clarified.

Mrs. Robert Lamkin, State legislative chairman for the Virginia AAUW, offered the resolution.

A controversy arose in 1946 between the Washington branch and national AAUW over the former's refusal to readmit a Negro college graduate, Mrs. Mary Church Terrell. Mrs. Terrell, a leader of her race, had dropped her membership in the local branch several years ago, when the local group was a University Club and not affiliated with AAUW. Membership in the Washington Branch was denied on the ground that each branch reserves the right to select its own members.

The dispute between the Washington branch and national culminated in a court action with Chief Justice Bolitha J. Laws of the District Court ruling in favor of the Washington branch against expulsion from the national organization. Justice Laws' decision, which has been appealed by national AAUW, maintained that according to AAUW's present by-laws the local branch could not be expelled.

Ask Anne About Baby's Needs

Mothers at one time used a material other than birdseye or gauze in diapers. I've heard it was better in many ways. Can you tell me what it is? Is white cotton flannelette practical for diapers? I have had several yards given to me and, as I have sufficient quantities of everything except diapers, I wonder if it is sensible? Would stains be easily removable, and how? Would the "body" of the flannelette wash out after a few hard scrubbings? What are the measurements of small and of large diapers? Are pinking shears best or can I run a thin hem by hand? I would not ask so many questions, but I am in a new section, know no new mothers, am confined to the apartment indefinitely, and have no phone. What a turmoil! B. B. C.

I can answer your first two questions at once by saying that the third material used for diapers is cotton flannelette. The opinion of mothers as to the best material for diapers seems to be divided, but flannelette is certainly excellent for the purpose as it stays soft through repeated washings, is highly absorbent and is easy to keep white. Some of the fuzz does wear and wash away, but if you start with a firmly woven flannelette, it will usually retain its body and be satisfactory for as long as the baby needs diapers. To keep them white and remove stains, add one cup of household bleach to a washer full of water every third washing. Rinse diapers three times after each washing when bleach is added.

Diapers can be made 27x27, 36x33, or 18x36 inches. I suggest you make up the flannelette which you have into square diapers, cutting them as long as the material is wide. If the material is 36 inches wide, the finished diapers will be excellent for use when the baby is older. Tear the diapers, so they will be even when washed and run in a thin hem by hand. If the edge is will ravel on this material edge is will raval on this material with use and washing.

Will you print a list of items that are needed when expecting a baby, such as baby oil and powder? I. T. R.

3 dozen diapers (if you are not using a diaper service).
Kimonos and (or) nightgowns.
A bonnet and knitted sweater.
A bunting or heavy blanket for outdoor use.
3 or 5 cotton receiving blankets.
Soft knitted towels and washcloths.
Baby oil or powder (I suggest you ask your pediatrician's preference before buying this item).
A bed or bassinet.
Sheets and rubber pad for bed.
Quilted cotton pads or rubberized squares for use under baby.
Nursing bottles, nipples and caps.
A kettle for sterilizing bottles.
Bottle brushes.
Graduate for mixing formulae.

Would you reprint the address of the Indian Mission in South Dakota to which one may send old clothes? E. M. M.

The address was St. Joseph's Indian School, Chamberlain, S. Dak.

Can you tell me if it is possible to remove a soiled spot caused by floor wax from a wall finished in a water paint? E. M. M.

The spot should come off readily if you will place a paste of cornstarch and carbon tetrachloride over it. Mix just enough carbon tetrachloride into the cornstarch to make it damp, not runny, and pat the paste thickly over the greasy spot. Let stand until dry and brush away. If it is not all removed with the first treatment, repeat.

The Elusive Key

So often we housewives return from the store with many bundles and then comes the problem of finding the house key. If you will use a small purse that has a chain attached to hold the key for your house money you will never be troubled with that search again. The key can go inside the purse or hang down outside, very easy to find.

PUBLIC NOTICE

Notice is hereby given that an application has been filed with the Federal Communications Commission requesting the written consent of the Commission to the assignment by WINX Broadcasting Company to William A. Banks of the license for standard broadcast station WINX, Washington D. C., instruments of authorization for two synchronous transmitters, and developmental broadcast station WINX-T.

Said application was filed pursuant to an agreement dated January 7, 1949, between WINX Broadcasting Company and William A. Banks, wherein, subject to the conditions specified therein, WINX Broadcasting Company proposes to transfer to William A. Banks the properties and equipment of said stations as described in the said application and associated documents, for a consideration of One Hundred Thirty Thousand Dollars ($130,000.00) payable in cash on the closing date specified in said agreement. The agreement further provides for the assignment to and assumption by William A. Banks of certain leases, specified contracts, etc., upon the conditions and for the purposes therein specified.

Further details concerning the terms and conditions of the proposed assignment and the arrangements in connection therewith may be obtained by an examination of the application and associated documents on file in the offices of the Federal Communications Commission in Washington, D. C.

Pursuant to Section 1.321 of the Rules and Regulations of the Federal Communications Commission, any person desiring to acquire the facilities upon the same terms and conditions may file an application to that effect with the Federal Communications Commission within sixty (60) days from February 3, 1949, the date of the first publication of this notice.

What's the Verdict

INVENTION

Q. There was a demand for oil that would flow freely in Arctic temperatures. Seeking such an oil, a chemist experimented with all sorts of mixtures. Finally, by trial and error, he found that a mixture of oil and the chemical X would do the trick. He sought a patent on the process; a patent was denied because another chemist already had patented a process of mixing oil and a chemical similar to X, which the man now seeking a patent didn't know about. Was his claim for a patent properly denied?

A. An invention is "a new display of ingenuity." It can be achieved by trial and error, as well as by the genius of intuition or abstract deduction. But it must be more than merely another step in a gradual process of experimentation. In this case the mixture of oil with the chemical X was only another step from the mixture already patented; therefore it is not an invention, and the patent was properly denied.—F. L. D.

GOOD (AND BAD) WILL AMBASSADORS REVISITED

The other day we had a piece about hackers, pointing out the importance of the impression they make on visitors.

For a city which earns millions of dollars annually from its tourist trade, that's important.

I now have a letter from Lieut. Malcolm S. Collin of the Naval Air Station at Patuxent River, Md. It tells a similar story:

"During a recent excursion to Washington, I had a most unpleasant encounter with a policeman at 7th and F sts. nw.

"I wanted to get into the Hecht parking lot but, in the heavy Saturday traffic, got into the wrong lane at first. It took me a few seconds to ease into the right line.

"The officer belligerently demanded to know what I meant by holding up traffic. I tried to explain. But the gist of the subsequent conversation, which was carried on in a most rude and discourteous manner by the policeman was, in effect, that I had better move along and not show up at that corner again.

"It is readily apparent to me that I was probably at fault, and did block traffic for a few seconds. But I hardly think that my transgression necessitated such an angry tirade."

That, of course, is only one side of the story. The other side might very properly include recognition of the fact that policemen do get mighty tired of telling motorists the same simple facts of life, over and over again—and that a policeman's life is not an easy one.

But, as Lieutenant Collin points out, that doesn't give the cop any right to tee off on the motorist.

We all have our troubles and, if we're adults, we're supposed to be able to put up with them without "taking it out" on somebody else.

NEW YORK.—CURIOSITY: Robert St. John, the bearded author of "Shalom Means Peace," was in a Chicago restaurant, standing at the bar, where a stranger approached him. "The man I'm sitting with," said the stranger, "insisted that I ask you why you wear a beard?" . . . "Tell him," said St. John, "it's none of his business" . . . "Ah, but it IS his business," said the man. "He's head of the Gillette Razor Co., and if this is a trend, he'd like to know about it."

Tony Galento, the former heavyweight contender, made news last week in a barroom fight. Galento still fancies himself the most powerful man in the world, for this had been instilled into him by his manager, the late Joe Jacobs . . . On the eve of the Louis fight, Jacobs and Galento sat with a group of us in Lindy's, where Jacobs again announced: "Tony'll kill Louis with his bare hands. He's the strongest man in the world." Just then the check came. Galento and Jacobs both grabbed it, and Jacobs managed to pull it from the fighter's hand. "He's the strongest man in the world," the startled manager repeated, then added, "except when it comes to picking up checks."

Orson Welles was conscience-stricken when he learned of the deaths in Quito over the Ecuador broadcast of the Martian invasion. Welles never realized, when he first made the broadcast from New York, that it would have such repercussions. And when Adolf Hitler twice referred to it in a speech, and his friends said: "You're famous, Orson; you got two notices from Hitler," Welles said: "I'd rather get them from Dick Watts and John Mason Brown."

Last Sunday, after an absence of more than a year, Jascha Heifetz returned to the concert stage in a recital at Boston's Symphony Hall. The concert was attended by many members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, who were deeply moved by the performance. A delegation visited Heifetz in the Artists Room later, and as an expression of their feeling they arrived with a wastebasket full of their own fiddles.

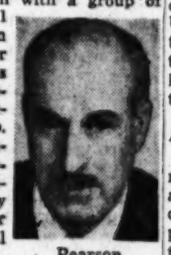
How Atlantic Alliance Cooled

By Drew Pearson

It was kept hush-hush, but Norwegian Foreign Minister Halvard Lange had a very significant secret luncheon with a group of congressional leaders in House Speaker Sam Rayburn's office just before he returned to Oslo.



Pearson

At the luncheon, the Norwegian diplomat shrewdly let his hair down to tell American congressional leaders his nation's troubles resulting from its willingness to join the dynamite-laden Atlantic Defense Pact. Norway has been under terrific pressure from the Russians not to join with the Western powers in a mutual-defense agreement.

Lange told the Congressmen who met with him that Norway was not worried about whether or not to throw in its lot with the West. Rather, Lange said, the thing that concerned the Norwegians, as well as the Danes, was what would happen in the event Russia began massing troops near the Norwegian border during the period while Congress debated and before American aid became effective. Lange showed a brilliant knowledge of the American legislative process.

He estimated it might be five months before American aid reached Norway in quantity. It was this lag, the Foreign Minister said, that was causing the Norwegians so much concern.

House Speaker Sam Rayburn and Majority Leader John McCormack of Massachusettts both expressed the conviction that America would back Norway to the hilt. But both also warned him that the American legislative processes would have to be followed before the aid could be sent. They assured him, however, that if the Russians began threatening Norway, Congress would only act more swiftly.

Upshot of the luncheon, which was also attended by Appropriations Committee Chairman Clarence Cannon of Missouri, Foreign Relations Committee Chairman Sol Bloom of New York, Senator Magnuson and Congressman Mitchell, both of Washington, was that Lange's determination to stick with the West was stiffened.

Note: The luncheon for the Norwegian Foreign Minister was arranged by his old friend, Congressman Henry M. Jackson of Washington.

Truman Asks Autograph

President Truman is still getting a kick out of the mistake the pollsters, predictors and newspapers made in the last election. He particularly enjoyed the recent book by Morris Ernst—"The People Know Best"—which dissects the mistakes of the press in the late campaign.

"If you hadn't written this book, I'd have written it myself," Truman told Ernst, when the latter called at the White House the other day. "It just had to be done."

Truman indicated he had read every word of the book, and thoroughly enjoyed the way the press and the predicters were taken apart.

"Herbert Hoover," remarked Truman, "told me he had handed out autographs all his life but never asked for one. But I'm one President who is going to ask for an autograph. I want yours."

Truman handed a copy of Ernst's book back to him while Ernst inscribed it.

Hint Got Franco Loan

Here is the inside story on why Franco Spain, after so many years in the State Department's doghouse, now has been able to get a 25-million-dollar loan from the Chase National Bank.

The man behind this loan is Paul Culbertson, American Charge d'Affaires in Madrid. He succeeded in convincing the State Department that it is absolutely essential to give Franco some kind of economic help or else he will refuse to cooperate in the Allied plans for defending Western Europe. Culbertson sent scores of telegrams warning that Franco was heading for serious trouble unless he got dollars somewhere to buy American machinery and equipment needed to keep his factories running.

The problem stumped the State Department for awhile, because it could not risk giving Spain an American Government loan without arousing a loud protest from many Americans who consider Franco a dictator. Finally, it was decided to pass the word quietly to the Chase National Bank that it was all right to give Franco a loan. Chase National jumped at the chance, because it's a good business deal that may lead to more loans of this kind.

The State Department, meanwhile, is sitting back to watch how Franco spends this first loan, so it can decide whether to open up the United States Export-Import Bank to him for further help. Needless to say, Paul Culbertson is now aces high with Franco for making all this possible.

Austrian Treaty Kaput

Sam Reyber, the American representative at the discussions for an Austrian peace treaty, wants to come back home. Reyber has reported to the State Department that, with the conference only three days old, it's already quite clear the Russians have no intention whatsoever of coming to any agreement on Austria.

Therefore, Reyber has suggested that rather than waste time further, he let an understudy take over his position at the conference while he comes back to Washington to do some real work. The State Department, however, is still convinced that the Austrian negotiations by the Big Four deputies to the Foreign Ministers now going on in London will result in enough concessions by the Russians to warrant a Big Four meeting in New York in April. Actually, the State Department is convinced the Russians want to pit Molotov against Acheson to try out our new Secretary of State for size, weight, height and reach.

Business Biggies

President Truman has been holding some highly important off-the-record meetings with business leaders because of his concern about a possible depression. The second meeting took place at Blair House secretly last Thursday, and those present included Ward Canaday, head of the Willys-Overland, the motorcar company; Frank Baer, vice president of the Bank of America; Joe Love, president of Burlington Mills, and Vice President Alben Barkley.

Henry Ford 2d was invited but was prevented from coming by bad flying weather. Grave concern was expressed over Federal Reserve Board limitations on installment buying which, it was said, were threatening increased unemployment.

Is this Leading You to this?

IF dandruff scales (magnified above) are accumulating on your scalp and causing it to itch and burn, you are probably being warned that thinning hair may follow. Specialists are not agreed as to all of the causes of baldness, but they do urge the removal of dandruff scales as a sound prophylactic measure.

For more than 25 years The Thomas have been removing dandruff scales and soothing the itch which they may cause. Consult a Thomas expert today, in private, without charge, and let him show you exactly what Thomas treatment is and how it works. Start the treatment and see for yourself how pleasant it is, and how much healthier and cleaner your scalp feels—come in today!

The Navy Suit

As American as the "Goddess of Liberty"

The "typically U. S. A." fashion that goes marching on and on, season after season . . . the fashion that's seen on every street from the nation's capital to Washington-on-the-Pacific . . . on every woman from sixteen to sixty! It's the navy suit . . . the suit of ageless flattery . . . the suit fashion that women just refuse to "give up"! Choose yours at The Hecht Co.'s . . . where every detail of each suit spells quality (even down to the sturdy Armo interfacing in each lapel!)

FOR WOMEN . . . our navy wool gabardine, with flattering epaulet shoulders, sizes 16½ to 24½. (Also in black) 49.95

FOR JUNIORS . . . our natty navy in all-wool gabardine, with dashing button trim. Sizes 9 to 15 55.00

FOR MISSES . . . our navy classic in pure wool gabardine, distinguished for its slim, suave lines. Sizes 10 to 18 69.95
